All Night Riots Mark Disorders

Striking Relief Camp Deserters Create Havoc in One of Vancouver's Biggest Stores—Many Clashes, Several Hurt

MAYOR READS RIOT ACT PUBLICLY

VANCOUVER, April 24.—An all-night riot wore itself out early today as police and relief camp strikers skirmished in lanes and alleys to add a few more injured and a few more arrests to the list of an afternoon of disorder. Sixteen men and a youth of juvenile age, the latter also from a relief camp, are under arrest. Six police and an unstated number of strikers are injured, none seriously. Vancouver has been warned by its mayor, G. G. McGeer, who yesterday read the riot act, that "there is a definite organization of communistic activities which is centreing on calling a general strike in Vancouver." He has forbidden further parades or disturbances.

The men went to rest in billets early today after having broken the peace for the first time since they walked out of the camps on April 4. They disregarded traffic signals in the main downtown section of Granville street and struck down an officer who opposed them.

Two thousand striking relief camp workers paraded through Vancouver's business section Tuesday, disrupting traffic; clashed with police, wrecked fixtures and merchandise in the Hudson's Bay store with extensive damage; and finally dispersed after the riot act had been read in this city for the first time since 1912. Consequences of the disturbance were found in the city jail, where police held 12 men arrested during and after the parade; in the Hudson's Bay Company departmental store, where officials said damage in smashed showcases, fixtures and merchandise would total several thousand dollars; and among strikers and police, several of whom were injured but not seriously.

"NUISANCE" PARADES

The parade started as just another of the so-called "nuisance parades" held periodically by the unemployed since they left the camps April 4. Spokesmen for the men stated they hoped to call attention to their position by means of

MEN MAY GO BACK TO CAMP IF SO WISH

Ministry National Defence Says Striking Rioters Will be Sheltered

By THOS. WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, April 24.—The Ministry of National Defence has notified Mayor McGeer of Vancouver that any of the men who walked out from the Labor camps will be taken back any time they report, providing they are not agitators or involved in fomenting trouble in the camps.

"The men go to the camps of their own free will and leave of their own free will. We cannot hold them if they wish to leave," it was stated by a senior official at National Defence headquarters. "For some time there have been agitators working in the camps. Mayor McGeer himself, publicly referred to them on April 23, when he stated they were capitalizing the present situation for revolutionary purposes."

"Many of the men who left the camps were coerced into doing so," National Defence headquarters stated. "If they want to go back we will take them back. We consider it unfortunate that this outbreak should have occurred because the situation with respect to employment in British Columbia was improving. In March more men than heretofore left camp to go to employment; they had secured, or were prepared to take care of the rest until they too can be absorbed into industry."

3,185 VICTIMS QUAKE BURIED

TAIHOKU, Formosa, April 24.—Official reports from the earthquake area said today 3,185 victims of the catastrophe have been buried and more than 10,000 injured given hospital or first aid treatment.

Government hospitals at Shinchiku and Taichu are filled. Scores of first aid stations set up in tents also are operating in the district.

CHEQUES FOR INDEMNITIES ARE ISSUED

Within a few minutes after the legislature prorogued on Tuesday there was an additional $118,685 in circulation in this province, by reason of issuing checks to members as sessional indemnities.

The clerk of the legislature, Robert A. Andison and his able assistants, James Thompson and Gilbert Murray spent a busy few moments handing out the coveted slips of paper.

On orders of the provincial auditor, whose appointment comes from the legislature and not the government, no cheques are issued to members until after the house is actually prorogued. Then they are issued as members call.

The $118,583 represents members' indemnities and special allowances, such as those for the Speaker, Deputy Speaker and leaders of opposition groups.

Court Frees Men: Wives Take Action

NEW YORK, April 24.—Magistrate Benjamin Greenspan freed 132 men of disorderly charges for attending a show, but that didn't end it. A band of twenty or thirty wives, with flying fists, were waiting for them as they emerged, Here's The Riot Act!

"Our Sovereign Lord and King charges and commands all persons assembled, immediately to disperse and peaceably depart to their habitations or to their lawful business upon pain of being guilty of an offense on conviction of which they may be sentenced to imprisonment for life. God Save the King."

MAYOR G. G. McGEER.
He read the Riot Act to Vancouver.

MAYOR CLARKE LOOKS FOR NO TROUBLE HERE

Appraised of the disorders in Vancouver, Mayor Joseph A. Clarke gave the following statement to the Bulletin:

"I do not anticipate any action in Edmonton in sympathy with these disorders.

"Our unemployed were not sent to camps and are not on strike. There would be no call in any event for violence and I don't expect any. However, in order to quiet fears of those who might be reasoned hysterical by the trend of events resulting from the troublesome times we are passing through here as elsewhere in Canada, every step will be taken to maintain order.

"Every policeman will be available for duty 24 hours a day.

"The chief constable has been authorized to engage a small number of "specials" to take the places of regulars in the outlying districts of the city and the regular men will be brought down town where the crowds are.

"The R.C.M.P. have offered their services in case of trouble and the offer has been accepted. Any attempted disorder here will be met with the usual firmness.

"Authority will be maintained and I expect no disorder."

"The mayor of Vancouver has staked his political life on being able to solve the present economic depression and being able to terminate unemployment and stop suffering, and there are smug, satisfied groups who are not aware that there is a depression, who are now gloating at what they will term the failure of Vancouver's mayor.

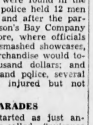

"It is not his failure, for the wise, self-satisfied have been able to prevent anything being done on the real lines of McGeer's suggestions.

"It is time for a real change."

This followed a rise in London to the equivalent of 71.07 cents. In both London and New York, prices reached the highest levels in 10 years.

ANXIOUS NOTE RUNS THROUGH NATIONAL PRESS

By GEORGE HAMBLETON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 24.—An anxious note again runs through the British press, assessing the German reaction to the united front at Stresa and the League of Nations' council's condemnation of German rearmament.

Diplomatic correspondents of two opposition papers see Britain, as a sequel to the Stresa meeting and Geneva—dangerously near the pre-war system of alliances and a return to the old balance of power.

The naval correspondent of the Morning Post, Conservative, in an analysis of Adolf Hitler's claim to a navy 35 per cent as big as Britain's, argues that the ratio claimed is purely fictitious as far as a true measure of sea power is concerned, and would appear to be merely a stepping stone to equality.

URGES PARLEY

The Daily Mail editorially presses that the British government should seize the opportunity of the presence of the prime ministers of the Dominions for the Royal Jubilee to convene an Imperial conference "which should be kept in session during the whole of their visit, so that the trade affairs and questions of foreign policy may be fully discussed.

"In the many complicated issues confronting the Empire," the Daily Mail continues, "it grows every day more important to move in unison with the Dominion and ascertain exactly how they view the Locarno Treaty.

LOCARNO TROUBLES

"The British obligations under the document were reaffirmed at Stresa a few days ago and it has become of overwhelming concern both the Dominions and ourselves . . . unless the Dominions are with us in this matter, the liabilities attaching to the Locarno Treaty would be of the utmost peril to Imperial unity.

"No Dominion could remain neutral, unless it were to secede. It is therefore imperatively necessary to test Dominion opinion thoroughly. If it is against the Locarno Treaty, then there can be only one course for the British government—the treaty will have to be denounced."

Architect's Wife, Her Chauffeur Held For London Murder Hearing

BOURNEMOUTH, April 24.—At the conclusion today of the preliminary hearing formal charges of murder were laid against Mrs. Alma Rattenbury, 31, and her 19-year-old chauffeur, George Percy Stoner, in connection with the death of the woman's 67-year-old husband, Francis Rattenbury, distinguished architect.

All the public documents on the route of the royal procession for the great thanksgiving service at St. Paul's Cathedral on May 6 are undergoing an exceptional scrubbing and polishing. The great cross above the dome of St. Paul's has been given a new gilt coating, as have the "pineapples" adorning the cathedral's western tower.

ALMA RATTENBURY

FRANCIS RATTENBURY

The accused pleaded not guilty and reserved defence, after which they were remanded for a week at which time they will be committed for trial. Defence counsel asked committal to the Old Bailey in London instead of to the next local assizes in order to expedite the trial.

Public interest in the Anglo-Canadian "triangle mystery drama" was as great as ever as the preliminary hearing was resumed after a week's remand. The murdered man spent many years in Canada, including a residence in Edmonton at one time and later in Victoria, where he designed the British Columbia provincial parliament buildings and other structures. Mrs. Rattenbury, who was married seven years ago, lived in Kamloops, B.C., as a child.

A letter from Mrs. Rattenbury, written in jail, was found in Stoner's possession, in which she wrote: "I must see you darling! . . . God bless you, my love, and be with you always." Two snapshots were also found.

When the charges were formally made after conclusion of evidence, Mrs. Rattenbury replied in clear low tones: "I am not guilty and reserve my defence." Stoner replied similarly.

Seventh Legislature Prorogues Following Session Of 52 Days

At 6:15 p.m. on Tuesday the fifth and last session of the seventh legislature of the province of Alberta was prorogued by Lieut.-Governor Honore Harvey, acting as Administrator of the Province in the absence of Lt. Gov. W. L. Walsh.

Escorted by Acting Sergeant-at-Arms Neil Maclean, Chief Justice Harvey entered the main door of the legislative chamber, illuminated by the full quota of brilliant lights.

Proceeding to the Speaker's throne, Chief Justice Harvey was welcomed by Mr. Speaker George N. Johnston and Clerk of the Legislative Assembly Robert A. Andison.

Many spectators had remained throughout the afternoon sitting in the legislative chamber, but the sessional business would be wound up before 6 p.m. and that they would sit-in on the proceedings.

Mounting the Speaker's throne, Chief Justice Harvey heard the lengthy list of bills read by Mr. Andison, to which assent was declared.

Assent was given.

The Chief Justice then addressed the members as follows:—

"Having completed the labors for which you were called together it is my duty to relieve you from further attendance at the present session of the legislative assembly.

"A number of important matters have come before you for discussion and decision and I have noted with much satisfaction that your most careful attention has been given to all of these in order that the welfare and prosperity of our province as a whole may be served.

"The provision which have been made to meet the needs of the public service is a matter for which I thank you and I can assure you that the sums of money thus provided will be used economically and in accordance with the principles of sound administration.

"In taking leave of you, I desire to thank you for the manner in which you have devoted your energy to the activities of the session and to wish you the full blessings of Providence as you return to your respective homes."

Premier R. G. Reid then said, "it is the wish of the Honorable the Administrator that this house be prorogued and therefore, it is prorogued."

The Chief Justice then left the chamber and the tumultuous session was over.

Members immediately began to say farewell to one another.

these public demonstrations. Previous marches had been strictly orderly.

Since the mass walk-out, city, province and dominion have refused to provide food and shelter for the strikers. The men have sent delegations to place their demands before the city council and the British Columbia government. No concessions have been made to them.

RAISED $5,000

The unemployed raised more than $5,000 in a tag day April 13, held despite the city's refusal to issue a permit for such action. Mayor G. G. McGeer later announced no action would be taken in this connection. The money so raised, together with sums privately subscribed, has been the men's only source of maintenance.

The men marched down Water and Hastings streets Tuesday without unusual event. On Granville street, traffic was tied up temporarily and for nearly an hour street cars were held stationary by the lines of marching men, extending for seven city blocks.

MANY DOORS BARRED

Men in certain divisions of the parade attempted to gain entrance to stores along the route but found many doors barred against them. Employees of David Spencer's Ltd. large departmental store on Hastings street, rushed to lock and guard all entrances when the marchers approached. The store escaped unscathed.

The Hudson's Bay Company, corner of Georgia and Granville streets, was not so fortunate. Some 700 marchers entered the main floor of the store before their following comrades were blocked by company employees and police who locked the doors.

WOMEN ARE REMOVED

Police reinforcements were rushed to the building and the strikers were ordered to leave. They jammed the aisles and, when they showed obstinacy, women employees of the company were hurried from the floor by their department managers.

As the officers attempted to eject the demonstrators, the men gathered in one corner, from which they could not be driven. Police were reported to have met some resistance as they attempted to take the strikers out individually and batons were used.

MELEE ENSUES

In the general melee which ensued, the men spread across the entire main floor, kicking in show cases, smashing perishable goods and throwing other articles to the floor. Reports stated clerks of the store showed no resistance, remaining out of the melee entirely.

POLICEMEN INJURED

Some of the policemen suffered cuts and bruises and a half dozen strikers were knocked out. The injured strikers were carried to the street by their fellows as the demonstrators straggled out by various exits.

Store officials surveyed the damage immediately afterwards and stated no estimate of the damage would be possible for some time, but they said it would run into thousands of dollars. Practically all glass show cases on the main floor were smashed, tables were overturned and the scene was one of general havoc.

RESUME MARCH

Meanwhile, the strikers joined the main body outside and they marched four abreast down Granville street to Hastings and thence four blocks east to Victory Square, site of the Cenotaph, Vancouver's war memorial.

En route, a group of men broke ranks and swarmed about one of the police patrol automobiles which accompanied them to maintain order. Witnesses said an attempt was made to overturn the car in the sharp but short skirmish which followed. Police made light of the incident, declaring the men were driven back without trouble.

TWO "BATTALIONS"

At the square, the men divided into two battalions, one group marching up Cambie street and into the square from the north entrance as if under a pre-arranged plan. Two other sections paraded through the south entrance and, from above, it appeared the square was covered by a solid mass of men.

The strikers squatted on the turf while their leaders addressed them, reiterating their demands for food and shelter. The men were orderly, their only demonstration being loud shouts and cheers as they approved the speakers' words.

POLICE MOBILIZED

A squad of 50 provincial policemen arrived and formed in line on Hastings street at the foot of the square. They were joined by 90 city police and, within a few minutes, two truck loads of Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrived on the scene, followed by a mounted detachment of some 35 R.C.M.P.

In all, about 350 police stood guard around the park, which covers a city block.

Twelve strikers were selected to proceed to the ciy hall to interview the mayor.

RIOT ACT READ

There, they were told by Mr. McGeer that he had no power to give them food and shelter. He stated their care was strictly a Dominion responsibility. After the delegation left the city hall, 10 of their number were arrested and charged with vagrancy.

Mr. McGeer went at once to the square and, as he mounted the steps of the cenotaph, the mob surged forward. The blue-coated city police, lined beside the provincial officers, broke ranks at once and formed a cordon around the mayor, forcing the strikers back and giving His Worship room to address them.

Mr. McGeer read the riot act, ordering the men to disperse within 30 minutes and taking power to call out the militia if his orders were ignored. The mayor's words were accepted in a stony silence.

"BULLET" THREAT

Harold E. Winch, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation member of the provincial legislature for Vancouver East, spoke briefly to the men, advising them to disperse and saying the Riot Act did not "mean clubs but bullets." Almost at once, the men began to break up. By this time, the crowd of unemployed had dwindled to some 700 men.

Mr. Winch asked Mr. McGeer for permission for the men to march from the square to their billets and this permission was granted. The demonstrators formed lines on the streets and, each division headed by two mounted policemen, they marched to their quarters.

LARGE FORCE READY

Provincial and mounted police returned to their barracks as soon as the men had disappeared but a large force of city police was kept on duty. No further trouble was anticipated, however.

The Riot Act was last read in Vancouver in 1912, during a disturbance among Orientals in Chinatown. The trouble ended there but the city was called upon later to pay several thousand dollars in damage claims resulting from the disturbance.

LEGISLATURE ACTIVITY NOW AT AN END

chamber for the last time and more specially as, before another session is convened, a provincial general election will be held and some must, on the law of averages, meet rejection at the polls. Some indeed already are out of the running. Fred J. White, provincial Labor leader, has been nominated in the East Calgary Dominion riding and doubtless will not again be in the house. Mr. Speaker G. N. Johnston lost his nominating convention at Coronation as did Rudolf Hennig, U.F.A., Clover Bar. Others of the house may lose their conventions and others will go down at the polls. Thus, realizing this, the members, though they had engaged in many a wordy, hotly-contested debate, said their farewells with not a little heartburning.

The session was one of the longest in the history of the province and probably with the exception of the now historic session when the A. and G.W. bill was before the house in pre-war days, when the now premier of Canada Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett spoke for five hours, this has been the stormiest.

In the way of legislation there were 99 bills introduced. Actually Bill No. 100 was introduced and ratified on the closing day of the session, but one earlier bill set down for introduction was stillborn.

This is a large increase as last year there were 82 bills introduced, of which 76 were passed.

This year the session opened on Thursday, Feb. 7 and closed on April 23, with a total of 52 sitting days. Last year the session opened on Feb. 8 and prorogued on April 16 with a total of 44 sitting days.

The debate on the Speech from the Throne, with which the session opened, lasted three weeks. The budget debate lasted two weeks. Yet, in the last two days of the session the legislators cleared no fewer than 34 resolutions and several bills from the Order Paper.

LID CLAMPED UPON PARADES IN COAST CITY

Mayor McGeer Says Reds Endeavoring to Create General Revolt

VANCOUVER, April 24—Mayor G. G. McGeer last night clamped down on parades and demonstrations in Vancouver following Tuesday's riot, when relief camp strikers caused thousands of dollars' damage in a downtown department store. In announcing demonstrations, public meetings and parades would be banned in future, the mayor charged the riot to Communistic activities which, he said, are centreing on calling a general strike in Vancouver.

"The situation in Vancouver today is extremely regrettable," Mayor McGeer said. "Chief of Police W. W. Foster informs me that he had been definitely assured by representatives of the relief camp strikers that they would not attempt any more nuisance parades—that is, parades through stores to embarrass merchants and the general public—and that no attempt would be made to violate bylaws by unauthorized tag days or parades.

"Today, either by design or otherwise, the men paraded and entered the Hudson's Bay Co., store. When the company asked police to remove the men, some left peaceably and others remained and were the cause of the disturbance that occurred.

"It is now perfectly clear that Vancouver is being victimized by an organized attempt to capitalize, for revolutionary purposes, the conditions of depression which now exist. From information supplied to me, there is a definite organization of communistic activities which are centreing on calling a general strike in Vancouver.

"Fortunately, this communistic movement has no substantial public support and is not endorsed by organized labor. If a general strike were called it would react disastrously on conditions in Vancouver and would result in increasing and extending the hardship of depression throughout our community.

COMPLAINTS HEARD

"There may be some justification for complaints on the part of the men suffering from camp conditions. Fortunately the dominion government has agreed to hear these complaints and there is no reason why the men should not return to camps pending the outcome of the enquiry.

"There is no reason to believe our police can not handle any situation that might arise, but those responsible for the disturbances are not going to be allowed to continue."

Police Court

Stan Darlington, who took a joyride on his own hook in a taxi belonging to the Grey Line Taxi company in the wee hours of Wednesday but had most of the joy taken out of the affair when a pursuing taxi belonging to the same company overhauled and crashed into this machine, pleaded guilty operating an auto without the owner's consent in police court Wednesday. He was remanded until Friday for sentence.

Steve Wasylewski was fined $1 and costs and ordered to pay an employee of his cafe $14 salary, following a conviction under the Minimum Wage Act. The complainant, a young man, swore he had worked in the defendant's cafe for about a month, 12 hours a day, seven days a week, and had been offered $10 for his services in addition to board and room. He claimed accused wanted him to sign a book for the $10, but no entry was made opposite his name and he had refused to do so, taking the matter before the Minimum Wage Act commissioner.

In disposing of the case Magistrate Primrose stated he was convinced the complainant was not an experienced worker, and was also convinced he had not worked the long hours he told of.

R. F. Jackson defended, and Arthur McLennan prosecuted.

An unusual private prosecution was revealed in the case of Conrad Smith, charged with negligent driving by his former employer, Harold Brader, taxi operator. Smith had crashed into the curb damaging the wheels of the taxi at the intersection of 82 ave and 109 st. while driving at a speed of 35 miles an hour, according to Brader, who swore out the information.

Crown Prosecutor McLennan said that police had investigated the accident but had taken no action and the case was a private prosecution. After hearing the evidence of Brader and Smith, Magistrate Primrose reserved decision until April 29, hinting he would like to hear what the police had to say about the case at that time.

Sentence was suspended in the case of Jacob L. Klech, who pleaded guilty to stealing a set of sleighs. The court took into consideration the fact the man had been in jail 10 days awaiting trial.

Lady Luck Arrives Just As Despair Is Ready For Take-Off

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—Award of the $200-a-year Paris prize of the Chaloner Foundation to Frede Vidar, 24-year-old San Francisco painter, came when his personal finances were at a low point.

He was vacating his studio here for inability to pay the rent when he received the announcement of the prize award, Vidar revealed yesterday.

"I had almost finished moving out of my studio when the telegram arrived," he smiled. "I was going to hitch-hike to New York next week to enter some of my paintings in the summer exhibits.

The Chaloner prize provides a Paris studio and three years' study," William Platt, trustee of the Foundation, said at New York in announcing the award.

CITY GOLF COURSE IS NOW OPEN

The Municipal golf course was officially opened for another season Wednesday, with the city engineering department planning further improvements to the links this year.

Levelling of the 13th green will be undertaken to prevent a condition of unfair putting, while a number of traps will be constructed on the last nine holes.

The city has also purchased a new five-unit mower at a cost of $873 for the purpose of keeping down the dandelion nuisance as much as possible. A 12-foot swath is cut by the mower.

F. PETERSON DIES AT IRMA

Recognized on all sides as one of the outstanding provincial horticulturists of the province, Frank Peterson of Irma, died at his home on Tuesday. For many years he was identified with provincial exhibit work, being engaged from time to time under the direction of the provincial publicity bureau for exhibits at Chicago, Toronto and points in the United States.

Coming from his home in the state of Iowa about 30 years ago, he homesteaded in the Carstairs area and was employed by the Carstairs and Didsbury Boards of Trade in 1906 for a special trip through the United States to promote settlement, carrying with him an exhibit of products from that area.

Out of this came his work for the provincial government, his first engagement in this respect being to take an exhibit to the Toronto exhibition many years ago.

He developed a special process for curing grain samples for exhibit purposes and later he took several exhibits to Chicago for the province. His last work was in 1927, on a special mission through the U.S.

For many years he lived on a small farm at Irma, where many varieties of flowers were developed, his specialty being gladioli. He also developed a variety of lily by cross-breeding, which he named "The Alberta Lily" and which he believed was the only one of its kind in the world.

MEN MAY GO BACK TO CAMP IF SO WISH

that once the men left the camp they had no control over them, but reiterated that any of the men of good record could go back to the camps any time on the usual nomination of provincial officials.

UNDER COERCION

There is reason to believe the vast majority of the men who left the unemployment relief camps in British Columbia to associate themselves with those who have invaded Vancouver, did so under coercion by subversive organizations, defence department officials said here today. Communist propaganda had been rife in the camps for some time, with radicals exploiting the men's distress.

Many hundreds of the "strikers" were known to be well-behaved and good citizens, but they had been driven to hooking up with the red elements by intimidation, it was said.

MEN MAY RETURN

Instructions had been issued to the camp authorities that all men who were known to have good records might return if they wished. The known reds, however, were not welcome.

So far as the Vancouver conditions were concerned, it was explained here today that the preservation of law and order was the responsibility of the provincial government. Should the use of troops become necessary, the request would have to be made to the district officer commanding by the provincial attorney-general subsequent action then became automatic, proceeding according to statute.

LAMSON RETRIAL DEFENCE CLOSES

SAN JOSE, Calif., April 24—David A. Lamson closed his defence before a jury Tuesday in a stubborn fight for life after calling 64 witnesses at his second trial for the murder of his attractive young wife.

Lamson's first trial ended with his conviction and death sentence on a charge of bludgeoning Mrs. Allene Thorpe Lamson to death with an iron pipe in the bathroom of their Stanford University campus cottage, May 30, 1933. Lamson formerly lived in Red Deer, Alta.

The second hearing, granted by the state supreme court, saw the introduction of much new defence evidence, including a dramatic bathtub experiment performed with a living model, by which Lamson's attorney attempted to convince the jury Mrs. Lamson had been killed in an accidental fall.

More than a score of witnesses were to be called by the state.

CORBIN MINE STRIKERS GET GOVT. HEARING

Admit Tractor Driven Slowly on Highway Was "Rushed" by Pickets

VICTORIA, April 24.—A delegation representing striking coal miners of Corbin, B.C., was urged by the British Columbia government Tuesday to make application for a board of conciliation under the Industrial Disputes Act to settle the strike.

In announcing the government's attitude after the delegation had been interviewed, Premier T. D. Pattullo said any award made by such a board would be enforced and there would be no need for further police activity in the interior mining town.

PROTEST BRUTALITY

The delegation protested alleged police brutality during last Wednesday's riot, asked for a commission of investigation and urged withdrawal of police. Sixteen policemen and a large number of strikers were injured in last week's disturbance at Corbin.

The delegation comprised Thomas Uphill, M.L.A., for Fernie, Harvey Murphy, organizer of the Mine Workers' Union, and James Dornan and Dan Iwasiuk, two of the strikers. They also urged postponement of the trials of men arrested after the riot and an assurance of safe conduct for any persons into the strike area.

POLICE STATEMENT

Col. J. H. McMullin, commissioner of British Columbia police, issued a statement last night in which he denied reports police had used undue severity in the course of the clash between police and coal mine strikers at Corbin, B.C., last Wednesday.

Police, he said, had given no provocation and were drawn into the affair when they sought to protect miners who were going to work.

TRACTOR "RUSHED"

He denied a report a tractor had been turned into a crowd of men and women. A tractor had been driven in low gear very slowly along the highway when its crew was rushed by picketers. As far as the police were aware no one had been dragged by the tractor unless they voluntarily hung onto it. One woman had been crowded into the machine in the melee of strikers and had received bruises.

Bessborough Tea For Drama Teams

Those attending the tea, held at Government House, were members of the Theatre Art Guild of Halifax, the Regina Little Theatre, the Ottawa Drama League and Le Conservatoire National de Musique de Quebec.

World Trade Is Still On Drop

LONDON, April 24.—The report of the London Chamber of Commerce on world trade during 1934, published trade, said stagnation of world commerce was growing steadily through the "strenuous but misguided" efforts of various nations to bolster their economic position by maintaining a favorable trade balance through quota systems and tariff barriers.

World trade, which had dropped one-third in the previous four years, continued to drop during 1934, the report said.

130 Make Claims To Indian Estate

MUSKOGEE, Okla., April 24.—A total of 130 persons have filed claims for a share of the two-million-dollar estate left by Jackson Barnett, aged Cree Indian who was elevated from rags to riches by discovery of oil on his Oklahoma property.

WORLD QUOTATION EDGES CLOSER TO AMERICAN OFFER

With London Figure at 70.75 and U.S. Buying At 71 Cents — Another Boost is Forecast.

WASHINGTON, April 24—Expectation of a quick boost in the United States treasury's silver price Tuesday was added to swirls of speculation over possible administration action to close the weak spot left in the Roosevelt monetary system by the Supreme court gold ruling.

"Dollar silver" talk had its Genesis in mounting world quotations for the white metal as they edged ever closer to the government's standing offer for newly-mined domestic silver. One treasury official said it was a logical deduction from past actions that the price would be boosted shortly, but all Secretary Henry Morgenthau would say was "Don't bet any money on what we do."

BUYING FREELY

With the treasury buying all silver offered from the mines at 71 cents an ounce, a figure established barely a fortnight ago, the price of the metal rose in London to a point, which translated into dollars at the current rate of exchange, was 70.75 cents.

Gold discussion was re-opened when the government asked a month's stay in a suit brought in the court of claims by Robert A. Taft, son of the former president and chief justice. He contended that if the government refused to pay him gold on a $50 Liberty bond, it must continue to pay interest until the date of maturity and could not call the bond for redemption in advance.

CASE PREPARATION

Such claims cases were the loophole left by the high court's gold decision. While the justice department said yesterday's delay move was only to allow more time to prepare the case, some observers thought congress might be asked to block permanently all suits of this type.

On the other side of the monetary picture, meanwhile, senators from silver-producing states were jubilant over the rising price for that metal.

DOLLAR SILVER SOON

Alva Adams of Colorado predicted dollar silver soon, because "the demand is in excess of the floating supply." Burton Wheeler of Montana, for the same reason thought the rise would not stop short of $1.29, the figure which the statute books say is coinage value of the metal.

REUNION HELD BY 194TH BATT.

Members of the 194th Battalion held a reunion Tuesday evening at the Memorial hall at which the memories of Vimy, Arleaux, Hill 70, Paschendaele, Amiens, Cambrai and Mons were recalled.

Their war time colonel, W. C. "Chubby" Craig, North Battleford, was a distinguished visitor and received a rousing reception from his former comrades, which was renewed when he delighted with a couple of songs and several stories. Col. H. R. Milner, K.C., was in the chair.

A detailed statement of the financial standing of the battalion association funds was given by Col. A. C. Rutherford, honorary colonel of the battalion.

An appeal was made by Joe Fairley to all members to ally themselves with the Canadian Legion to carry on the work of finding jobs for returned soldiers now out of employment.

WARNING GIVEN BY JUDGE EWING

Warning was again issued by Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing, chairman of the Board of Review appointed under the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, to farmers who were disposing of chattels pledged on mortgage or lien that drastic action would follow if this practice was persisted in.

He stressed the fact that in all cases where disposal of the chattel was necessary to provide sustenance that no creditor would object. It made the work of the official receivers and of the board of review harder when creditors came into court feeling they had been badly treated by the farmer debtor.

Two Camrose district farmers made appeal Wednesday morning to have their debts scaled down to a point which would enable them to continue operations. There was little opposition to their proposals. Judgment will be handed down later.

ASK REDUCTION IN ASSESSMENT

Appearing before the Alberta Assessment Commission Wednesday morning, city commissioners and City Solicitor Thos. Garside asked for a reduction in the equalized land assessment of $32,000,000 set by the province for supplementary revenue tax paid the city by the province. The commission reserved judgment.

It was pointed out by the city that the land assessment of $31,182,075 in 1923 had been cut to $25,462,000 in 1935, while the equalized assessment fixed by the province had only been cut from $34,000,000 in 1933 to $32,000,000 this year. In answer to the commission's argument that other factors, including population and transaction of business, were taken into consideration when the equalized assessment was fixed, the city claimed that such factors had already been studied when Edmonton's 1935 land assessment had been fixed.

Calgary representatives were scheduled to appear before the commission in the same connection Wednesday afternoon.

U.S. TO SPEND $100,000,000 ON AIR BASES

Defence Chain to Protect America and Foreign Possessions

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The United States house of representatives military committee Tuesday submitted a favorable report on a measure to authorize construction of a chain of air bases in the United States and its possessions.

The cost of proposed new bases and of bringing existing bases up to the strength of new ones is estimated at about $100,000,000. In locating stations, the war department would be required to take under consideration the Atlantic northeast, Atlantic southeast and Caribbean area, the southeastern states, Pacific northwest, Alaska and the Rocky Mountain region.

The Great Lakes area was omitted from the regions designed for consideration in locating new bases because of the tradition that there is no need for defending the Canadian border.

VICTIMS OF SNOWSLIDE STILL BURIED

Wolves Devoured One Corpse; Others Under 15-20 Feet of Snow

BRIDGE RIVER, B.C., April 24.—Recovery of the bodies of several miners from the snowslide which claimed their lives at the Taseko Mother Lode gold mines north of here, probably during British Columbia's severe January storms, will be impossible for another month, Provincial Constable R. J. Welsman reported Tuesday on his return from the scene of the tragedy.

Roland and Bill Allaire of Tyax Lake, brother trappers, were members of a search party with constables Welsman and L. W. Sadler Brown on the gruelling snowshoe trek to the mine from Bridge River after the Allaires had returned to report the mining camp had been wiped out by a slide.

INDIANS WAITING

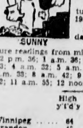

When the constables returned here, they left the Allaires camped at Taseko Lake, waiting an opportunity to recover the bodies. The police were 10 days en route.

Welsman reported a blanket of snow, 15 to 20 feet deep, renders search for the bodies impossible at present. He said the bunkhouse and kitchen at the lonely camp were demolished by the slide and only traces of a small lean-to building adjoining the main structure was visible.

A body identified as that of Hans Peterson, one of the victims, was found in the snow, partly devoured by wolves. The remains were given temporary burial.

Cambridge, England, has experimented with a type of oats that will stand up under a heavy rain.

PREMIER HEADS DRIVE KILLING REDISTRIBUTION

In Face of Willingness by Influential Supporters Premier Reid Gives Strong Opposition.

In a debate that went the limit of a resolution and two amendments before the house at the same time and in which Premier R. G. Reid himself opposed any action, in the face of some of the most influential of his supporters, the legislature, on Tuesday, on the last day of the last of its sessions prior to a provincial general election, decided that there would be no redistribution of political ridings prior to that appeal to the electorate.

As a result of the legislature's action the appeal to the electorate at the next provincial general election, which is expected to be fought out in the latter half of June, will be on the basis of the same membership and same constituencies as at present.

Prior to the definite decision to lay over all consideration of redistribution until after the next election, the legislature voted down a resolution and two amendments.

SHIELD MOVE FAILS

First to fall afoul of the legislature was a sub-amendment, moved by W. H. Shield, U.F.A. Macleod, which provided for an extensive survey into the question of a house of 20 members or a division of the house into 13 or 18 electoral districts, each of which would elect not more than three representatives to the assembly and that a report be tabled in three months with a special session to consider it and an election called thereafter.

This was defeated by a vote of 39 to 10.

In the division four Conservatives; two Independents and four U.F.A. members, namely, W. H. Shield, Macleod; Chester A. Manning, Camrose; Milton C. McKeen, Lac Ste. Anne and Donald MacLeod, Stony Plain voted for the sub-amendment, while the rest of the house was opposed.

HOWSON'S NEAR-SUCCESS

The members then turned their attention to an amendment, moved by W. R. Howson, K.C., provincial Liberal leader.

With the support of one cabinet minister, namely, Hon. Hugh W. Allen, minister of lands and mines, Mr. Howson's amendment came reasonably near passing, being defeated only by a vote of 27 to 21.

Mr. Howson advocated "a substantial reduction" in house membership to give proper and equitable representation to the people of Alberta with boundaries of electoral divisions "fixed having regard to physical and geographical conditions as well as area and community of interest."

In the division on this there were 11 Liberals, four Conservatives, three U.F.A. members, R. B. McCool, Cochrane, Hon. Mr. Allen and Donald Macleod; one Labor man, Chris Pattinson, Edson, and two Independents, J. Mackintosh, Bow Valley and Norman Hindsley, Calgary.

DUGGAN DEFEAT

Next the house went down to defeat the main resolution, moved by D. M. Duggan, provincial Conservative leader, advocating that house membership be reduced to 34; that constituency boundaries shall be the same as for Dominion constituencies and that two members be elected in each.

This was defeated by a vote of 43 to 4ix, with only four Conservatives and two Independents, Messrs. Hindsley and Mackintosh in support.

Thus did the legislature do away with redistribution until after another election.

In voting his opposition to tackling redistribution at this time, Premier R. G. Reid declared that it was impossible to endeavor to tackle the subject at this late date in the life of the legislature and in conformance with an indication he had given some time ago he made clear his opposition to realigning constituencies so close to general election time.

POLITICAL KIDDING

Milton C. McKeen, U.F.A., Lac Ste. Anne declared that the time was past when people could be kidded by party politics. The matter before the house was important and he contended that proportional representation brought about a fairer division of public opinion than partyism. He contended that "there is no more excuse for party politics in this province than in the average municipal district." In support of this he called upon any member to show where the dividing line lay between parties in the matter of education, highways and other matters.

"The people of this province are about tired of the way we are carrying on in the province and the time is coming when they will speak their minds," he said. He thought there were possibilities in the sub-amendment that should be considered.

Donald MacLeod, U.F.A., Stony Plain, declared the claim for redistribution was urgent and that the house was not justified in extending time for its consideration for another five years. He was willing to canvass the situation with a view to reduction in membership.

REPORT LAST YEAR

George MacLellan, U.F.A. Pembina, recalled that he had been chairman of the redistribution committee of the house which had worked diligently on the redistribution question and submitted a report at the last session.

He declared that in view of the fact that the committee had reported at the last session and no action had been taken up till now, he felt there was little justification for bringing in a redistribution claim so soon before an election. He contended that the advantages of any such action would be offset by any difficulties in the way. He advocated carrying on as at present until after the next election and declared it would be a "tragic mistake" to take redistribution action now.

Mr. Duggan declared that Mr. Shield's sub-amendment was meritorious and should not be brushed aside. He declared that surely some plan could be evolved for dealing with the situation and was sorry the Premier was not for reform, a remark that brought the Premier up with the reply that Mr. Duggan was taking in too much territory.

Mr. Duggan continued by stating that Hon. George Hoadley had hinted at the proposals in the Shield sub-amendment to the press but apparently "did not have the courage to bring them in." He contended that instead of waiting for three months to deal with the situation, as Mr. Shield suggested, the matter could be dealt with in 30 days. He submitted that the business of the province could be more effectively done by one-third of the membership.

Hon. J. F. Lymburn, K.C., attorney-general, regretted that Mr. Duggan had brought the discussion down to a party political level.

ATTACKS ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Hugh C. Farthing, K.C., Conservative, Calgary, attacked the attorney-general for co-operative suggestions and charged that "so far as the attorney-general is concerned, he is the last man in the house to preach co-operation."

Hon. Hugh W. Allen thought there was no justification for asking for redistribution now although he felt his part of the country was entitled to consideration. His was the largest constituency of all and was as large as a group of four of some other ridings. Also his riding had a population of 25,000. But even in view of this he did not feel that there should be any action at present although he did feel that the strength of the house as a whole should be reduced and he was voting for Mr. Howson's amendment.

ADDRESS WILL GO TO KING FOR JUBILEE

Legislature Endorses Alberta Felicitations to Their Majesties

Taking full cognizance of the significance of the impending Silver Jubilee of His Majesty King George V., and of the celebrations to be carried out in connection therewith, members of the legislature, just prior to prorogation on Tuesday evening, unanimously adopted a motion moved by Premier R. G. Reid, that a "Humble address be voted to His Majesty the King."

"To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

"Most Gracious Sovereign:

"We, Your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the members of the legislative assembly of the Province of Alberta, beg to offer our sincere congratulations on the happy completion of the 25th year of your illustrious reign.

"Your Majesty will celebrate the 25th anniversary of your accession to the throne, enjoying the unreserved respect and the loyal affection of the people of Alberta who throughout the years of your rule have entertained an increasing appreciation of your conscientious devotion to duty and zealous care for the welfare of your people.

"We rejoice that Her Gracious Majesty the Queen will share the demonstration of loyalty and devotion which is shown to Your Majesty on this memorable anniversary.

"During the course of Your Majesty's reign the people of Alberta have enjoyed the honor of welcoming to the province, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and other members of the Royal family.

"The keen and lively interest which His Royal Highness has taken in the progress and development of the province, has not only quickened the hearts of the people in their affection for him, but has strengthened their loyal devotion to Your Majesty.

"We earnestly pray that Divine Providence may preserve Your Majesty in health and happiness and that we may continue for many years to enjoy your gracious and peaceful rule."

Campaign Who's-Who

By T. B. WINDROSS.

Most of the candidates so far nominated by the different political parties to contest seats in the provincial legislature at the next election have been native sons of Ontario, and the Liberals in the Innisfail riding have not broken that trend in selecting Thomas Frederick Cuddy, a successful farmer of Penhold, Alberta.

Mr. Cuddy was born at Sunbury Post Office, in Frontenac county, Ontario, on September 15, 1882. He's is 52 years old with a record for hard work and successful endeavor that has placed him among the best and most efficient farmers of the Alberta plains.

He attended the public school in his home community in the east as a boy and later graduated from the high school at Sydenham, Ontario. For some years he lived in Toronto before coming to western Canada, and it was not until 1919 that he forsook the east for the prairies of the west. He settled in the Innisfail district and has been a resident of the constituency for 15 years.

Mr. Cuddy is not inexperienced in public service, having held the position of assessor in his former home in Ontario, and since coming to Alberta has had experience as a school trustee in the Penhold district where his farm is located.

In religion Mr. Cuddy is a member of the Presbyterian church, but he has always been known as a supporter of every good and deserving undertaking by whatever church or denomination it has been sponsored. He does not spend time in any hobby, as he finds the demands of his farm and his daily work quite sufficient to keep him busy.

THOMAS FREDERICK CUDDY

He is out before his fellow citizens as a candidate for election to the provincial legislature as a champion of monetary reform and a policy that will provide less expensive government for the people of Alberta, he claims.

TEACHER PAY SCHEDULES TO BE REVAMPED

School Trustees Decide Rearranging Work to Be Started

Revision of teachers' salary schedules, the new scale to be effective before new appointments are made for next term, will be commenced immediately by the management committee, it was decided at the public school board meeting, Tuesday night. Revision of caretakers' salaries is already underway in the property committee. Changes in present scales will affect only new contracts.

On a motion of Trustee S. A. G. Barnes, the board voted unanimously to wire congratulations and wishes for luck in Wednesday night's game to the Commercial Grads basketball team, now playing in Windsor for the Dominion championship.

The board voted to buy additional boxing equipment for the Technical school, where some 75 boys are now taking active part in boxing and wrestling. Dr. F. W. Crang, trustee, reported that John Michaels had presented the boys two new sets of gloves.

Trustee S. Bowcott agreed with Dr. Crang that there was fine work being done in this line at Technical school. "It is teaching them the spirit of true sportsmanship," he said.

Sections of the tax commission's report relating to school finance were referred to the finance committee to review and make recommendations to the board.

Secretary Harry G. Turner reported that at December 31, 1934 there were 53 debenture coupons due and not collected, representing $1,037.50. Of this amount $607.50 has been transferred to the board's current account.

Questions of "guidance," preliminary classes and musical development reports were left on the table until the next meeting.

W. J. Tamblyn, B.A., B.Paed., Toronto, who is visiting the city as guest of the Alberta Educational Association, spoke to the board, following the regular adjournment, on vocational work carried on in the Jarvis street school in Toronto of which he was principal for a number of years.

DEFEAT MOVE FOR FEDERAL VOTERS' LISTS

Basic voters lists, recently prepared by the Dominion government should be used in connection with the next provincial general election, declared Hugh J. Montgomery, Liberal, Wetaskiwin, in moving a resolution to this effect in the legislature on Tuesday. Mr. Montgomery declared that thousands of dollars could be saved in connection with the forthcoming election if these basic lists were used.

The motion was defeated, after Hon. J. F. Lymburn, K.C., attorney general read a statement prepared by John D. Hunt, law clerk to the legislature, pointing out difficulties in the way and giving his opinion that the idea was not feasible.

The house defeated a resolution moved by Mr. Montgomery that the legislature request the Dominion government to increase the sales tax sufficiently to bear the cost of education and to thus lighten the burden of taxation against the land.

Mr. Montgomery said that $6,000,000 would be required for this purpose. He did not agree that the sales tax would work a hardship on the man with a large family.

Premier R. G. Reid was opposed to the resolution.

Hector Lang, Liberal, Medicine Hat and Fred J. White, provincial Labor leader, Calgary, also were opposed to the resolution.

By a vote of 26 to 14 the house adopted a motion, moved by M. J. Comer, U.F.A. Wainer, that the government "should give consideration to a policy of refunding the fuel oil tax in respect of all fuel oil used in the operation of Class D trucks, to the same extent as it has now made in the case of fuel oil used in the operation of farm tractors."

Ontario Lumber Camp Probing

TORONTO, April 24—Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario minister of lands and forests, promised Tuesday he would investigate charges made at Windsor by Ben. Levert, member of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation, that the government was permitting exploitation of the workers in northern lumber camps. Mr. Levert had charged men were forced to accept wages of $1 a day or go without relief.

Eminent Baby Specialist

Quint Papa Would Pick Two Medicos

Is "The Bunk" To Oliva

CALLANDER, Ont., April 24.—Oliva Dionne said last night he was not satisfied with the inspection of his quintuplet daughters by Dr. Alan Brown, internationally-known child specialist, because "that's not what we were supposed to get." He said there was reason to believe the children were not in a serious condition but thought the babes should be examined by doctors named by himself.

Dr. Brown, physician-in-chief of the Hospital For Sick Children, Toronto, examined the babies early yesterday, and pronounced them in excellent physical condition and recovering nicely from slight head colds. He praised Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe for his care of the infants.

WANTS TWO DOCTORS

"It might have been satisfactory to Dr. Dafoe," said Dionne, "but that's not what we were supposed to get. Premier Hepburn said we could pick our own doctor. We want two doctors from North Bay, Dr. G. W. Smith and Dr. J. Joyal."

Dionne said the two doctors told him they would not go down to the hospital until invited by Dr. Dafoe.

"Do you think they are better than Dr. Brown?" Dionne was asked. "We don't know Dr. Brown," he answered.

STILL UNSATISFIED

"Don't you know he is one of the most famous baby specialists on the continent?" "I know that, but we don't know what he thought of the babies when he looked at them. He came through the night and we didn't see him," Dionne replied.

"Didn't Dr. Dafoe give you a report?"

"He just told us Marie would be kept in today and the others would be out on the veranda," the father answered. He added that the babies had not gained much since the first of April. "They have been going up and down. We want the opinion of other doctors on their condition."

FIRE DANGER IN AIRPLANES NOW REMOVED

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, April 24—Acetate, which took the place of celluloid for many of movie films and made the latest brand of silk stockings will end the danger of airplane funeral pyres.

Discovery of a new "dope" to coat airplane fabric and make it fire resistant was announced to the American Chemical Society today by Dr. Gordon M. Kline of the U.S. bureau of standards.

He said gasoline sprayed on a wing coated with this stuff burns but without setting fire.

The dope is not completely "fireproof". It burns, but like the movie film, so slowly that the fire-cost danger is removed. Passengers trapped in a plane accident, Dr. Kline said, would not be cut off from rescue by rapid spread of flames.

Vote Tamperers Traitors Says Montreal Bishop

MONTREAL, April 24—Men who had been revealed as tampers of provincial voters' list in the city of Montreal were branded as traitors to Canada by Rt. Rev. John Farthing, Bishop of Montreal, in his address today to the 67th annual session of the Synod of the Montreal Diocese, Church of England in Canada.

Bishop Farthing expressed alarm no action had been taken against them and there had been no sign of public indignation. He called upon the Quebec government to institute a thorough, impartial judicial enquiry and to take action at the present session of the legislature to amend the law, if legally possible, so that evil could be thoroughly overhauled before the next provincial election.

Peace Bridge Robins Finally Finish Nest

FORT ERIE, Ont., April 24—After 18 days of trying by themselves to build a nest on a two-inch ledge at the Canadian end of the Peace bridge here, two robins Tuesday completed nearly three-quarters of the work after friendly officials backed up an extension for the ledge.

They had collected nearly a bushel of material which was blown off the ledge as fast as they dropped it. With the encouragement of the extension they got the bright idea of using clay to hold the material together and work went rapidly ahead on the material they had collected in their early struggles.

Draper Medal For Stellar Work

WASHINGTON, April 24.—John Stanley Plaskett, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, B.C., last night was awarded the Henry Draper medal of the National Academy of Sciences of the United States.

The medal was awarded to Dr. Plaskett "in recognition of his able and consistent labors in stellar radial velocities, and related studies energetically pursued for nearly 50 years."

Dr. Frank Dawson Adams of McGill University, Montreal, a foreign associate member of the academy, received the medal for Dr. Plaskett.

Dionne Cousin Becomes Father Fine Twins

NEW YORK, April 24—Frank Dionne, of the Bronx, cousin of Oliva Dionne, father of the famous Ontario quintuplets, became the father of twins yesterday.

Mrs. Gertrude Dionne presented her husband with a seven pound boy and a baby girl weighing 6½ pounds, and both mother and babies are doing nicely.

The Dionnes also have four other children, three boys and a girl ranging from five to 11 years.

Smuts Greatest Of Dominion Leaders Says Author

Empire Will Not Last Fifty Years Declares Writer

Next to South African is Premier Bennett of Canada, Says Hannen Swaffer in Graphic Survey.

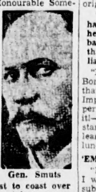

LONDON, April 24.—General Jan C. Smuts of South Africa is the greatest of all the Britishers overseas. Next to him among the Dominion statesmen is "the much-attacked Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada."

So says Hannen Swaffer in the London Pictorial, in a graphic survey of Dominion premiers. And he recalls a prophecy made by him years ago that the Empire would not last 50 years at its current trend.

He has scant respect for Imperialists. "They worry how they can make money out of the Empire. They talk of freedom which does not exist. They have cash register minds, and don't know."

INSPIRING SOUND

"Have you heard the city toastmaster introducing a Dominion premier? It sounds almost inspiring. "The Right Honourable Somebody So-and-so," you hear, "Prime Minister of Somewhere."

Gen. Smuts

"There is a loud applause. All the people seated at the dinner - table conjure up deeds of derring-do, never-ending prairies, millions of kangaroos jumping over millions of of rabbits, the the Taj Mahal, and railways that go from coast to coast over ravines and mountains, across lakes.

"You feel that the whole world is won, and that you did it.

"I used to feel something like that, once. Then my eyes were opened. I met Dominion premiers. And I discovered—greatest disillusionment of all—that most of them, if they lived in England, might be passable Lord Mayors of Portsmouth or Hull, but that, were they to face the limelight of Westminster, it would blind them and also expose their comparative nothingness.

"My greatest shock was when, late in the war, I met W. M. Hughes, Prime Minister of Australia. He had been boosted for years by the Tory Press. You really thought that here was a man who could save the world—that he was 'a great Australian.'

LITTLE MUSKRAT

"When I went to see him on the night of his arrival, he was living in a house in Ellsworthy Road, in North London. I discovered a man who looked like a little grey muskrat. He was seated at a table on which was a deaf box. He was so stone deaf that, without it, he could not hear a word. He talked slowly and with meticulous care.

"William Hughes, like William Massey, then Prime Minister of New Zealand, was no more an Australian than Massey was a New Zealander. Both were born in this country, one in London and the other in Wales. They had gone out early, and found it an easy job. Had they stayed here, they might have become minor members of a government, if their party was lucky to win, but, to my mind, that is about all.

'REALLY ENGLISH'

"A great deal of what we applaud when it comes from overseas is really English or Scots or Welsh. Canada has produced only two authors known on this side. They are Stephen Leacock, Montreal humorist, whose works bore me—I consider them mechanical and utterly uninspired — and Robert Service, the Rudyard Kipling of Canada.

Well, Leacock was born at Petersfield in Hampshire and Robert Service was born at Preston in Lancashire.

"I got my eye-opener about the statesmen of the Dominions when, in 1918, I tried to stem the invasion of American films.

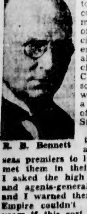

"I soon discovered that nobody else seemed to know, especially Dominion premiers, that you cannot have a British Empire if you allow it to become permeated with non-British thoughts and ideas.

"The Tories were horrified when I told them that they were helping to wreck the Empire without knowing it.

"I know now, of course, what the Tories have not yet learned, that it was all part of a general nationalization which must become the future of the world.

"Well, the Dominion premiers were in London in 1918. So I met them, one after the other, warning them that Imperialism couldn't live long.

"People told me how Australian towns were becoming more and more imitations of American cities, that American films were altering fashions, changing ideas. Canada, which I soon was to visit, was intellectually a mere province of the United States.

R. B. Bennett

"So I took the trouble to ask the overseas premiers to lunch, or else I met them in their hotel rooms. I asked the high commissioners and agents-general to meet me, and I warned them all that the Empire couldn't last for fifty years if this sort of thing went on.

"Now, frankly, they could not understand. I saw no spark of response in their eyes. Most were engaged, obviously, in the little sordid game of politics. Anyway, they did not care a tinker's cuss.

"Well, one day I invited to lunch William Massey, Prime Minister of New Zealand, and Sir Joseph Ward, who was in England with him, and who had been Prime Minister, being, I suppose, the best-known premier New Zealand ever had had.

QUOTA IDEA

"While we were waiting for Massey to come down, Ward said to me: 'Well, what would you do?'

"I seemed to get an inspiration out of the air.

"Well, you license your cinemas for sanitation, ventilation and safety of exits," I said, "and you censor the 'morals' of the pictures that you show upon the screen. Why shouldn't you censor their non-Britishism? I hate censorship, but it seems to me the only way out."

"How would you do that?" said Sir Joseph.

"Well, start," I replied, "by saying that 10 per cent of the films shown on the screen of the British Empire are to be of British origin."

"When Massey came down we had lunch and a long talk, and he and Ward promised to go back to New Zealand and put that idea into an Act of Parliament.

"I met bull-necked Botha. I met Borden. I met them all. Poor mutt that I was, I carried my gospel of Imperialism even among the Imperialists! But—you couldn't believe it!—few of them seemed to understand what Imperialism was; at least, according to my idea. We lunched—and that was all.

'EMPIRE HAS DIED!'

"But I tell you what did happen. I wrote a series of articles on the subject. I don't think the word 'quota' was used, but, anyway, I advocated what is now called the Film Quota.

"After the two or three articles had appeared, my proprietor, Lord Northcliffe—and he was the greatest Imperialist of them all!—called me up and told me to stop it. He was afraid of offending America!

"I hung up the receiver and, turning to my assistant, I said: 'Bill, the British Empire has just died. Nobody knows. But it is dead.'

NOTHING HAPPENED

"Well, nothing happened so far as the British Empire was concerned. But the Germans listened. They stole my idea from my articles and imposed a film quota.

"Well, years passed. The British film industry went from bad to worse. Then, years after I had invented the idea, the British pinched it back from Germany.

"And even today the film quota, which I invented in order to save the British Empire, I thought, has become chiefly a thing by which American film-producing companies, knowing that British cinemas are forced to show a certain proportion of British pictures, make some in England, to the disgust and the dismay of all the trade.

"They call them 'quickies'—and they are a joke. They make the British film industry to be thought sillier and even less efficient than otherwise it would be.

MORE FREEDOM

"Now the British Empire, as I have always seen it, is wide-spreading tracts of territory, certainly obtained by murder and rapine and loot, but places which, because of the idealism of many of the people who have gone out as administrators, have become ameliorative as well as repressive.

"As I see it, we should extend in it always greater measures of freedom, become more ameliorative, less repressive.

"Almost the only man in the British Empire who sees this—and his views on the colored question are strangely backward for a man of his high intelligence—is General Smuts. Handsome, cultured, imaginative, he is the greatest of all the Britishers overseas. And he is a Boer!

"After him, the only man of outstanding ability is the much-attacked R. B. Bennett of Canada. The bun scramble of Ottawa, which disgusted everybody, must not be considered typical of his mentality.

"I thought it was until, in Ottawa, a few months ago, I saw him leading his Tory party. Since then, he has just come out—he was forced to do it, no doubt, in self-defense—with an amazing exposure of Big Business which has staggered the whole of Canada.

"Bennett has turned the table on all his enemies. He has stolen half the Socialist program, caught the slow-thinking Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, bending, and generally annoyed all the high-and-dry Tories.

NOT AN ORATOR

He is nothing to look at. He is not an orator. But—and I am now speaking of a political opponent—he is, I think, after Smuts, the greatest of them all.

"Do not take too seriously what I call Imperialistic bunk. All that is a lot of overstatement, the praising for instance, of Empire editors who, mostly, are merely a lot of mediocrities who have obtained control of printing machines.

"They hold the strange idea that, if you live all alone in the middle of a prairie, you know more about the Empire than of, in Whitehall, you hear everything and see everybody.

"Imperialists regard Empire in terms of business. They worry how they can make money out of it. They talk of a freedom which doesn't exist. They have cash register minds, and don't know.

MISTAKE OF 1776

"Every Imperialist statesman thinks in importing and exporting everything. They don't understand that every other Dominion, too, is building up its industries, and that each wants to export . . . export . . . export . . .

"When idly, Lord Beaverbrook, talking of 'Empire Free Trade,' says: 'We will start with the Crown Colonies,' he forgets that that was how we lost the United States.

"There is more Imperialistic imagination in the minds of the ordinary middle-class family of England than there is in all the 'great statesmen of Empire.'

"After all, you know, if you stand outside Charing Cross station for an hour, you meet people from every part of the Empire. If you belong to a large family, you have brothers and sisters and aunts and uncles who have emigrated and come home. You soon absorb unconsciously, an idea of the great human family, of which the British Empire should consist.

"But if you live in Montreal, you never meet anybody from Australia, and if you live in the West Indies, you never see anybody from Johannesburg.

"Each of the Dominions is cut off. It is self-thinking, self-contained. And often it boasts of things which, frankly, are English all the time."

HOUSE WORKED ON 99 BILLS IN 52 DAYS

Provincial statutes were enriched and expanded by the addition of no fewer than 95 bills passed at the legislative session prorogued on Tuesday. This large crop of new bills is one of the heaviest of any session since the formation of the province in 1905.

In all 99 bills were introduced at this session. Bill No. 100 was introduced, but one bill, bearing a smaller number was not introduced to the house. Thus, 99 bills came before the house. Of these four were withdrawn.

Last year 82 bills were introduced and six were withdrawn, leaving 76 passed.

AGRICULTURE FEATURE

From an agricultural standpoint the outstanding piece of legislation was the bill to "Promote Stability in the Agricultural Industry." This bill will remain in force until May 1, 1938, and over-riding provisions are made when this legislation clashes with either the Debt Adjustment or Crop Payments Acts. This measure has been described in some quarters as a moratorium, although members of the government deny this.

Bill No. 9 of the session brings into effect in Alberta for the first time, the principle of health insurance, which in its ultimate effect calls for a $10,000,000 a year scheme, but which at first is being tried only in a limited way.

There were placed on the statute books two acts designed to whole-heartedly restrict the freedom of the press. One is to regulate reports of judicial proceedings in civil cases and the other amends the Libel and Slander Act. Tempestuous debates surrounded these Acts, which, however, are now law and operative.

MANY VITAL FEATURES

Far-reaching in its effect upon industry is the Industrial Standards Act, drafted along similar lines to Ontario legislation with like aims. In this, provision is made for employers and employes in other than mining or agricultural vocations entering into effective agreements regarding wages and working hours.

In an amending bill to the Solemnization of Marriage Act, provision is made that both contracting parties to a marriage must obtain a health affidavit. Parents or guardians of minors must be notified prior to their marriage.

An act respecting soil drifting strikes another new note in Alberta legislation and provides for damage actions against those neglecting to prevent soil drifting.

Establishment of areas for conservation of straw for fodder purposes is provided in another act. In areas thus established it will not be legal to destroy straw within four years of its being threshed without obtaining government approval.

By another piece of legislation slot machines are prohibited in this province after July 1 next.

TAXATION ISSUES

Far-reaching in its effect is the amending bill to the Income Tax Act which, at the $3000 mark, increases the rate of tax.

Also of wide effect was the bill which raised the gasoline tax from six to seven cents a gallon and which is expected to bring into provincial coffers an additional $350,000 revenue, which is estimated to be largely offset by the $300,000 to be lost through a reduction in auto licenses.

There was passed also a bill approving of an agreement between the government and the Rogers sugar interests of Vancouver by which the company will erect, on the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation project by the end of 1936 a $1,000,000 sugar factory.

Establishment of the Eastern Irrigation District was approved in another measure. By this bill the C.P.R. will turn over to a board of trustees a tract of 1,500,000 acres of its lands.

Resulting from the famous Powlett hazing case was the bill to amend the University Act, giving protection to the institution from legal actions brought as a result of damage by students. The Powlett case set the province back financially to the extent of about $50,000.

The bill amending the Alberta Insurance Act aims to bring this in line with similar legislation in other provinces.

Consolidation of the Alberta Assessment Commission Act was provided for in another bill. This calls for appointment of a director who will handle minor appeals.

TELEPHONE SALES

Incorporation of mutual telephone companies is dealt with in another bill while another deals with consolidation of legislation dealing with limitation of actions. The Succession Duty Act was amended.

Of importance to the province as a whole was the bill introduced by Hon. J. J. MacLellan, minister of public works, to amend the Public Highways Act by altering the 50-50 provision for financing provincial-district highways to the province bearing 60 and the district 40 per cent of the cost.

In an amending bill to the School Act it is provided that unless a resident of the district for more than 10 years, is a British subject he may not vote. Trustee and teacher dispute references to a board of reference are eliminated in the month of July in another clause.

With compulsory membership eliminated the bill creating teaching a profession was passed. Under the Act as it stands, all teachers will be able to join the association. Homesteaders privileges are extended in an amending bill to the Provincial Lands Act.

Although a most important piece of legislation was introduced, in the way of a bill creating the office of public trustee, it was finally withdrawn.

By resolution, the house empowered the government to negotiate a renewal of the agreement by which the province is policed by the R.C.M.P. Another resolution urged the Dominion to carefully examine all immigrants with particular reference to their freedom from mental ailments.

CHINA EXPECTS NEW MESSIAH

TIESTIN, China, April 24. — A new religious group has sprung up in the wild mountainous districts near here.

Its members claim that they have been called on to prepare the way for a new Messiah. They are enrolling many to their cause, which they have named "The Heavenly Gates Sacred Society."

All the devotees wear yellow around their heads, and claim, like the Boxers of 1900, that bullets are powerless to hurt them and that they can go without food for days and still remain physically strong and mentally alert.

They are going about the countryside announcing that a new "Saviour" will come upon earth in the immediate future.

Man, Woman Are Burned In Plane

FORT HANCOCK, Texas, April 24.—Two fliers, believed by officers to be a man and a woman, burned to death with the crash of their red airplane near a highway seven miles east of Fort Hancock last night.

At Tucson, Ariz., the two were believed to be Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Denkman of Cascobel, Ariz.

PERLEY TESTS OCEAN AIRWAVES FOR BROADCAST

OTTAWA, April 24.—The voice of Sir George Perley, acting prime minister, was carried across the Atlantic from Ottawa Tuesday to broadcasting house in London as the program department of the Canadian Radio Commission and the British directors made tests for the Transatlantic broadcast which will feature His Majesty's Jubilee Day presentations on May 6.

"Thank you, Ottawa—Sir George was heard as clearly as if in England," London reported to the Canadian engineers.

"An interesting experience and one that presages success for a splendid Jubilee Day program," Sir George commented at the conclusion of the trans-Atlantic tests.

MISTER SPEAKER PRESENTED WITH OFFICIAL CHAIR

Mr. Speaker George N. Johnston of the legislature will have one great treasure upon which to pride himself for the rest of his stay upon this mortal coil.

Just before the session prorogued on Tuesday, Norman Hindsley, Independent, Calgary, rose and moved that "the chair occupied with such dignity for so many years become the personal property of Mr. Speaker."

Premier R. G. Reid declared that from the applause greeting Mr. Hindsley's motion, there was little doubt that he would be glad to implement the motion. "It has been a great pleasure to sit in this house and sit under your munificent autocracy. Never in all my life have I taken a rebuke and liked it better, than from yourself."

During the session just closed, the Premier fell afoul of Mr. Speaker by having a resolution he presented declared out of order.

Mr. Speaker probably is saying farewell to the legislature. Elected to the house in 1921 he has sat therein ever since. He was named Speaker commencing with the 1927 session and has continued ever since, while at the same time representing the Coronation riding. At the constituency nominating convention recently, another candidate was selected by the U.F.A., after Mr. Johnson had suggested early last fall, that such be taken.

BRAKES NOT FAST, AUTO TRAVELLED

Constable Jack Bible of the city police force came close to facing a theft of auto charge Monday night and here's how it happened:

The constable was on duty, directing car parking at the Aberhart social credit meeting in the Arena. He waved one motorist into the slot at the top of a sloping piece of ground. The man got out and went inside.

After the meeting Constable Bible was startled by a loud, irate voice demanding:

"What have you done with my car?"

It was the man he had directed into the aforementioned slot.

The bewildered officer looked at the spot he had last seen the car. It wasn't there.

The car owner looked too, but his look was dark as a thunder cloud and directed right at Constable Bible.

Finally in the middle of the slough about 100 yards away from the parking place the car was espied by the minion of the law.

The owner had neglected to set the emergency brakes.

Prairie Seeding One Week Late Over Year 1934

WINNIPEG, April 24.—Seeding of wheat across the prairies will be general next week—a week or more behind last year—according to early reports from widely separated points in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Acreage is reported slightly lower than last year with moisture generally regarded sufficient for the present.

Seeding operations are under way throughout southern Alberta where surface moisture is reported sufficient for rapid germination in all areas. Scattered reports from central and northern Saskatchewan told of farmers preparing the seed beds, a week later than the average for the last five years. Wheat seeding was started in Manitoba and will be general next week.

Midnight Marauder Sought By Police

A midnight marauder, whose attempted robbery was an empty-handed affair was being sought by police Wednesday as a result of a break-in to the Dreamland theatre shortly after midnight Tuesday.

Constable V. Taylor discovered the screen had been removed from the back window and the glass broken, while patrolling his beat on Jasper east at 12:45 a.m.

Manager Entwistle was notified and stated that the thief had been unable to gain entrance to the office.

Romance Flares

HAMILTON, April 24.—Romance has come to Miss Wilhelmina Gancarczyk from a ginger ale bottle and Lake Ontario. A note she threw overboard on a moonlight cruise last July has brought an answer from Charles P. Ward of Wilson, N.Y., who picked the bottle out of the lake this week.

Peter Pan Is Now Proudest Mama

It wasn't so long ago that Betty Bronson pleased movie audiences with her "Peter Pan" characterization. Now she's in retirement as Mrs. Ludwig Lauerman and proudly shows Ludwig, Jr., at Asheville, N.C.

Cape Cod Natives Terrified As Quake Rattles Their Homes

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., April 24.—An earthquake rocked this town on the tip of Cape Cod last night, shaking houses, rattling dishes, and terrifying the inhabitants. The quake, which was felt for miles along the narrow tip of the Cape, occurred at 8:24 p.m., E.S.T., according to records of the Harvard University seismograph station at Harvard, Mass.

Residents of the town first believed there had been a tremendous explosion. Subsequent reports, however, established that the shock had been felt as far distant as Wellfleet, 15 miles from Provincetown. The quake also was felt in Gloucester, on the north shore of Massachusetts.

Buildings swayed for the seconds' duration of the quake, and a 36-foot watch tower of the coast guard at Race Point, two miles from town, "shook like a leaf," the lookout reported.

Dr. L. D. Leet, director of the Harvard seismograph, suggested the quake had "possibly occurred off the coast under the ocean," although he said he could not definitely state this.

Persian Tremors Are Continuing

TEHERAN, Iran, April 24. — A series of earth shocks rocking northern Iran (Persia) since April 12 still continued last night, after killing an undetermined number of persons and doing unestimated damage.

Reports from Mazanderan province said 483 persons died in that division alone. Lack of communication facilities prevented any accurate survey of the devastated regions.

Business Good For Small U.S. Newspapermen

NEW YORK, April 24.—Cheering news of the past year in the business and circulation offices of small United States newspapers found expression yesterday in discussions of publishers at sessions preliminary to the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

In floor discussions of affairs of important bearing upon the small newspaper publisher, and in informal out-of-session exchange of views, items of increased circulation and advertising showed an optimistic note. Among the speakers there was none who reported bad business.

Blue Eagle Aims Free, Open Market No Price Fixing

WASHINGTON, April 24—The elimination of price fixing Tuesday was made NRA's definite, if eventual, objective.

The Blue Eagle governing board announced the policy in a 5,000-word statement as the whole future of the Blue Eagle still rested in congressional hands. It said:

"The goal sought is the establishment of conditions under which, in a free and open market, competition may determine a fair price."

Army Fliers Plunge Into Monterey Bay

MONTEREY, Calif., April 24.—Lieut. Russell E. Laird and Private Bernard F. Rygwalski, of the U.S. army air corps' 91st observation squadron, were killed Tuesday in the crash of their burning plane into Monterey bay.

Accurate direction may be attained with one eye, but it takes two eyes to judge distance accurately.

AIRPLANES ARE USED BY POLICE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 24.—Speedy airplanes equipped with a two-way radio communicating system and sputtering lead from machine guns at high powered automobiles of bank bandits on the highway, is the latest weapon to be used in that never-ceasing warfare between police and the underworld.

Police of at least three Southwestern states have organized airplane patrols which may be called upon at a moment's notice to assist in running down fleeing bank bandits and escaped convicts.

Oklahoma was one of the first states to organize the airplane patrol on a systemized basis, largely through the efforts of Stanley Rogers, sheriff of the Oklahoma county and president of the Oklahoma Peace Officers' Association.

Oklahoma bankers were requested to make arrangements with at least two local pilots to have their planes available to scour nearby highways and side roads for sight of fleeing criminals.

John Strachey's Ex-Wife Wed To Chester Arthur

NEW YORK, April 24—Chester A. Arthur, Jr., grandson of former President Chester Arthur, of the United States, last night said he and Mrs. Arthur, the former Esther M. Strachey, divorced wife of John Strachey, would leave within the next day or two on a honeymoon trip across the country.

They were married Saturday night at Harrison, N.Y., by Justice of the Peace Leo Mintzer, but only a few of their close friends knew until Monday.

Mrs. Arthur was divorced from Strachey, the English lecturer and writer, in London in 1933. Arthur was divorced from Charlotte Wilson in Los Angeles in 1923.

Silver Loot From Bank Is Now Located

WELLINGTON, Ont., April 24.—Police Tuesday recovered $750 of the $1,200 in silver stolen from the Bank of Nova Scotia here a month ago and announced they expect to make an arrest soon. The money, in nickels, dimes, quarters and United States silver, was found in the basement of an old unused bank across the street from the building that was robbed. Wellington is about 30 miles south of Belleville.

USE GARBAGE TO STOP OIL DRIFT NEWEST IDEA

CLEVELAND, April 24—The newest idea for saving thousands of acres of western land from a continuance of devastating dust storms calls for a kind of heroic treatment.

All humor aside, Stephen A. Sted of Cleveland, in a letter to Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, recommends that garbage be laid 10 inches deep all over the drouth-stricken area..

Sted, vice-president of Railway Warehouses, Inc., admits frankly it might not smell so sweet, but insists the desperate situation requires a desperate remedy.

"Ten inches of garbage placed on top of the dried-out land would stop the dust blowing, refertilize the soil, and start the grass growing again," he said.

RED EXPELLED BY HOUSE BODY

WASHINGTON, April 24—Dwight C. Morgan of New York, alleged Communist, was forcibly ejected from the witness stand during a hearing of the house immigration committee when he refused to answer questions of committee members and attempted to make a speech.

The ejection came as Morgan, spokesman for the committee for the protection of the foreign-born in New York, protested against the Dies bill for deportation of alien Fascists and Communists.

A committee clerk grabbed Morgan by the arm, led him to the back of the hearing room and forced him to sit down.

Morgan said he was born in Cripple Creek, Colo., was thirty-five, and had not served in the army during the World War. He refused to answer a direct question as to whether he was a Communist.

Larger Prizes For Calgary's Next Exhibition

CALGARY, April 24.—Increase in prizes in all livestock classes at the 1935 Calgary exhibition and stampede were announced yesterday by General Manager E. L. Richardson, following a meeting of livestock committees. The increases, which in some cases almost doubled the prize, were made possible by enlargement of the dominion government grant from $2,500 to $5,000 and by donations from the various breed societies.

Mounties Join Last Honors To Late Inspector

OTTAWA, April 24—All ranks of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police joined yesterday in paying full military honors to Inspector Arthur Patteson at his funeral here.

Caribbean Hunt For Treasure Trove

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 24. —A Caribbean treasure hunt was in prospect last night for the crew of the tiny United States schooner Pilgrim, safe here after a stormy passage from New York.

As the battered little craft lay at anchor Lieut. Harry A. Adams, U.S.N. retired, disclosed he and his eight companions were here on the way to search for buried pirate gold.

He refused to reveal where they hoped to find it. The auxiliary-equipped Pilgrim would sail for San Juan, Puerto Rico, Thursday, he declared, but after that the vessel's course was the business of her complement.

Sir Richard also fought in the South African war.

According to word received by Mr. Greene when navigation opens on the St. Lawrence on April 26 over 3,000 Canadians will sail on the Montcalm and the Duchess of York to take part in the celebrations in the Old Country.

Engine Crew Argues As Train Dashes Wreckward

MOSCOW, April 24.—An argument between the engineer and fireman on a speeding train near Yama on the River Don today caused a railroad wreck in which 21 coaches were destroyed and an undetermined number of passengers killed or injured, it was reported here.

So engrossed were the engine crew in their dispute that they failed to notice warning signals ahead, and their train crashed into another one, the reports said.

Sleepwalking Son Shot Mother, Father's Claim

GREENVILLE, Tex., April 24.—Officers scoffed yesterday at S. P. Darden's story that his wife was killed by a sleepwalking son and filed murder charges against the husband as he wept beside her grave.

Darden said he was asleep with a 12-year-old son Jackie and an infant when awakened by the shot. Jackie Glenn slept in another bed with his mother, Darden related.

Canada's Wheat Crop Normal

U.S. HARVEST POOR, ALLOWS NO EXPORT

Australia, Argentine Crops Smaller, Canada Prices Firm

LONDON, April 24.—Prospects that the Canadian wheat crop this year would not be above normal and that the United States harvest would be poor were seen Tuesday by well-informed circles here.

These and other factors were believed to have helped in raising the London price of wheat. The other factors, these circles said, were:

1—Smaller harvests in Australia and Argentina.

2—The success of Canada's price-maintenance policy.

3—Regulation of French exports.

The Canadian crop is not expected to be above average, lack of moisture preventing a good yield, it was indicated. Heavy rainfall might make a considerable difference, it was conceded, however.

For the third successive year, experts here predict, the United States will be unable to export any considerable amount of wheat. Drought and dust storms have seriously damaged the crop.

2 DROWN IN ICY WATERS

ONE-TIME BIG STAR IS EXTRA

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., April 24.—Clara Kimball Young, one-time star of the screen, was discovered today playing an "atmosphere" role in a picture now in production.

Miss Young, who began her film career in 1912, and rose to stardom and an annual income of $200,000, is working in a scene with 350 other extras.

In her heyday, the actress received hundreds of fan letters daily. Later she owned her own producing company and appeared with success on the stage. Misfortune, however, overtook her and her wealth dwindled until she was forced to seek work as an extra.

Ontario Worries Over Fall Wheat

TORONTO, April 24.—Continued pessimism over the fall wheat crop report of the Ontario department of agriculture issued Tuesday. Practically all counties of western, southern and central Ontario reported the wheat crop suffered from cold nights and dry weather of the past few weeks. Lincoln County, however, noted fall wheat was making rapid growth. Seeding was fairly general throughout the province.

Rear-Engined-Stream Lined New Model

Detroit is excited by the appearance of a rear engine streamlined automobile, built by William A. Stout, former Ford airplane engineer. Stout says he plans a production of 100 cars in 1935. Auto designers have been talking for some time of rear engines to permit greater stream-lining.

INFLATION AHEAD!

What to Do About It

A Vital Daily Series for Business Men and Women. Start it Today.

By W. M. KIPLINGER, Business Writer and Frederick Shelton, Economist

Every man and woman in business, every property owner, will be interested in this series appearing in the Edmonton Bulletin.

Kiplinger

Shelton

"What is inflation? What will it mean to me?" These are questions on everyone's lips.

Crisply written, friendly and intimate in manner, these letters by Mr. Kiplinger, trained Washington observer, chart the course of a nation. And events and trends of United States are echoed in Canada.—EDITOR.

Farm lands and city realty presented for consideration by cautious persons as hedge against inflation—Factors to study—Influences which may boost land prices, and why it may be cheaper soon to own than to rent property.

LETTER NO. 12

Real estate deserves favorable consideration in plans for taking advantage of the sort of inflationary trend which is expected.

This applies to farm lands, suburban tracts, urban residence property, apartment houses, and certain types of commercial property.

But—cautions and qualifications go along with this general observation—the region, the city, the location within a city, the proximity to a city, your ability to get income from property while awaiting appreciation, your ability to manage, your ability to carry taxes and other costs. The following observations will suggest reasons why you may well acquire real estate, and also why there may be danger points.

But real estate is now moving up, belatedly.

For farm lands, the price in 1933 was $17.38 per acre, but in 1934 it was $20.00 per acre. (Sales of Federal Land Bank farms.)

For urban property, comparable figures are not available, but there is statistical evidence of decline of vacancies of apartments, houses and offices. Better markets for sale of repossessed properties are reported by building and loan associations. Rental rates for homes have increased, although in most localities it is still cheaper to rent than to build or buy.

These past improvements are not due directly to inflation, but rather to general business improvement. This will be true also of some future improvements. It is impossible to draw the line sharply between "natural" and "inflationary" influences.

FARM LAND OUTLOOK

Government policies are distinctly favorable to farm purchase.

Farms. The Farm Credit Administration has relieved gradually the pressure on farm debtors, and this is now showing up in a more stable and rising market for farms. Under proposed legislation, Farm Credit could lend up to 75 per cent of the value of farms purchased; this will make it easier for tenants and other would-be purchasers to get farms without the usual long waiting period for accumulation of savings.

Farm land taxes. The trend is still down, and has been lowered materially for the country as a whole during the depression. There is a movement in most sections to rely less on real property taxes, and more on sales taxes, income taxes, and the like. Good for farm lands.

Farm income. Government is making deliberate effort to boost it, in relation to other prices. This augurs well for farm ownership.

Caution on farms: Farm land as a hedge against inflation is not for everyone. You can't afford to buy a farm and let it lie idle, even in a rising market, for taxes, interest, depreciation, insurance and other charges would eat up a large part of the land price increment. The hiring of good management is possible, but is very difficult. If you know nothing about farming, you are apt to be stung. Many are.

INFLUENCES ON LAND VALUES

Influences which will boost land prices near big cities or in small communities within the business zone of big cities:

Industry is to be decentralized, snowly, unspectacularly. This means the spread of manufacturing outward from cities which are now centralized and congested, to communities 10, 20, 30 miles distant.

Highways and constantly better automobiles will promote the decentralization of cities.

City people of means are buying rural tracts near cities, for pleasure, as a hedge against unemployment, hedge against inflation. There is bound to be a good deal of this sort of thing in the future. People of small and moderate means are acquiring the idea of subsistence tracts, and government programs will promote the trend.

Thus most land near most cities seems due for gradual rise. This applies to suburban tracts, suburban corners suitable for business purposes, roadside real estate, crossroads where highways intersect.

Urban mortgage situation has been and still is notoriously bad. There is no ready market for city real estate bonds. Many of these bonds can be purchased from distressed holders at prices much less than their probable present or prospective worth. The RFC, however, is about to start a program of financing real estate trust companies which will advance money on these real estate bonds and underpin the market.

Home Owners' Loan Corporation has taken a large part of the distressed home mortgages out of the picture as a depressant, and will continue this procedure. Thus urban mortgage situation is improving.

BETTER HOMES POSSIBLE

Costs of financing, both for city homes and for farms, is declining and will decline further. The government push for lower interest means that an owner, with a given amount of annual outlay can "afford" a more expensive home or farm than at a higher interest. This is a bigger factor in the cost of homes than most people realize.

It also means that you will be able to refinance your outstanding mortgages at lower rates within the next few years.

Costs of building materials and building labor may come down slightly within the next few months, but it is probably safe to assume that there will be no great reduction in these items over the long pull of the next 4 or 5 years.

If you need a home, and if you are reasonably sure that you will "stay put" for years, now probably is as good a time to build or buy as you will have for several years. Probably cheaper now than at any time within next six years. Home ownership is a logical part of a program for protection against inflation—for most people.

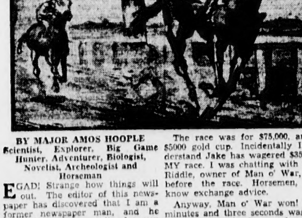

If you are leasing business property and are doing a profitable business, it may pay you to get a lease long enough to carry you through 1940 or 1941, the probable peak of the next boom.

If you own leasehold property, it may pay you to lease only for two years, with a view to getting a better long-term lease later.

Look back to Letter No. 8, which also deals with prospects and outlook on real estate.

THIS WAS A GOOD RACE, TOO, SAYS MAJOR HOOPLE

BY MAJOR AMOS HOOPLE
Scientist, Explorer, Big Game Hunter, Adventurer, Biologist, Novelist, Archeologist and Horseman

EGAD! Strange how things will out. The editor of this newspaper has discovered that I am a former newspaper man, and he has asked me to write for you my thoughts and expectations in connection with the greatest match race of the century . . . meaning, of course, the coming contest between Dreadnaught, my famous steed, and McNulty's nag.

Major Hoople

By jove! That reminds me of another match race. Recall you, when Man o' War contested with Sir Bartin? Ah! This was a good race, too. Note the picture above. It's the finish of the race. But, well might we say that it's the grand finish of my race . . . except that the horse trailing, is too close to the winner . . . Dreadnaught.

If my memory serves me correctly . . . and it usually does . . . 'twas back in 1920 . . . Oct 12, to be exact . . . at Kenilworth Park, Windsor, Ontario, Canada. The day was beautiful; the track was fast.

The race was for $75,000, and a $5000 gold cup. Incidentally I understand Jake has wagered $350 on MY race. I was chatting with Sam Riddle, owner of Man o' War, just before the race. Horsemen, you know exchange advice.

Anyway, Man o' War won! Two minutes and three seconds was the time . . . a track record, up to the time of Dreadnaught's coming race.

Well do I remember, toward the end of the Boer War, when bullets were whizzing all around my head.

Pardon me . . . we were discussing Man o' War, were we not? To be sure!

Well, frankly, I think Dreadnaught is a better runner than McNulty's nag. By the way, have you seen McNulty's nag? If so, what sort of a looking horse is he?

I know that my entry will give his best. In fact, I have turned all arrangements over to Jake. Everything is Jake Egad! I hope so. Ah, well, we Hooples must stick together.

What little left there is to be said about the coming race, Jake can tell you. I must be off to an engagement at the Owls' Club Great bunch, the Owls' Club fellows, what?

HUMANE MEDAL AWARD TODAY FOR HEROISM

One year ago Alexander Dunn, beltman and shaft oiler in the Edmonton shops of the Canadian National Railways, climbed under a train wreck near Tete Jaune on the Prince Rupert line and rescued Frank Sass, 22-year-old transient of Prince Rupert, from certain death.

Today Alexander Dunn will be presented with the Royal Canadian Humane Society's bronze medal "for saving life." Lady Baden-Powell will make the presentation at a public function.

The 54-year-old railroader, a passenger on the train which was wrecked by a slide on April 29, 1934, is one of those modest heroes who doesn't believe that bally-hoo has any place in bravery. Albeit he saved a life at the risk of his own, he becomes very embarrassed if one reminds him of his courageous feat.

Railway files tell the following story of Dunn's action:

It was 10 o'clock of the night in question. The C.N.R. westbound, a mixed train made up of fish cars and passenger coaches, snaked its way through the mountain defiles with its powerful locomotive light picking a beam-path in the inky darkness.

A rumbling roar . . . a shock . . . the tender is pitched from the rails down a 50-foot embankment. It is a mountain slide.

TRANSIENT TRAPPED

There are eight men on the tender—engineer, firemen and six trespassers. All but one are flung clear. Transient Frank Sass is hurled down a hole beneath the tender, a hole ripped out by the force of the slide.

Dangerous business, this. Men scurry around with the aid of lamps. A pitiful cry comes from under the tender. Helpless at the bottom of the hole, Sass, suffering six ribs broken at the spine, a broken leg and other injuries, is crying for aid.

Then Alexander Dunn came forward. Loaded with tons of fish, a wrecked car hung over the embankment. Large chunks of the supporting earth were giving away. Any minute the car might roll over and bury Sass beyond hope of rescue beneath tons of debris.

LIFE-IN-HANDS

Sizing up the situation, Dunn and a second unknown hero, decided to descend into the pit in an effort to save the injured man.

Rope and flares were secured and the two started their perilous descent. If the train tumbled, then it was "lights out." Half way down Dunn's unknown companion stopped. He argued that to go further would mean certain death. Dunn answered he wanted to hear what Sass was saying.

Arriving at the bottom of the pit, Alex spoke words of encouragement to the injured transient. A rope was thrown down, and with the help of his companion, who had overcome his momentary unwillingness to risk his life, the two passed the line about Sass' body and he was hauled to the surface.

A few minutes later the car plunged over, and flung its tonnage on the spot recently occupied by the rescued and his rescuers.

Trappers Find Test Balloon

SUDBURY, Ont., April 24.—A small balloon of a type sent up for meterological observations has been found by two Indian trappers in the bush 80 miles west of here. There were no identifying marks on the balloon to indicate from where it came or its purpose.

GOVERNMENT'S AUTOS GIVEN FINAL DEBATE

Issue Skidded on Proposal to Operate Upon Greatest Economy

Discussion of cabinet ministers and other government automobiles passed from the legislative lists on Tuesday when the house, on a vote of 30 to 14, adopted an amended motion, moved by R. M. McCool, U.F.A., Cochrane, that the house recommended "that the government provide for the necessary transportation of all civil servants, including cabinet ministers in the most economical way possible."

Mr. McCool moved his amendment to a motion of Hugh J. Montgomery, Liberal, Wetaskiwin, calling for the sale of all government-owned cars to effect a large saving to the taxpayers of the province.

Mr. McCool, in support of his amendment, contended that the 1934 cost to the province, of cars on a mileage basis would have been greatly in excess of the actual cost incurred.

It was also submitted by Mr. McCool that in some provinces the policy of providing government owned cars for civil servants and cabinet ministers had been partially discontinued and in most cases replaced by paying mileage for use of private cars.

PRODUCES COST BILL

George MacLachlan, U.F.A., Pembina adduced figures to supplement salient features of Mr. McCool's address and pointed out that over a five year period the ministers' cars, on a total operation cost for the five years of $1645, would cost $330 a year. This he contended was most moderate, when Dr. W. A. Atkinson, Conservative, Edmonton, had said that $1,000 was a proper income tax exemption for doctors operating their cars professionally.

Hugh C. Farthing, Conservative, Calgary submitted that in apportioning praise for wiping out motor cars for governments, Rt. Hon. Premier R. B. Bennett should not be forgotten as he had instituted the move. He was asked what allowance ministers received in lieu of cars.

Hon. F. S. Grisdale, minister of agriculture, recalled a visit to Saskatchewan and Ontario last summer when he encountered government cars and claimed the situation prevailing in both those provinces was not dissimilar to the situation here.

WESTERN SUPREME COURT

The house gave its unanimous endorsation to a resolution, moved by L. A. Giroux, Liberal, Grouard, that the Dominion government be urged to empower the Supreme Court of Canada "to hold sittings once a year in each of the western provinces and that the appeal books used before the Alberta appeal court could be used as well as typewritten factums and where the appellant has been successful at the trial before a trial judge he should not have to deposit or put up security for costs and further that the appellant need not put up or deposit securities where the decision of the Alberta appeal court was not unanimous."

Mr. Giroux put forward a brief but forceful argument in favor of the resolution.

After a brief discussion the house also adopted a motion by A. B. Claypool, U.F.A., Didsbury, adopting the report of the agricultural committee as a result of its sittings throughout the session.

LAND SCHEME DEBATE

Milton C. McKeen, U.F.A., Lac Ste. Anne, was strongly opposed to the $600 Dominion-provincial-municipal land settlement scheme and disassociated himself with it entirely.

George MacLachlan, U. F. A., Pembina, was convinced that the $600 scheme was only partially successful and mostly a failure.

The committee's report advocated continuation of the scheme as it had been "reasonably successful."

Mr. MacLachlan claimed there might be cases of where it was successful but these should not be used as points in favor of the scheme.

Donald MacLeod, U.F.A., Stony Plain, supported Mr. McKeen's remarks. He charged that a situation had been created as a result of this scheme and the legislature had failed to deal with it. As a result he was objecting and strenuously protesting the motion and declared the onus was with the government.

SAYS PLAN "CAMOUFLAGE"

L. A. Giroux, Liberal, Grouard, regretted that there was no constructive plan offered. He charged that the whole scheme was mere camouflage. Instead of being a back to the land scheme, it should be described as a back to the bush enterprise. This country, he contended, was large and wealthy enough to make each party to the agreement contribute $600. He suggested a scheme embracing the expenditure of $50,000,000 on a three-way basis.

Hon. Hugh W. Allen, minister of lands and mines thought it was only a utopian dream to suggest such a scheme in addition to granting relief. He thought the scheme as a whole, while not entirely a provincial scheme, was a sincere effort to get people re-started in life. He also could agree with those who contended that increased relief would meet the situation. He agreed that lack of medical aid was one of the most distressing features of the situation in rural areas.

FAIL TO AGREE

Fred J. White, provincial Labor leader told of a conference with municipal authorities and the government earlier in the day and the delegates inability to agree on the division of cost of "extras." Mr. White re-told of the manner of division of the $600. Extra costs should be borne by the municipality sending out the men and he was not in agreement with this.

"On behalf of the cities I protest the government's attitude on this matter," he said.

Hon. F. S. Grisdale, minister of agriculture dealt with various aspects of the scheme and pointed out that instructions had been issued to inspectors to make sure land settled under the scheme was fit for farming. He also recalled that municipalities never had signed any agreement regarding the scheme.

Danubian Parley Limits Nations

ROME, April 24.—Only the nations which are neighbors of Austria will be invited by France and Italy to the forthcoming Danubian conference, it was said here last night.

It was said, however, that if after the conference gets underway the question of rearmament of Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria comes into the discussion, Rumania also will be invited.

DAIRY BILL IS LAST FOR ACTION IN LEGISLATURE

The last bill to be dealt with by the fifth session of Alberta's seventh legislature was one to amend the Dairymen's Act. Introduced on Tuesday morning by A. B. Claypool, U.F.A., Didsbury, the measure was passed through the various stages of discussion throughout the day, and finally was given assent on the House proroguing.

The bill contains no new principles other than the original bill, but contains some new provisions.

The main provision is that every motor vehicle owned and operated to carry cream to a creamery shall be licensed.

Certain exceptions are provided, such as motor vehicles owned and operated by the producer of cream and used by him to carry cream produced by him so long as such vehicle is not used for the carriage of cream produced by any other person.

No person shall accept for carriage to a creamery or carry to a creamery for hire, gain or reward any cream in any motor vehicle which is required to be licensed by the Act and is not so licensed.

The Board of Public Utilities Commissioners is empowered to prescribe tariffs for transportation of cream.

Various regulations of transportation of cream are provided for.

Swedish Prince Commends Scouts As Peace Factor

STOCKHOLM, April 24.—Prince Gustaf Adolf, eldest son of the Swedish Crown Prince, last night described the Boy Scout movement as an important world peace factor. The Prince is honorary leader of the Scout movement in Sweden.

The occasion for the speech was the observance of the festival day of St. George, the patron saint of the Boy Scouts, and of England. It also served as an invitation to the international Scout meeting in Sweden this summer.

Ontario To Probe Education Fully

TORONTO, April 24.—A committee will be appointed shortly by the Ontario government to inquire into the whole final structure of education, Hon. Paul Leduc, Ontario Minister of Mines, told the Separate School Trustees section of the Ontario Education Association Tuesday.

HOT WEATHER POLITICS

The experts at Ottawa seem to have finally solved all the constitutional equations and reached a conclusion that parliament will die a natural death on August 18th, unless it is dissolved in the meantime, or its life extended by arbitrary decision like that of 1916.

An election need not be held before the expiry of the legal term of the present parliament, though the writ for an election must be issued before August 18th. The most popular guess at the capital is said to be that dissolution will occur in June, the fires of campaign controversy rage through the sweltering days of July and August, and the voters go to the polls about the time the children go back to school.

If the object were to pick a time of the year when the political vitality of the electorate is at low ebb, the season when farmers are busy with their crops and town folks are away on holiday would seem to be about the best choice possible.

A FINE CANADIAN

Death has called Senator H. S. Beland. Back in war days he was one of the most widely known, and one of the most universally esteemed, of the men in Canadian public life. He had no political enemies, and the general admiration with which he was regarded was strongly tinged with sympathetic personal interest.

It was Dr. Beland's fortune when the war broke out to be honeymooning in Switzerland. He hastened to Belgium, the homeland of his wife, and placed his services at a medical doctor at the disposal of the little nation then fighting the modern and greater Thermopylae. He was captured by the invading forces, and spent three years in a German prison camp.

The story of his experiences, told with characteristic modesty, and singularly without bitterness, will not be forgotten by those in Edmonton and other cities who crowded large public halls to hear him. With his passing a very fine Canadian gentleman and a talented public man has been lost.

FINISH THE JOB

It is estimated that about $13,000 would complete the short-cut scenic drive from east Jasper to the Highlands. Seventy per cent of the work was done the summer before last, and the project then suspended pending the securing of a loan from the Dominion.

This is therefore in the nature of an undertaking already on the agenda and postponed merely for lack of funds. The money is now available, from the federal loan secured last fall, and the highway should be carried to completion.

The cost will not make a serious enough inroad upon the half-million loan to interfere with the carrying out of a large program of street gravelling and other desirable improvements.

The nature of the undertaking is such that a large proportion of the money spent would go in wages for hand labor, thus meeting the need of employment for idle men and reacting to lighten the outlay for direct relief.

There is the added consideration that until the road is completed the money already spent on it can be of little benefit to the public.

PITY KNOWS NO BOUNDS

The earthquake in Formosa killed as many people as live in one of the smaller cities of Alberta, injured many times the number, and left homeless a multitude equal to one-third of the entire population of this province. The suffering involved and the property loss are beyond present calculation.

Fortunately, since the island is a Japanese possession, there will be no lack of resources, or of efficiency, for doing what is possible to care for the injured and destitute and to restore the material damage. Japanese administrators, doctors and nurses know from experience what is required in such circumstances, and they have ample means at their disposal to deal with the situation. Foreign assistance of any kind is probably not needed.

But wherever newspapers are read there is horror that such a calamity should befall, and genuine feeling for the victims. Divided as we are in tribes and races and clans, with line fences and governments to protect our group interests, it is still true that "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin." We are all in the larger sense creatures of circumstance, and humane impulses do not stop at boundary lines.

A WORTH WHILE SAVING

There will be general agreement that the legislature acted wisely in instructing the Provincial Government to extend the agreement with the Dominion Government by which the policing of the province is carried on by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The alternative was to undertake the reestablishment of a provincial police force, such as existed five years ago.

To maintain the provincial force cost the province $550,000 a year. For the services of the Mounties in enforcing provincial law the province has been contributing $225,000 per year, which may have to be raised to $300,000. Money is not everything, but the saving of $250,000 a year is something worth while at any time, and particularly worth while when the Provincial Treasurer has to report deficits past, present and to come.

The enforcement of provincial law by the Mounties has not of course been without criticism. But there was also criticism when the law was being enforced by a provincial body. As the polcie in either instance act under direction of the Provincial Government, it is the Government—not the police—who are responsible for the policy upon which the law enforcement is based.

The advantage of the present arrangement is that it saves to the province the money formerly wasted in maintaining a provincial force to operate over territory where the Mounted Police also must operate for federal purposes. One police force is cheaper than two; $250,000 a year cheaper so far as concerns provincial finances.

Poems That Live

TO A LITTLE GIRL

Her eyes are like forget-me-nots,
So loving, kind and true;
Her lips are like a pink sea-shell
Just as the sun shines through;
Her hair is like the waiving grain

And, best of all, her little soul
Is, like a lily, white.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Coming events are said to cast their shadows before them.

A reader of this column vouches for the following. He says he saw Mr. Shields, a prominent supporter in the Legislature of the retiring U.F.A. government, coming out of the library, carrying a book.

J. S. Cowper

Curious to know the taste in literature of Mr. Shields, he drew near and took a peep at the title.

The title of the book was "And Seven Came Back."

My informant thinks the number too optimistic to be a true prophecy.

A man with a simple outlook on life, like myself, is apt to feel awed in the presence of bridge players who with one spade in their hand will bid five spades—and make it.

So we must be grateful for the reporting of the recent championship match between Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson and Mr. and Mrs. Hal P. Sims. It restores my soul. Studying their table talk, I'm beginning to believe that these supposed super-men are ordinary clay, after all, and more indebted to their wives than to their own abilities for their success as bridge players. How's this from the New York Times report of the battle of the century:

As the official scorer chalked up 450 points on the Culbertson side for the three undertricks, Mr. Sims spoke to his wife:

"Darling," he said, "must I tell you every time that a king and one, in a suit I've bid three times, is worth a raise?"

"But, Hal," Mrs. Sims replied, "I thought——"

"Thought!" thundered her husband. "How many times have I told you not to think. Just do what I tell you."

He talked just like an ordinary husband to his wife.

The difference is that "Darling" didn't talk back, or pull an automatic out of her purse and plug the so and so, as an ordinary wife would. She meekly obeyed orders not to think—or did she reserve her thoughts and a snappy comeback till after the reporters had left?

It's wives like that who make their husbands famous as bridge players.

Nudism in several aspects, has made the front pages in the past week. A couple of blackmailers in New York have been arrested for reviving the old racket whereby through trick photography the face of the victim—sometimes a man and sometimes a woman—was photographed on the nude body of a degenerate. Time was when a photograph was accepted as undeniable proof; the movies have taught the public that trick photography can lie as easily as the photographer. Witness the picture reproduced in The Bulletin on April 1, showing Stalin, Mussolini and Hitler lined up at a soup kitchen.

Young gentlemen pursuing higher education at Guelph deny—and produce statements from their victims as proof—that they stripped four young women who intruded upon their campus. Apparently all they did was to hustle them along, smear their faces with shoe polish and mercurochrome, and spill cod liver oil on their dresses.

If miners from the Coal Branch had done this to four young girls—though the suggestion is beyond imagination—they'd send Mounted Police up there. Squads of irate citizens armed with shotguns would make sure the miscreants did not escape the penitentiary. As these happen to be young gentlemen who never soil their hands except when daubing shoe polish, mercurochrome and cod liver oil on helpless and unoffending girls, nothing more serious than a reproving report will ensue.

I'll wager these collegiate sadists are of the type of nincompoop who sheepishly removes his hat in a public elevator if a strange woman enters—though the woman is unknown to him. They act by impulse, whether inflicting cruelty or posing as gallants. If they acted by reason they'd do neither.

An item in The Bulletin last week told of the nudist play now running in New York. It's called, "The Girl From Child's in 1950."

Nudists have nothing to do with the play or its promotion. Some shrewd manager or playwright probably saw in nudism a chance to attract the sort of people who are attracted by nakedness. They must have been disappointed if they expected to see another "Girl in the Bathtub" show.

I've seen some of the pictures of the play and read several criticisms. The butler wears a collar and tie round his neck, a pair of black shorts, and black shoes and socks. The intervening spaces are bare. The waitress wears a sort of white jumper and has bare legs and thighs. Do you call that nudism.

It is announced that the play is intended to "openly espouse the movement of nudism" and that all the players are exponents of nudism. Organized nudists say they know neither the manager nor any of the players. The manager admits he has never been in a nudist camp. While the show is more fleshy than flashy, it exploits nakedness rather than nudism.

This column had a narrow escape of obtaining some first-hand information about nudism as it is practised in a lakeside camp outside Chicago. Mr. D. C. Jenkins of The Bulletin staff, took a few weeks away last summer from the brain-racking task of writing headlines, to visit the World's Fair at Chicago. Hearing of a nudist camp, he drove there and tried to crash the gate by representing himself as desirous of inspecting the quarters before taking the "health treatment." The guardian of the gate didn't let him get very far inside.

"Was the guardian quite nude at the interview," I asked in my innocence.

"No; he was wearing horn-rimmed glasses," Mr. Jenkins assures me.

"Jenks" had more success on the Midway.

We are not seeking to chirp any Pollyanna doctrine nor to paint a rainbow in a drab and colorless sky. Conditions are bad, as we in this section of Alberta know. Don't let any person delude himself, however. Conditions could readily be a great deal worse—something we do not care to see.—Hanna Herald.

Some Symptoms of "Sick" Gall Bladder

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

The symptoms of a mild, long-standing case of gall bladder inflammatoin are most likely to resemble the symptoms of stomach trouble. Any of the symptoms commonly found in indigestion may be present. The outstanding complaints are an unpleasant sense of fullness in the stomach which comes on after eating, accompanied by belching and excessive gas. Or, the patient may say she has a sour stomach, and is bothered by a bitter-tasting fluid which comes up in the throat.

Dr. F. McCoy

The stomach may feel heavy and the patient may mention nausea. Due to the nature of her symptoms, it is easy for her to think she has something wrong with the stomach. Most of the trouble appears an hour or two after eating. The digestive symptoms as listed above are found just about twice as often in chronic gall bladder inflammation as symptoms which would lead the patient to believe the trouble is in the organ actually affected, such as a pain in the gall bladder region.

As the case progresses, definite gall bladder symptoms may arise, such as a pain on the right side, near the liver, together with a heavy, dragging sensation. This may take the form of a dull, disagreeable sensation which is not a real pain but more like a nagging discomfort. Most of the distress is in the upper right side of the abdomen but the pain may reflex and appear as an ache under the right shoulder blade.

Once in a while the patient may have a headache or attacks of vomiting and a pressure of the fingers over the gall bladder may locate a tender area. The patient in describing this will say, "It doesn't feel sore unless I press on it."

The causes of "sick" gall bladder are: overeating over a period of years; lack of exercise; and other habits of living which are "not good" such as allowing sluggish elimination to persist, over-indulgence in sweets and pastries, etc.

In order to find out definitely that the gall bladder is causing most of the symptoms, a complete examination is necessary, during which a careful study of the case is made. A physical examination alone may show little or nothing, as palpation over the gall bladder may yield little information especially if the gall bladder is shrunken. Usually about all the doctor has to judge from is the way the patient says she feels. I believe that a dependable diagnosis may be made only if considerable time is spent on the case. I advise that the fluoroscopic x-ray be used in studying the stomach and upper intestinal tract. Also any x-ray pictures needed should be made. If the report on the examination thus far shows that the stomach is normal, the possibility that the gall bladder is the cause of the trouble is strengthened.

I then advise that a special test be made of the gall bladder which will show whether the organ is sluggish and not doing its work as it should. By the use of the particular test I have described, the patient is given a dye which is absorbed by the gall bladder and which makes it possible to take a picture of this organ with the x-ray. With the gall bladder visualized, the doctor is in a position to study the organ without cutting into the covering over it and with no discomfort to the patient.

The direct test of the gall bladder also tells whether or not gall stones are likely to be present. At the end of the thorough examination, it is determined if most of the blame for the troublesome symptoms are to be placed on the gall bladder.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—Mrs. Frank K. writes: "What is the best way for the expectant mother to protect her teeth?"

ANSWER—The expectant mother should receive the attention of a dentist as early as possible. Any teeth which need filling should be given care and the teeth should be cleaned at least once. The best diet to protect the teeth during this period is one which provides plenty of calcium. Food calcium may be obtained from orange juice, milk and the green leafy vegetables. If the patient is to get the good out of the calcium after it is eaten, it is also necessary for her to obtain sunlight as the ultra violet rays of the sun enable her to make use of the calcium. If, it is impossible to get enough sunshine, it may be a good plan to have her use a vitamin D preparation to take the place of the vitamin D which would otherwise be manufactured in the body from exposure to sunlight. The same diet which protects the mother's teeth also build strong teeth in the infant so that both benefit.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

On April 25 anticipated troubles are not likely to be realized. Favorable changes in conditions are very likely to alter those that have appeared unfavorable. It is advisable for you to maintain an optimistic mental attitude. Economic conditions affecting business probably will have a stabilizing result. Married and engaged couples will avoid getting into quarrels if they steer clear of arguments.

If a woman and April 25 is your birthday and if you have not already developed a talent you possess, it is about time you started to do so. Nature probably has endowed you with a fine speaking or singing voice. You are admirably suited for married life and should obtain through it a great deal of happiness.

The child born on April 25 when it graduates from high school, may be inclined not to wish to go through college. It might be advisable to do everything possible to persuade it to change its mind.

If a man and April 25 is your natal day, be careful you do not let a lack of self confidence cause you not to put forth the effort you should to climb the ladder of success. You have ability which only requires an earnest endeavor to be made for it to gain recognition.

SIDE GLANCES —By George Clark

"Alfred's heart isn't in his work under the new mayor."

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date, in 1885, was fought the battle of Fish Creek, in the Saskatchewan rebellion.

It was perhaps the most unfortunate incident of the whole campaign. Clearly General Middleton was outwitted by Gabriel Dumont, Riel's field commandant. The militia was advancing towards Batoche, on both sides of the Saskatchewan river. Not long after the advance early in the morning rebel scouts opened fire upon the advance guard, killing some of the horses and wounding two or three of their riders. Middleton ordered the 90th, of Winnipeg, under Capt. F. L. Clarke, to advance. They did so and with the aid of "C" Company Infantry School Corps, captured a small knoll. But they were at once ordered to retire, whereupon the rebels took repossession which involved another needless charge by the 90th, a fatal mistake for them. In the subsequent operations Middleton was cleverly outmanoeuvred by Dumont and after a day's fighting the rebels got away in safety leaving only a few dead on the ground.

The militia casualties were 12 killed and 35 wounded. The killed were: 90th Regiment: Private Ferguson, Private Hutchinson, Private Wheeller, Lt. Swinford, Corporal Lethbridge, Pte. Ennis, Captain Clarke; "A" Battery: Driver Harrison, Gunner Dananally, Gunner Cook, Gunner Ainsworth; "C" School: Private Watson.

All accounts agree that if the militia could have had their way they would have cleaned out the rebels in the ravine, as they did later at Batoche, but Middleton refused to sacrifice any more lives. Major Boulton wrote of this engagement: "No greater bravery, heroism, devotion to duty or discipline could have been expected from any troops than was manifested at this unequal fight at Fish Creek. There was no wavering, no thought of a retreat, but rather a dogged determination to hold their ground under the galling fire of an unseen enemy."

Dumont himself admitted having 280 expert rifle shots under his command. Fewer than 300 infantry were engaged, all unused to fighting, unaccustomed to the country. The odds were against them, but they stood their ground and averted disaster.

Is it any wonder that Winnipeg remembers them each year by decorating their monument?

Current Comment

PUBLIC CREDIT FOR PUBLIC USE

The demand today is for provision of credits through the Central Bank for public undertakings which will be a permanent asset to the people. Lethbridge wants permanent streets. Properly maintained these streets would still be an asset 100 years from now. Why, it is asked, cannot the Central Bank issue credit against the asset to be created by the building of a permanent street system here giving the money at one per cent interest, and allowing the issue to be retired over 50 years? At three per cent Lethbridge could retire the bonds in 50 years, and the city and the nation would still have the asset created. Why could not some such plan be provided right across the country where permanent assets are required by communities? Why couldn't that be done in the case of permanent highways? Surely that is one way the credit of the society which is Canada could be used for the alleviation of the present distress. —Lethbridge Herald.

AUSTRALIA

The Commonwealth government has had a surplus instead of a deficit each year, aggregating in three years £6,160,000 for the Commonwealth itself; and the States have gradually improved their position. At the end of the present financial year, on June 30, we hope again to have a small surplus, while the deficit of the States should be down to about £5,000,000 in the aggregate. So, whereas we were looking three or four years ago to a deficit of $40,000,000, the Commonwealth now has balanced budgets and the States have been steadily reducing their deficits, to a point where budgetary equilibrium is in sight.

And during this difficult period, the Commonwealth has assisted primary producers—mainly wheat growers—to the extent of about £13,000,000; we have assisted the States to a much greater extent than was the case before; we have reduced taxation all round, and tariffs have also been substantially reduced.—Premier J. A. Lyons, speaking in London.

FRANCE

In one respect the renewed fall of the pound, whatever its cause, will intensify the internal difficulties of France. On the basis of a conservative estimate, France has now one million unemployed; declining industrial activity and a modest anticipation of a twenty-million-francs deficit. Flandin's credit policy now seems not so much a constrictive monetary program as a device for meeting the treasury's borrowing needs. On the other hand, devaluation, which would in many ways be the easiest way out, appears to be politically impossible. This has been emphasized continually in many previous articles but the situation has now reached such an acute stage that there is grave concern as to whether the Flandin government can last much longer. Political unrest is wide-spread. The peasants in practically all agricultural districts are staging demonstrations in opposition to the provisions of the recent wine and wheat laws; exporting syndicates are using their influence to bring pressure to bear on the government to remove the artificially high value of the franc in competition with other currencies; importing interests are bringing pressure to bear on the government to remove the artificially high tariffs and quota restrictions which have created a state of stagnation in the import trade. —The Magazine of Wall Street.

REACTIONS

One of the most interesting signs of the movement of opinion is that in the last few months there has been much greater public out-spokenness about the advance effects of British protection. The Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom, in its annual report is, for instance, much blunter than it was a year or two years ago.

"Tariffs, quotas, and agricultural subsidies (it says) have been deliberately imposed with the object of producing in this country goods which would have been imported. They have therefore necessarily deprived shipping not only of inward cargoes but of the outward cargoes which would have been exported to pay for the excluded imports, and restricted the opportunities for the export of British shipping services which have always been an important means of payment for imports, with consequent injury to the shipping industry, shipbuilding, engineering, and other industries wholly or partly dependent upon it."

The Chamber concedes that there has been an increase in the trade of the British Empire, while that of other countries has remained stationary or even continued to decline. But "a small increase in the British share of world trade is cold comfort when that trade has been seriously curtailed in volume." — Manchester Guardian.

The portly amateur soprano wanted a job in non-stop variety. She went to interview an agent and showed him a list of the "numbers" she could sing. The agent glanced through it and then looked at the girl.

"You'v got a pretty big repertoire, haven't you?"

"Well," replied the singer, with a slight blush, "it's the singing that develops one, you know."

The Long Adjournment And The Cost

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

The present Parliament of Canada is through in more ways than one. Using all possible despatch it would be possible to hold the General Election and have the New Administration ready to take office by August 6 next, being the end of the five years term of the present Government.

The proposal that Parliament adjourn for a couple of months so that the Prime Minister can attend the King's Jubilee in London—and then reconvene for a Summer Session, means that the year 1936 will follow the preceding five years into the voracious grinding machine of the consuming deflation, and will also cost Canada at least one-half a million dollars.

No one can reasonably suggest that Canada is able to afford or should be called upon to face an outlay of half a million dollars, in order that any man, no matter how magnificent his stage presence, strut momentarily across the London stage in the course of the Jubilee functions.

No one can reasonably suggest that Canada should be called upon to suffer another year of deflation, involving millions of people in a constantly increasing intensity of loss of assets, homes, physical faculties and hope, for the sake of adding another public appearance to the career of the Prime Minister.

Nothing could be more directly calculated to undermine public confidence in our Parliamentary Institutions, than the deliberate delay in giving the electors that immediate voice in directing the course of government of this nation to which they have full immediate right today; and the unnecessary waste of at least half a million dollars of public money in stalling the electors out of their rights for another six months, involving the destruction of all constructive remedial action during the year 1935.

Thus stated, in true outline, one is struck by the unfortunate state of political mind in this nation today; the needs and losses and continued sufferings of millions of people being subordinated to the gilded magnificence of a purely sentimental ceremonial.

Parliament can place on record its sincere loyalty and good wishes to the Monarchy by appropriate resolutions and have these resolutions delivered by the Canadian High Commissioner. This will serve every honest purpose and will involve no extra expense. Unless the High Commissioner is qualified to represent Canada in this way, there has been a wastage of many millions of dollars in maintaining a High Commissioner in London.

Subject to passing these resolutions, the only useful present function of the present Parliament will be the passing of a resolution providing for an immediate General Election. Any other course will involve deliberate delay and unnecessary waste of public money.

Even a sense of humor, should there be no sense of honor, would prevent the members of Parliament being sent home for two months, strictly on the defensive, and without anything to do except idly wave the flag while millions continue to suffer. No amount of band music in London will feed anybody in Canada—and His Majesty would be more truly served, and would more greatly appreciate constructive remedial effort at home in Canada, than impressive stage presence in London.

SLAVERY?

Editor, Bulletin: I wish to state that when I cook, sew, and care for my home I believe I have earned the right for my husband to support me, but I'm not a beggar, a pauper nor a vampire, and therefore I don't want Mr. Aberhart's social credit $25 that I have not earned, and neither does any independent, self-respecting citizen of Alberta. I'd rather live on potatoes and salt, with a raw carrot for dessert, that I grew myself, and whittle myself a pair of wooden clogs than beg $25 from Alberta.

Would Mr. Aberhart and his hand-picked fanatics reduce us all to a common serfdom or communism? Never! There are thousands of children of pioneers here who have worn home-spun stockings and drugget, and others who have seen their parents live on boiled wheat and rabbits, and are we going to put them to shame? Rise up, independent Albertans, don't sell your vote for a bogus $25, for your self-respect is worth more than that.

But what of the independent unemployed citizens? They deserve a job in order to earn a living. Why not have a peace army in order to battle against the conditions that have reduced our country to this state. There would be millions for investment if people were not afraid. If you had a million would you invest it in Alberta right now? Does the Aberhart propaganda make you glad you own anything in this province?

Put our peace army in uniforms suitable for farming, road-making, mining, etc., and our unemployed women in uniforms suitable for female occupations. Pay them wages according to their ability and soon we would have a new hardy race of pioneer citizens, and not whining beggars. These basic occupations would bring work for hundreds of others such as doctors, nurses, bookkeepers, lumbermen, carpenters, railroaders, etc., and a definite program of real work could be financed with real money, government bonds, where Aberhart's proposals would make our money as valuable as a German mark after the war.

Besides old age pensions there is just one thing we should have free in Alberta if we are to survive, and that is the best maternity care for the mothers and babies. What a beautiful lesson the care of the Dionne babies is. Every Alberta baby should be given a medal with his name, date and place of birth inscribed thereon. When a woman performs the highest function of which she is capable by giving birth to an immortal soul to glorify God forever, and a body and mind to benefit humanity and our country, the best is none too good for that woman.

If Mr. Aberhart were sincere in his proposals to help the unemployed he would offer them work and real money; but no, he offers everybody $25 to catch the sucker vote.

The deeds of our brave boys in Flanders Fields gave Canadians a superiority complex. Hard times are reducing our mentality to an inferiority complex but it is Mr. Aberhart's proud honor to saddle us with the beggar complex.

VIEWPOINTS DIFFER

Editor Bulletin: It is surprising how many different interpretations you can hear of the Douglas system—every student seems to have a different viewpoint — colored by his own particular pet convictions.

The late A. R. Orage says, "You sweat when you study Douglas." Is it any wonder that lesser men get confused.

Most governments could find some comfort in his teaching of the fallacy of the "balanced budget" creed for a government, while the orthodox accountant will squirm. Major Douglas made some reference to this when in Edmonton—it was implied in the things listed by governments as liabilities — being the invested funds in public utilities against which bond loans were outstanding, without the corresponding physical valuations such as public works, roads and other community owned posessions appearing as a corresponding capital asset against the listed bond debt, because of the facts that the revenue for such utilities is recovered indirectly in other forms of taxation.

Mr. Tuttle in his work—section 89 lists those things which Douglas sets up as National Liabilities—being national debt, bankers (as potential creators of effective demand) insurance companies (mortgage and bond holders), cash at call and taxation for public services.

What a reversal of commonly accepted economic thinking this must represent.

No, I didn't make a mistake—you borrow Mr. Cowper's copy and look it up; or better still get a copy for yourself and see it explained. Taxation a liability! Why all these municipal financial reports list their taxes as assets.

The more you study this man's work the deeper grows the conviction of his penetrative analysis of national economics.

Even his terms eventually display a whole philosophy in epigram—take "Economic Democracy" or the economic rule of all the people; how apt, when you realize that his principles imply the absolute right of all the people to have purchasing power to enjoy the points of the national production — that without the value established by their need as consumers or users; production is futile or profitless.

How consumer demand directs all the economic activity of a state when the means to purchase are available to all those who can use production profitably. How a demand which is not exercised disrupts the machinery of distribution; and his uncovering of hidden wealth in his references to unearned increment, or that wealth which accrues to the financial system automatically by their usurpation of sovereign powers arising out of their being entrusted with the monetary policy of states.

His proposed remedy mechanism based on a ratio of production to consumption, and the factors which keep it in balance.

How long before his works become standard in the curriculum of our higher educational seats of learning, as a supplementary subject in civics.

SHORTAGE OF BUYING POWER

Editor Bulletin: Mr. J. W. Fraser challenges Mrs. Rogers' and Mr. Aberhart's interpretation of Douglas. I challenge Mr. Fraser's.

Where does Douglas propose to restore to the people what has been taken from them in excess profits? Unless it be bankers' hidden profits, from banking policy.

Mr. Fraser denies that "banks create credit out of thin air." The Encyclopaedia Britannica states, "Bankers create the means of payment out of nothing." The Rt. Hon. R. McKenna, chairman of Midland Bank admits, "Every loan creates a deposit," and Maynard Keynes, leading economist says, "There can be no doubt banks create all purchasing power."

Mr. Fraser, without troubling to study it, thinks he can dispose of the A and B theory by misquoting it. "If you trace down the $1000 that a buyer pays for a car you can see that every cent of it ultimately gets into the hands of other individuals, every one of whom is a consumer."

The whole point is the "ultimately," because time is the essence of the theory. Douglas says, "the rate of flow of prices is always greater than the rate of flow of purchasing power." If that is true you cannot bake bread with flour being milled, and that the mill will never turn with the water that has passed.

Another cause of lack of purchasing power is loss of wages due to machinery, the wages of the machine must be distributed if the products are to be sold.

The theory that wages paid out for capital goods production completely restore the balance is a fallacy and is analysed in the Report of the Economic Committee of the city of Southampton (Eng.): "A manufacturer of hats has no actual money, but has title of £15,000 of government securities. He decides to build a factory and turn it into a company by offering shares to the public when a going concern. He borrows £5,000 from his bank to build the factory, and we will assume that the whole £5,000 becomes purchasing power. He then borrows another £5,000 to buy machinery. The machine maker has produced the machinery by a credit-loan from his bank, and we will assume he has distributed the £5,000 as purchasing power to the public, which therefore has been enriched by £10,000.

"The hat-maker now gets the machinery and pays over the £5,000. This enables the machine-maker to repay his bank loan, and in effect, the debt has been transferred to the hat-maker.

"There is now in existence a hat factory valued at £10,000, and the public possesses an equivalent amount of money. The hat-maker sells shares to the public to the extent of £10,000. In effect he re-collects from the "common purchasing power pool" of the public the £10,000 distributed in respect of the factory and plant. The bank-loan is repaid and cancelled.

"There is now in existence a factory costing £10,000, but no money corresponding to this cost. When the factory starts production it must, of necessity, change into prices a proportion of the £10,000, representing interest on capital and depreciation. The community does not possess the money to meet this charge.

"Let us assume the hat-maker, having got his first factory going, employ, the same £10,000 credit-loan from the bank to carry out a similar undertaking, and so on until he has four factories producing hats. It is plain the same £10,000 has now been responsible for factories and machinery costing £40,000. Depreciation and interest will be charged on £40,000, without the public having the equivalent purchasing power to meet these costs.

"If it is borne in mind that in modern industry there are several processes, and each stage capital charges arise in the same manner, it will be seen that the final cost of a product will be heavily loaded in respect of these capital costs, which the public will be unable to liquidate. As the factory and machinery costs attaching to modern production are progressively increasing, the defect becomes more and more pronounced."

That is the opinion of experts, appointed to study the problem by one of the greatest ports in the world.

What the banks thought of the Douglas analysis can best be gauged by the fact that on its publication the English bankers subscribed £5 million to keep it out of the press.

Why do not Mr. Fraser, and other critics, claim a few millions by proving Douglas Social Credit a fallacy? Perhaps they do!

WAKE UP CITIZENS

Editor, Bulletin: It is generally believed that the Edmonton Journal is a Conservative paper, and the Bulletin is a Liberal one.

Assuming that the Bulletin is a party paper and Liberal in conception, then we, the readers, can not praise it too highly for the impartial stand it assumed on different policies being expounded at the present time. The Bulletin prints in every paper a large selection of letters on different topics, regardless of class or creed, and I think I am safe in saying that the letter box and the Passing Show are two of the many interesting parts of your paper at present.

Social credit is now the most discussed topic of the day, and it will be a policy that the people of this province will have to decide on at the next election.

There are many points in this scheme that I can not clearly comprehend, although I can grasp the fundamental principles of the Douglas system. It is a progressive program and as such it should be given the most profound consideration. I think it is in keeping with progress as our old system has broken down and we must prepare a substitute.

If someone would arise at the present day and preach the capitalistic system as it is and as we are being tyranized by it, that is if we were governed by some other system, the people would take to violence to rid themselves of such a prospect, the opposition that Mr. Aberhart is given would seem insufficient to what that would be.

Let us see some of these knockers come out and offer us something better when they say social credit can't work. Any idea will be welcome.

We do not believe in going backward, as long as it will work and benefit the people, let them call it by any name. Action and progress is what we desire.

Let us wake up. Brother Citizen and do our part to check the terrible fate that may be in store for us.

IT CAN'T BE DONE.

Editor, Bulletin: Next month Major Dougles will be here to tell us again it can't be done. His visit will cost the province $13,000, but will be worth it if it kills the social credit racket.

The bait in the Aberhart scheme is that $25 per month. There is only one way to raise $25 a month for all, and that is by heavy taxation. Individual incomes, we are told now, will be taxed forty per cent. and wheat will be taxed 45c a bushel. If a farmer raises 3000 bushels of wheat he will be taxed $1350. But the butcher, barber, baker and banker will get their $25 per month. It will create business, they tell us. As a revolving credit it will come back to you, we are told. Something like a rubber cheque, I suppose.

Ten million dollars will be made to do the work of $120,000,000 per year, or $600,000,000 in five years. We are due for something more astonishing than the magic carpet of the Arabian Nights or the Indian Rope Trick. Houdini and Thurstan were pikers compared with this Calgary teacher of mental gymnastics.

Here are the views of three social creditors writing to the press:

The Journal, April 15th.

J. Kaufman suggests that the local psychiatrist should go to see the people over their social credit tendencies.

The Journal, April 8th.

P. M. Fildes suggests that the $25.00 monthly dividend notes should be issued in five $5 notes, for the storekeeper might run short of change if he sold five cents worth and paid back $24.95. (I'll bet he will be short of change. Four 5-cent sales and he will be out just $100.00).

The Journal, April 15th.

Hector P. Smith comes to the aid of P. M. Fildes and says that the basic dividend certificates are neither cash nor printed matter. (I wonder what they are, sour grapes, hot tamale, or what?) What is a basic dividend certificate Manning?

Anyway, all you have to do is to write out a social credit certificate.

We should keep some of these views to show Major Douglas.

But listen to this one. Somebody has been looking for the local psychiatrist, so that he could register for his $25 per month.

I want to tell the social creditors that they cannot register with me or anyone else for their $25 per month.

LOCAL PSYCHIATRIST.

J.E.B. AND SOCIAL CREDIT

Editor, Bulletin: Mr. Brownlee says "it won't work." He bravely stands up before the microphone and says, "It won't work." As no one can argue with him over the radio, as a lawyer he knows "it won't work."

Let's look back for a minute to 1867 when the B.N.A. Act came into being. It was passed, or rather it was built to suit the conditions at that time. There was no roads, no highways, no telephones, no radio and no airplanes. One of my forefathers was M.P. for our part of the country.

He had two ways to get to parliament. He could go to Godrich on horseback. Take a boat via Lake Huron, Lake St. Clair, and lake Erie. Go overland to Hamilton, take a boat from there to a little port near Brockville and overland the rest of the way.

After the session was over he could return the same way. Of course he could have walked three or four hundred miles through the bush. That was up to him.

Most of the members went there for the good of the country. There was nothing said about wages. But on account of loss of time and private business, it was agreed to give each a "sessional indemnity." Not for wages, but to counter balance loss in their business on account of their absence.

The B.N.A. Act was built on those conditions and worked well enough in that day. Now let's look at it from a present day standpoint. You can talk to Toronto for $3.50; Vancouver $1.50. To England for $36.00. You can send a telegram to Halifax and have an answer in six minutes. J. E. Brownlee can talk on the radio to a million people if they will listen, and he may make good social creditors pay for the broadcast, for all I know. You can travel from here to Ottawa in three days and go by 'plane a lot quicker. But your sessional indemnity has turned into wages for professional politicians, in most cases who have no private business as long as they can keep their front feet in the trough.

If, as J. E. B. says, it won't work, isn't it about time that a long suffering public raised up and cleaned up the whole dirty mess, and built something to suit modern times? It's got to be done, why not do it now? It doesn't matter whether it's social credit, C.C.F. or Tim Buck. It's got to be changed. Why not do it right?

With all these modern improvements surely it's not necessary to have a million people on relief on starvation rations, and two million on government salaries. It would cost the taxpayer a lot less and be just as beneficial to Canada, if half of the two million were put in the same class as the one million.

BACK TO THE FARM

Editor Bulletin: Congratulations re your editorial, "Deliberate Deception" of April 12.

Voting blood money like drunken sailors on the one hand, with the invitation to Major Douglas and William Aberhart to propose and plan a workable Social Credit scheme for Alberta and in the same breath crucify the movement in hopes, that it will be still born. It will go down in history as the greatest arch crime perpetrated on the citizenship of Alberta. "Consistency, thou art a jewel rare."

The powers that be, at the moment, are struggling as never before like a drowning man grasping for a straw, the spectacle brings such, that the same group of voters that put them in power and kept them there for 15 years are going on the very first opportunity to call them back to the farm.

The stand-pat element of the U.F.A. still sponsoring an ex-premier who seems to have his following partially hypnotized, have simply wrecked the U.F.A. They are moving high Heaven as would be Saviours and are willing to promise, "to obey" if given another chance.

Voters do your stuff.

EXPLORE YOUR MIND

A Fascinating Pastime With ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D.Sc.

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Not all moral questions can be answered with absolute scientific accuracy, but no decision as to what is morally right is possible without science. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1—A recent investigation shows that business women make far more effort to dress and make-up attractively than professional women do. It also shows that the professional women who were studied spent more money for clothes, etc., but secured less effective results. There can be little doubt that these differences are because professional women such as doctors, teachers, etc., come less into contact with men than business women, and partly because, as other researches have shown, more professional than business women are not greatly interested in men and marriage.

2—I am glad if this column stimulates readers to bring up important questions for argument, even though as is here the case, they cannot be positively answered. My argument would be that, if you read the story only once, seeing the story presented on the stage or screen would bring the most effective mental development because you have both eyes and ears to bring the impressions to the mind.

3—Carl H. Milam, Secy., American Library Assn., delivered an able address at the July, 1934, meeting to the effect that there are far too many separate libraries and that they should be centralized into a few large libraries under more competent direction than is possible to secure for the small, struggling library. We used to think a "Public Library" was merely a collection of books where people could go and get what they wanted; we find now it requires highly trained experts to make it serve as a great educational institution. Instead of the 6,000 public libraries we now have in the United States, Mr. Milam thinks we should centralize them into about 100, just as we have centralized the little red school houses into larger, more effective educational institutions.

FORCING THE STRONG HAND TO LEAD

Frequently there is an advantage in having the opening lead come up to tenances, instead of going through them. When partners have both shown strength, as West and his partner had done with today's hand, there may be an advantage in having the single strong opponent make the opening lead, up to the lesser strength of the second member of the declaring side. This probably accounts for West's unusual bidding.

Bidding went: South, 1-heart; West doubled; East, 2-clubs, his lowest three-card suit, as he had to respond and could not bid 1-no trump on so dubious a heart stop as 4 to a J; South passed, hoping that West might shift into spades; West, 3-diamonds, forcing another call from East; East, 4-diamonds! West, 5-clubs, expecting that his partner held at least four trumps.

	North
	♠ K J 9 6 4 ♥ 9 ♦ 9 8 6 3 ♣ 10 4 3
West ♠ 3 ♥ A 10 8 ♦ K J 10 4 2 ♣ A Q J 5	N. / W. E. / S.	East ♠ 8 5 2 ♥ J 5 3 2 ♦ A 7 5 ♣ K 9 8
	♠ A Q 10 7 ♥ K Q 7 6 4 ♦ Q ♣ 7 6 2
	South

As expected, the opening lead was the K of hearts. Dummy's Ace won. Three rounds of trumps luckily pulled all opposing clubs, leaving dummy with a long trump. Not until then did West realize that his partner had held only three clubs, and that it was fortunate for the declaring side that opposing trumps had been divided 3-3.

East's K of clubs won the fourth trick played, taking his last trump. He led his lowest heart. South's Q won the trick. When North showed out South knew that the declarer held the missing J of hearts, but he might not hold the missing ace of diamonds. South took the second defensive trick for his side with the ace of spades, then dummy was put in with a heart, as the exposed had nothing left to lead except diamonds or the long trump.

The 2 of diamonds was led from dummy and the declarer was in with the missing ace of diamonds, capturing South's lone Q. If South had not been wise enough to take his ace of spades when in, dummy's lone spade would have been discarded on the declarer's J of hearts, giving the declaring side a small slam, without mentioning the remarks which North might have addressed to his partner had the latter allowed East to make a small slam against an opening bid.

Had North and South known that opponents were going to fulfil a game contract at a minor suit, it would have paid well to bid 5-spades, as neither side was vulnerable. Going down three tricks doubled, costing 450 points, would have been less expensive than giving opponents a game.

Local Play Group Scores At Ottawa

OTTAWA, April 24. — French groups made their bid for Canadian amateur dramatic supremacy and the Bessborough trophy last night and drew pronounced praise from Allan Wade, finals adjudicator.

"I have little to say when plays are good," said Mr. Wade from the stage of the Ottawa Little Theatre. "This is the case. I did not expect such excellent performances."

A crowded house waited to see what the four competing groups, two from Ottawa, one from Edmonton, and the other from Quebec city, would offer. It found variety with a capital "V."

"I congratulate the authoress on the simplicity and sincerity of her play," said Mr. Wade, in opening his brief but appreciative comment on the Canadian offering "Bon Sang Ne Ment Pas," by Emma Morrier, which Le Cercle Dramatique de St. Joachim, Edmonton, gave.

His one criticism of the presentation was that it breathed forth too much sadness. "There was too great uniformity of character," said the adjudicator. He did not go into detailed criticism but complimented favorably on the singing of Paulette de Boisfleury (played by Gabrielle Hervieux), in the course of the play.

The play deals with a struggling Alberta artist and his wife who have sent their daughter, Paulette (Gabrielle Hervieux) to a Paris finishing school, making a considerable sacrifice and concealing the fact of their poverty. Paulette returns with lofty ideas, finds the condition in which her parents are living distasteful and her father's painting not up to scratch in her view.

She makes a speech in which she urges her parents, played by Alphonse Hervieux and Mme. Hervieux, to leave and go to Paris where the artist can gain inspiration from the works of France's famous masters.

Her father breaks down, tells of his impoverished condition and throws Paulette into a state of remorse in which she renounces her extravagant ideas. Just before the curtain, however, the artist receives a letter from a museum which has decided to buy some of his pictures, making the Paris dream come true.

The acting of M. Hervieux, in particular, gained applause. Mme. J. T. Tremblay took the part of Suzette, the maid.

LONDON, April 24.—For three months a trio of embroidery experts have been working at the Royal School of Needlework on the new purse, theoretically containing the great seal, which the Lord Chancellor will carry at jubilee time.

The purse is 19 by 18 inches, and its design, governed by rule to the last stitch, is in very high relief—the royal arms, two Lancastrian roses, and a border of cherubic faces. With the exception of the roses the design is worked piece by piece, and then fixed to the crimson velvet body of the purse. Gold and silver thread are almost the only materials used for the embroidery, and the purse is covered with 2½ ounces of silver and 9½ ounces, 4 drams, of fine gold.

These precious metal threads are made only by a few gold and silver "lacemen," who are centered in London. With the enhanced price of gold the new purse will have cost much more than the last, sewn at the school six years ago. The Lord Chancellor will grasp the finished article by a handle inside its mouth, but to cheat the bag-snatcher a strong cord attached to it passes around his neck.

OLD ENGLISH PENNY READING IS DELIGHTFUL

Long ago, when English villagers would gather together in the town hall for concert celebrations even the town fool had a part in them, and the belle of the village who sang her pretty songs always hoped that she might tempt opportunity for a great and brilliant stage debut. Such was the beginning of the Penny Reading—charge, one penny — and to celebrate St. George's Day, the choir of All Saints' Pro Cathedral entertained at a thoroughly delightful concert in the parish hall on Tuesday evening, at a Penny Reading program.

Mr. R. P. D'Alton, president of the choir, was chairman and announcer, introducing each of the performers and presiding in general as master of ceremonies. The program commenced with a piano solo by Miss Ivy M. Stanley, A.T.C.M., followed by songs by Frank Williams, baritone, and violin solos by Roderick V. Cook, L.A.B.

Quite the hit of the evening was the nautical sketch in which songs were sung lustily by the four jolly sailors, Charles Sweetlove, Ted Ledgard, Lionel Exham and Frank Radcliffe with Ernest Pelluet as soloist. Boy choristers, Alan Collins, Sid Bryant, Jack McCallum, Donald Marshall, and Leonard Garrett assisted and three little girls, Mary Blezard, Frederica Harvey and Marguerite Kinney of the Kinney School of Dancing, did a hornpipe to complete the sketch which was arranged by Mr. Merrett.

Following the interval, Harry Coles was heard in a radio monologue to celebrate the Jubilee in England, and a sketch, by G. Patson, "The Kiss" in which Sue Laycock, Stanley Wade, Daisy Lindsay and Dick Merrett took part, depicted the amours and adventures of a romantic highwayman.

In the debate, "Should Husbands Help with the Dishes," His Honor, Judge J. L. Crawford, adjudicated between arguments presented by Mr. Teape, for the affirmative and Canon E. Pierce Goulding, for the negative, with the decision for the negative.

Flora Reed, Joan Corbett and Bunty Rose of the Kinney School, were lovely in an old English interpretive dance, and the program was concluded by several delightful selections sung from the charming old nursery rhymes in Walford Davies' suite by Mrs. Wilfred Baker, Miss Dorothy Horrocks, Mr. Alan Harvey and Mr. Harry Taylor, members of Mr. Barford's quartet.

MR., MRS. PEPIN MARK SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Pepin on the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, more than 150 friends and relatives gathered in the parish hall of St. Joachim's church, beautifully decorated with flowers in which daffodils predominated, Sunday evening.

A beautiful illuminated address, penned by Mr. J. E. Brissette, was read by Mr. Paul Jenvrin, after which a handsome silver tea service was presented to the happy couple on behalf of their many friends. The choir, of which Mr. Pepin is leader and organist, presented to them an exquisite silver rose bowl, the presentation being made by President Gerard Baril. Mrs. B. Olson, eldest daughter, on behalf of the family, presented to her parents a chest of silver flatware. Mr. and Mrs. Pepin were the recipients of many other gifts. Mr. Pepin on behalf of his wife and himself, replied suitably.

During supper, Rev. Fr. Boucher, O.M.I., parish priest, proposed a toast to the happy couple in which he traced the wedded life of Mr. and Mrs. Pepin which began in Dawson City 25 years ago.

While in Dawson City, Yukon, Mr. Pepin organized the Dawson City band of 27 pieces. Many of the selections played were Mr. Pepin's own compositions, among them being "Fair Yukon March," "Mush On," "Dream of a Sourdough," "Dance of the Northern Lights" and many others. Another composition was "The Last Struggle" which was dedicated to the memory of Captain F. J. Fitzgerald, Constables Sam Carter, G. F. Kinney and R. O. Taylor, members of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, comprising the Fort Macpherson-Dawson patrol, who perished in the service of the Dominion and Empire, after a most heroic struggle, in February, 1911.

It was in Dawson City that Mr. Pepin knew a young man who was later to become world famous. This young man had many manuscripts of poetry and writings in his room which he scribbled off at odd moments. His friends finally persuaded him to publish some of his works and today the whole world knows of Robert W. Service. Many other famous characters of the gold rush days were personally known to Mr. and Mrs. Pepin.

In 1912 Mr. and Mrs. Pepin moved to Edmonton and have been resident here since.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

A short musical program was a feature of the evening, Mr. Pepin playing one of his own compositions, "The Dream of a Sourdough." Musical numbers were also contributed by Mrs. B. T. Olson, A.T.C.M., L.R.S.M., and Miss Marie-Alice Pepin, A.T.C.M.

At the table of honor Mr. and Mrs. Pepin were surrounded by their children, Mrs. B. F. Olson, Mrs. L. Lambert, Mrs. A. E. Brissette, Mrs. G. McDiarmid, Napoleon, Marie-Alice, Rene, Marcelle, Yvette, Ella, Paulette, Jeanette and Claire. Mr. Albert Pepin, the eldest son, is at present in Montreal. The delightful soiree was closed with the singing of "O Canada."

Arrangements for the evening were in charge of Madame Dow, M. and Mde. Paul Jenvrin, Mde. S. Joncas and M. and Mde. Gerard Baril.

Flapper Fanny Says

Things look pretty dark when the light of a bride's life gets lit.

What's What

Question—We'd like to mark our twenty-fifth anniversary in some way. My husband objects to a formal reception. He wants just a few of the neighbors in for supper. I'd like to include more than we can seat at a meal. What would you suggest? What kind of refreshments? Would it be correct to insert a news item in our district news, such as: "Mr. and Mrs. J. N. will be at home on a certain date." (We don't want presents. What can we do about that?)

MR. AND MRS. J. N. (Alaska).

Answer—Many happy returns to our silver wedding correspondents in the Far North! A pass-around (buffet) supper is less troublesome than a table dinner. Better ask all your guests for the same time—say, 9 p.m. Refreshments are passed from a tea wagon at 10 o'clock—chicken sandwiches (or chicken salad with rolls), ice cream and coffee. Instead of a newspaper announcement, send out your visiting cards (or your names written on plain cards), with the date and hour in the lower left corner, this way:

Mr. and Mrs. James North
25 Sitka St.
Wed., May 22
9 p.m.

Since no mention is made of the anniversary, only friends who are "wise to the date" will send gifts for your silver wedding.

Question—What is appropriate to wear for a dansant given by a young girls' sorority at a club between the hours of 5 p.m. and 9 p.m.?

THETA.

Answer—The girls wear sleeveless frocks, with dinner jackets and dancing slippers. The little jackets may be removed before each dance.

The Debunker

The popular idea that ministers' sons go to the bad is based upon comparatively few cases, a recent study of the men listed in Who's Who by Prof. Stephen A. Visher, of Indiana university, revealed the fact that ministers' sons become prominent citizens forty times oftener than farmers' sons, eighty times oftener than skilled laborers' sons and several times oftener than professional men's sons. Dr. Havelock Ellis made a similar study in England and found that "the eminent child of the clergy considerably outnumbered those of lawyers, doctors and army officers put together." (Suggested by Mrs. J. V., Baltimore.)

Man Became Expert At Cooking Breakfast

DEAR MISS DIX—On discovering that my wife was a light sleeper and needed her rest in the mornings, I set myself to learn how to prepare a delightful breakfast for her. On boasting of this to some women friends they dared me to prove it. I invited a party of six ladies, treating them to baked apple, omelette souffle and the rest, all my own handiwork, which they declared to be the best breakfast they had tasted during the season. My wife still does her part, preparing the best dinners that are known in these parts. Her pies are not like the ones mother used to make. They are a great deal better. With the right tact and tactics a man can still be master in his own house, but here's the secret—never let the wife know it.

EXPERIENCED.

Answer:

The man who writes this interesting letter is a professor in one of our leading colleges. He doesn't have to go to work early, and hence does not fall in the category of those husbands who I consider get a raw deal from wives who make them prepare their own breakfasts. On the contrary, I commend him for the tender and considerate and gallant attitude he takes toward his wife in pampering her by bringing her her breakfast in bed, thus indulging her in what all women consider the acme of luxury. And were he to open a waiting list for another spouse the whole unmarried feminine population would rush to put their names down.

Dorothy Dix

It is, of course, no surprise to learn that he has developed into a first-class cook. All of the cordon-bleu are of the masculine persuasion and most men develop culinary talents that surprise even themselves when they go off on camping expeditions. Not only that, but they enjoy it, and this makes it a little surprising that so few men can ever be induced to enter their own kitchens.

In the New Deal, which gives men so much leisure but does not add a minute to a woman's, it will be only fair if husbands take over part of the cooking. There seems no reason why the wife should stand over the kitchen stove on her husband's off days, and we look forward to a new era in domestic happiness when father pinch-hits for mother in the housework, when father's cakes and father's roasts are the pride of the family, and when mother will have time to rest and enjoy herself because father is lending a hand with the work.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — My husband is always having an affair with some woman and then thinks I should be tickled pink when he comes back to me. Because of our son I always take him back and go on with a smile. But how I hate him! This has gone on for 15 years. Our boy will know some time. Am I wrong in postponing the blow? Always I pretend to be supremely happy, but every day the lump in my throat gets larger. I am still young. What a life to live! What a future to face!

BLUE.

Answer:

I do not think that any woman is bound to endure an unfaithful husband, and if you have any way of supporting your son until he gets through school and can make his own living, you have a perfect right to quit whenever you see fit.

But if you have no way of making a living and no money and if you cannot give your boy the advantages of a start in life that his father could, why not gird up your courage for a still further sacrifice, as you have sacrificed so much already, and endure your unhappy lot until he can shift for himself? But in the end you must be your own judge of what is the right thing to do. Nobody else can settle that question for you.

DOROTHY DIX.

The Housewife's Idea Box

For a Good Shampoo

If you want to give yourself a good shampoo, three things are necessary—soft water, a liquid soap and adequate rinsing. If the water is not soft enough and the soap does not come out well, try this rinse: Add four tablespoonfuls of vinegar to a bowl of warm water, or use the juice of two lemons instead of the vinegar.

Your Children -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Consider an electric train. In the eyes of children of different ages it varies as much as a Clipper airship on a world cruise. The aviator thrills at its power, the engineer at its mechanical beauty, business men at its speed. The savage naturally thinks of either angels or devils.

So it is with toys. They are not what they are to us, who buy them, but what they are to the child who plays with them.

This electric train now. Little Dick, age two, sees something rushing around with an awful racket in an awful hurry. He doesn't know what it is. He sees only motion and hears a noise. His one idea is to try out his reflexes. He will kick, grab, shake, bite or slam the energetic little choo-choo once he catches up with it. His brother Jack is four. He himself is putting on the show.

O. R. Barton

IT'S THE REAL THING

To him the electric train is a train, all right, but clothed in greater glory than red paint and tin. It belongs in "Let's Pretend Land." It is to him the real train; themselves is always good training.

on the big track down by the river. Jack builds bridges for it to go over or under, new tracks out of cards; he piles it with cuts from magazines and invents strange engineers.

Don, aged six or seven, has become more matter-of-fact. He like Jack, dramatizes the train, but not as a "pretend" train. He sees it as it actually is and uses it precisely as he wishes at the moment. It is a little tin train on a track on a carpet in a room. Just that and nothing more, though he does not enjoy it any the less.

By the time he is ten or before he will know the name of every part of it and how it works and why.

KEEP CHILDREN BUSY

Thus do toys change for children with the years. Toys that keep children busy are best.

A garden-set to Baby Dick will naturally only mean something to play home with. Jack may make forts out of mud, or dig holes to fill with water to sail a boat. Older children know hoes and rakes and spades for what they are and see the possibilities of seed.

Any child over six loves to have his own little patch of ground to work—only he calls it play. If we oldsters thrill over the first green shoots, children get double the kick. Besides it is good training. Something to take care of

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

As Duney raced across the ground, the fatties quickly gathered round and tried to stop the hippo, but their efforts were in vain.

Then Scouty cried, "Oh, he's so fat, he can't keep racing on like that. I'm sure that in his tummy he is going to get a pain."

"I hope he gets it right away," one loud snort, then turned and went back to his cage. Brave Scouty latched the door.

As Duney quickly joined the crowd, one fatty said, "You should feel proud. Your act was very funny and it made all of us roar."

Soon Goldy cried, "Some bars yelled Duney. "Maybe this is play to him, but I don't like it. I will run until I drop."

And then he saw a group of trees. "Ah, now I'll get away, with ease," he shouted to the bunch. "The trees will make the hippo stop."

They shortly found that he was right. It really was a funny sight to see the hippo try to wiggle through the group of trees.

He tugged away till Duney said, "Hey, fat, why don't you use your head? You simply can't get through, because it's much too tight a squeeze."

The beast then proved a real good sport. He stood and let out

we'll fix, on which the monkeys can do tricks. The bars are in a cage. Come on, you Tinies, set them right."

It didn't take them very long to stand them up and make them strong. "Now," Goldy said, "We're going to see another thrilling sight."

Some little monkeys were set free, and just as quickly as could be, they raced up to the bars and started whirling round and 'round.

"Look out," yelled Copsy. "Don't get smart, or you will tear your tails apart. If you miss just one bar, you'll take a flop upon the ground."

Rosalind Advises Milk Baths

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

In recent screen hits, the beautiful Rosalind Russell was obliged to give her skin a number of milk baths in her role as a young, well-cared-for debutante. And Rosalind was so pleased with the softening and astringent effects that the milk had on her skin, that she determined to use this fluid on her face daily. She fills a little cup with fresh sweet milk each day, and gently pats the liquid into her skin with her fingertips. She firmly believes that the milk helps greatly in keeping her skin soft, smooth and fine-textured.

Personality. I do not have a very high regard for the beautifying properties of externally administered milk, for it lacks the refreshing and stimulating qualities that the average astringent possesses. But an excellent face mask can be made of milk. Not liquid milk, but the powdered form of milk that is procurable in most drug stores. This mask bleaches and softens the skin, and helps to eradicate blackheads and refines the skin texture. It is also easy to administer.

Before applying a milk pack, cleanse your skin thoroughly with a pure, bland soap and tepid water, and then with a liquefying cleansing cream. After the cleansing, remove the cleansing cream with tissues, and smooth a rich nourishing cream over your face. Allow this cream to remain on the skin for a few minutes, and then remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. If your skin is extremely dry, you may allow a tiny film of the cream to remain on the skin around your eyes and mouth.

To prepare and administer this pack properly, procure a quantity of ordinary powdered milk from your local druggist. Then mix a heaping tablespoonful of the powdered milk with enough cold water to form a smooth, creamy paste. If your skin is very oily, you may substitute a good skin tonic for the water. Apply the paste generously over your face and neck, and permit it to dry. When the pack is thoroughly dry, remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. This mask will help greatly to bleach and lighten your skin, and will leave it clear, smooth and velvety.

A BEDTIME STORY

As Duney raced across the ground, the fatties quickly gathered round and tried to stop the hippo, but their efforts were in vain.

Then Scouty cried, "Oh, he's so fat, he can't keep racing on like that. I'm sure that in his tummy he is going to get a pain."

"I hope he gets it right away," one loud snort, then turned and went back to his cage. Brave Scouty latched the door.

As Duney quickly joined the crowd, one fatty said, "You should feel proud. Your act was very funny and it made all of us roar."

Soon Goldy cried, "Some bars yelled Duney. "Maybe this is play to him, but I don't like it. I will run until I drop."

And then he saw a group of trees. "Ah, now I'll get away, with ease," he shouted to the bunch. "The trees will make the hippo stop."

Growing Tots Need Nourishing Dishes

By MARY E. DAGUE

When Junior just trails in listlessly and slumps in one corner of the davenport while dishes dawdle up lastily in a big chair, you can be sure that you're faced with a food problem. They probably WON'T EAT and off will go these precious pounds we need so valiantly!

Sister Mary

Worrying won't do a bit of good. Concentrate on food instead. A savory luncheon will go far to revive their interest in food—and other activities, too.

It really isn't hard to plan the menus for children. The average child of school age may have a wide range of food in fact, almost any well-balanced ensemble adult meal is suitable.

Try to keep the cost of my luncheon within a certain limit and find an enormous satisfaction in beating this game at high prices.

Providing a quart of milk a day for each child should never be neglected. Some of this milk may be used in cream soups, creamed vegetables, desserts and beverages to give variety.

REMEMBER THE CALORIES

While it's of utmost importance that vitamins and minerals be supplied in abundance, the calory value of food must not be ignored. The amount of food a child needs between eight and ten years of age has been estimated as between 1700 and 2000 calories a day. The protein calories should be between 10 and 15 per cent. of the whole amount.

When I want nourishing and economical dishes I always turn to the cereals. I don't know of any food which gives a larger return for the money. Combined with cheese and served with a cress salad, cereals are one of my standbys for luncheon. Here's one of the favorite recipes.

RAMIKINS OF RICE AND CHEESE

Season white sauce with paprika, add cheese and cook and stir until cheese is melted. Add rice and mix thoroughly. Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored and add to first mixture. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and fold into mixture. Fill well buttered ramikins about 2-3 full with mixture, put in a pan of hot water and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.). Unmold and serve with a garnish of parsley.

Tomorrow's Menu

LUNCHEON: Ramikins of rice and cheese, rye bread, grape fruit and green pepper salad, filled cookies, milk, tea.

A Real Life Experience as told by Mrs. F.A.C.

WHEN my father married he was just 24. His job brought him only 90c. a day. My parents first task was to set about buying a small home. Their next move was to take out Life Insurance. As time went on there were five children. My father's wage was eventually raised to one dollar out of which we had to clothe and feed our large family—and still pay the premium on Life Insurance.

For 20 years my father worked from 7 to 6 o'clock without a day off. Then he began to show the effects. Whenever he sat down he would fall asleep. By this time my two eldest brothers had good jobs in the city. They persuaded my father to sell his house and move to the coast. Although he found work, he was not suited to it and turned back to Western Canada after five years.

He bought land and set to work, content that at last he had found the life he longed for—land for his sons; a home and independence in time for his family. Then a sad thing happened. While putting in his first crop he was stricken with paralysis. His Insurance policy contained a disability clause and there was no money from the farm thus far. This Insurance money kept him comfortably provided for until he died four years later.

An early frost had ruined the crop. There was no ready money. It was a crisis and his insurance money "saved the day." All accounts were paid. We bought the adjoining quarter section, a snap for cash. The first crop replaced the money easily. The children were given a good education. Today my mother is well provided for in her home with three of her children. All this was due largely to the Life Insurance my father had taken out when money was so scarce with us.

U.S. Plans $50 'Security Wage'

ROOSEVELT'S RELIEF PLAN IS UNDER WAY

New York Lawyer Given Task of Passing on All Plans

WASHINGTON, April 24—Setting up the machinery through which will be fed all plans for creating jobs out of the $4,000,000,000 work relief fund, President Roosevelt Tuesday moved a step nearer the big-spending stage of his program.

The White House, in a 400-word statement, delegated the task of passing on all plans to Frank C. Wallace, a New Yorker lawyer who for years has been a close friend of the President.

EMERGENCY JOB

To handle the job, Walker today will return to the post he formerly held as head of the national emergency council. A new division of the council was set up to deal with the plans. Donald R. Richberg, who has been executive director of the council since Walker left a few months ago, will devote his full time to directing NRA.

SECURITY WAGE PLAN

Almost coincidentally with the announcement, word came from secretary of the interior Harold Ickes that he would begin conferences with labor leaders soon looking to a revision downward of the public works wage scale. Administration spokesmen have suggested that workers under the relief program be paid a security wage which would average about $80 a month with lower rates for unskilled labor.

As outlined by the White House statement, all suggested plans for using work relief funds will flow through the new division of the emergency council.

Our King and Queen

—On their Silver Jubilee—

King George and His Favorite Pastime.

KING GEORGE'S favorite sport is shooting and his indulgence in this pastime from early youth has made him one of the four best shots in England.

Be it grouse shooting at Balmoral, tiger hunting in India or deer hunting in Scotland, the King is regarded as a man of rare proficiency with firearms. He is particularly fast on the "draw," and possesses an iron nerve that never fails him.

Once in India when a wounded tiger charged an elephant on which the King was mounted, he coolly waited until the ferocious beast made a lunge for the mount and then fired, one shot doing the trick. It was a splendid illustration of coolness.

Our pictures today show the King at his favorite sport.

Second only to shooting in the King's favor is yachting; after that he prefers soccer, a game he used to play with some vigor and skill as a midshipman in the navy.

King George has two indoor hobbies, one of which has earned him fame the world over. That is stamp-collecting. His other collection is of antique watches and clocks. Made up entirely of British Empire issues, the King's stamp collection is said to be worth over £100,000.

One sport that the King has played but in which he never became interested was golf. Only one or two occasions are recorded in which His Majesty chased the elusive ball.

TEACHER'S LOT IN ALBERTA NOT SO BAD

Minister of Education Addresses Educators at Alliance Meeting

With 337 more schools in operation than in 1929 and the average period of operation lengthened in Alberta, educationally speaking, is not the worst place in the world, stated Hon. Perren Baker, minister of education, during an opening address at the first general session of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance convention held Tuesday afternoon in the Macdonald hotel.

"In Alberta the average salary of the rural school teacher is $738, while in Saskatchewan it is only a little over $500, and in Manitoba $400," said Mr. Baker, who asserted still further, that in parts of Canada there were many teachers working for a whole year for $200.

COULD BE WORSE

Although, stated Mr. Baker, he realised that conditions were far from perfect among the Alberta teachers, there were many points which had to be taken into consideration and things could be far worse than they are.

"Teachers are not very different from other people, namely farmers, in which I class myself inasmuch as they cannot endure being told that there are bright spots in the picture," said Mr. Baker. He stated that he fully realised what times of unrest and uncertainty the teachers had passed through.

The greatest benefit to education would be that which would effect a larger administration, said Mr. Baker, who also spoke of the movements towards revision of the curriculum, which, he stated, would bring it more into the needs of today.

"It seems to me that if we are to keep the best teachers in our system, permanancy of tenure must be given first consideration," stated Dr. Walter Morrish, chairman of the Edmonton school board during an address.

REFRESHER COURSE

Stating that although he knew there was a danger in such a system as the educational one of individuals sitting down on the job, Dr. Morrish said that such cases were very rare.

"Personally I would like to see some sort of refresher course clause in the contracts" said Dr. Morrish. "The teachers in Northern Alberta have a wonderful opportunity to keep in touch with the latest movements of education by attending the summer school and I wonder sometimes whether in view of the fact that you have a long summer vacation, this time or part of this time should not be spent in improving your qualifications."

The Edmonton School Board, said Dr. Morrish had urged in season and out of season, the granting of pensions for teachers, and he added, there was already a limited scheme in operation it did not begin to meet the situation effectively.

Dr. Morrish expressed surprise at the resistance the application for Professional Status had met at the hands of the members of the Legislature.

AWAY FROM POLITICS

"In view of what has happened in the legislature, I am more convinced than ever that we cannot hope to make progress educationally until our educational system is taken out of the hands of politics and administered as a government department which will control the system from A to Z," said Dr. Morrish, "and which I think it is now feasible to attempt to centralize our educational system gradually but must do major operation and go the whole way at one stroke."

Strong recommendation of the preliminary report of the Alberta Taxation Inquiry Board was expressed by Dr. Morrish who stated that it seemed to him the most important duty of any trustee board in Calgary or Edmonton to see that the interests of its citizens are first taken care of.

IN APPRECIATION

Appreciation of the attitude of the teachers in combating the disconcerting influences, directly or indirectly, that had been at work during the past four years was stressed by Dr. Morrish. The session closed with a demonstration of school dramatics under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Sterling Haynes, director of the Dramatics division, Department of Extension, University of Alberta.

GEORGE BRYAN, STONY PLAIN, IS SPEAKER

Provincial Liberal Candidate Addresses Young Grits on Issues

George Bryan, Liberal candidate for the Provincial Constituency of Stony Plain addressed the regular weekly meeting of the Young Men's Liberal Club, Tuesday evening. At the outset of his topic "Our problems are your problems" he took issue with the statement that there was no suffering in Alberta and outlined the conditions in the outlying areas. A vote of thanks was voted to the speaker upon the motion of Clayton McLennan.

B.N.A. ACT RESOLVE

Greg Scully was successful in having the meeting endorse a resolution calling upon the Canadian Parliament to amend the B.N.A. Act with a view to abolishing the office of Lieutenant-Governor in Alberta, the duties of opening and closing the Legislature and giving assent to the legislative bills to be performed without cost by the Chief Justice of Alberta.

MEET MONDAYS

It was decided to henceforth hold the weekly meetings on Monday evenings.

Dealing with the average farm Mr. Bryan showed that even with the increase in price of agricultural produce the farmer's income would not pay taxes, threshing costs, mortgage interest and depreciation. As a result no actual purchasing power was left in the farmers hands.

In many municipalities schools were closed and relief costs placed a steadily increasing burden on the ones able to meet tax payments, and many were faced with the loss of a life time thrift. Mr. Bryan said there were three lines of attack, increasing commodity prices, lowering the cost of and monetary reform. All three must be brought into play.

Increasing commodity prices was difficult as it was governed largely by the world markets. Monetary reform would greatly aid government financing and reduce taxes as well as assist private financing, while overhead could be cut by tariff reduction to bring cheaper goods and reduction of interest rates and adjustment of principal. Courageous action along all these lines is the only real way to restore purchasing power and when that has been done the problems of country and city will disappear.

House Condoles With "Sergeant" On His Illness

Sympathy with Sergt.-at-Arms J. W. D. Turner of the legislature, in his illness that has prevented him from fulfilling his function in the house for most of the session, was expressed by the members just before they prorogued on Tuesday. Mr. Turner, who has carried on as Sergeant for 21 years has made but few appearances in the red-carpeted chamber this year.

Fred J. White, provincial Labor leader moved that Mr. Speaker convey to Mr. Turner the sympathy of the house in his illness and the cordial good wishes of all members thereof for an early and complete recovery.

Shanghai Parley For World Peace Is Savant's Plan

By THOS. W. YLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, April 24—A world peace conference in Shanghai "for the exposition of Confucian cosmopolitanism" has been proposed by the disciples of Tuan Tzetsun, a Chinese teacher, and some members of the C.C.F. have been invited to participate. Tuan Tzetsun's disciples believe that the great teacher's prayers will avert war and ensure permanent peace.

The immediate answer to the prayers for rain by Tuan Tzetsun during the drought in Chekiang province in the summer of 1934, and the warning concerning another world war was instrumental in the organization of the preparatory committee for the world peace prayer conference," runs the manifesto sent out by the disciples.

HE GOT RAINFALL

"During this drought the leading citizens of Hangchow, with the cooperation of the authorities jointly wired Tuan Tzetsun, beseeching him to pray for rain. Immediately upon the receipt of the telegram from him, heavy rain fell."

The formation of a moral institute serving as an organ for the preservation of peace is an action equivalent to the mobilization of one million soldiers," to the disciples quote Tuan Tzetsun.

IS ALSO PROPHET

Advance warnings of outbreaks and prophecies as to the cessation of hostilities in Chinese uprisings are credited to the Great Teacher.

"In the case of onslaughts of tribulation beyond human control or in consequence of men's evils such as floods and drought, locusts and banditry, it has happened that when the situation became unmanageable, the Sage, upon being requested by the authorities or any organization or individual in a spirit of true earnestness, was able to avert immediately the disaster prevailing by giving his assent, expressed or internally willed. Some years ago he astonished and gratified the authorities who sought relief from him in connection with the bandittry menace in Hunan and the floods of the Yangtse river and the Yellow river."

INFLUENCES HEAVEN

"All these instances show that the words and actions of Tuan Tzetsun were able to influence the will of Heaven and that his august dignity was incomparable, and unknowingly he has saved from incalculable losses people's lives and property."

A year ago this month Tuan Tzetsun prophecied another world war this year. He intended to retire into the mountains but his disciples prevailed on him "we fasted and bathed ourselves and begged him to remain."

PROMINENT SPONSORS

The World Peace Prayer Conference committee includes several Chinese generals, the chairmen of some of the provincial governments and eminent merchants, the mayors of Tientsin, Hangkow and other cities and many notables.

"If it is possible to get together a sufficiently large group of sponsors of the movement," their manifesto says, "we shall approach the great Sage with the petition that he will wield his great influence and called into play his august powers and thus eliminate the causes responsible for fratricide and create a new universe in which men will love one another dearly and nation will deal with nation in perfect frankness.

"As a peace supporter, you will assuredly reach a stage of spiritual happiness coupled with supero health," promise the promoters.

ABERHART IS TALK GUEST OF TEACHERS

Social Credit, Labor Platforms Are Outlined For "Alliance"

Outlining what they anticipated would be the platforms on education of their respective parties, William Aberhart, B.A., Calgary, leader of the Social Credit movement and Walter Mentz, representative of the Canadian Labor Party addressed an audience of delegates which filled the main dining room of the Macdonald hotel at the first general session of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance convention, Tuesday afternoon.

Five platforms were to have been presented during the session but announcements were made that the three other parties, namely Conservative, Liberal and U.F.A. were unable to have representatives attend.

Deviating slightly from the rule that there was to be only a presentation of the educational platform, both speakers placed before their hearers the chief aims and principles of their particular party.

EXPERTS NEEDED

Stating that he had never anticipated such opposition to a principle that would help all classes Mr. Aberhart said that he did not think the world at large realized what depression had to suffer and bear in the years gone by.

The need of a number of experts from the ranks of the teachers in authority was stressed by Mr. Aberhart, who stated that the government in power must see that a change is made; although, he continued, a change that would have to be made slowly, a step at a time, avoiding a sudden jump into a new position.

DECENTRALIZED POWER

Outlining the principle points of interest to teachers, Mr. Aberhart stated that as far as security of tenure was concerned it would simply follow social credit. "We must have de-centralization of power, not the unit of the individual but of the group," insisted the speaker. "If judge, however, that social credit coming into power would see that this particular point is taken care of."

Assurance of salary would naturally come with social credit, declared Mr. Aberhart, for with the parents in a better financial standing and therefore able to pay their taxes, the teachers' would be assured of their salary.

As to status of profession, Mr. Aberhart stated that he considered that the teaching profession should be on an equality with all other professions, while the matter of pensions was not a question that concerned the teachers any more than it concerned anyone else but was necessary for everybody.

SYSTEM VICTIMS

"We are not victims of a government but of a wrong social system," declared Mr. Mentz, after mentioning the defeat of the compulsory clause in the Teaching Professional bill in the provincial legislature, Monday afternoon. "When we go to the government with a request and it is refused we are not angry because we realize that it is not the fault of government but of the system," he said.

Mentioning social credit, Mr. Mentz stated that great care was needed in the change of a social order for if the change did not mean the abolition of private ownership it would be no good.

The Labor party, stated Mr. Mentz, had always supported the Teachers' Professional Act and would continue to do so. Organization of education to that educational methods would be in the hands of all people was a point stressed by the speaker, who also advocated experimentation of adult folk schools.

COMMISSIONER INSPECTS LOCAL ST. JOHN CORPS

Reviewing the largest turnout that the Edmonton branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade has ever had, and what he stated was the most efficient corps on review since he left Ottawa, Col. T. L. Clarke, high commissioner of the St. John Ambulance Association inspected the No. 61 brigade in the police gymnasium Monday evening.

The brigade was 100 per cent efficient, stated Col. Clarke, who expressed strong commendation of the progress made.

During the evening Col. Clarke also made a tour of inspection of the nursing brigade which also received his congratulations.

Col. Clarke left Edmonton Tuesday evening for Edmonton where he will conduct a similar inspection and after leaving that point will proceed to Vancouver. On his return inspection trip across the Dominion, Col. Clarke will inspect the brigade at Calgary.

Noted Visitors To City

Lord Robert Baden-Powell of Gilwell and Lady Baden-Powell, world Chief Scout and Chief Guide, will be visitors in the city for four days, in the course of a world tour in which the founder of the Boy Scout movement is reviewing Scouts of all nations. They arrived at 3:10 p.m. Wednesday, travelling C.P.R. and will leave Sunday night. Outstanding among the official functions planned for the visit of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell is a great rally of Scouts and Guides from all parts of northern Alberta at the arena on Friday evening.

Warm Welcome Given Lord Baden-Powell On Arrival In Edmonton

A large number of civic and Scout officials, including Mayor J. A. Clarke, Col. E. Clarke, Scout commissioner and Mrs. E. C. Pardee, Guide commissioner, were at the station to welcome Lord and Lady Baden-Powell, world leaders of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movements, who arrived in the city at 3:10 p.m., today, for a four-day visit here.

A public reception will be held in the Legislative buildings at 11 a.m., Thursday, when official welcomes will be extended by Hon. Chief Justice Horace Harvey, administrator of the province, in the absence of the Lieutenant-Governor; Mayor J. A. Clarke and Premier R. G. Reid.

JOINT LUNCHEON

On Friday Lady Baden-Powell will address a joint luncheon of the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs in the Macdonald hotel. Friday evening a great rally of Scouts, Cubs, Rovers, Guides, Brownies and Rangers will be held in the Arena. Troops and companies will attend from outside points for this event.

Saturday evening Lt.-Col. Walton, a member of the visiting party, will attend a Rover campfire in the Moose Rover den, below the High Level Bridge. Sunday a Scout and Guide leaders' service will be held in Convocation Hall, which the Chiefs are expected to attend.

On Saturday afternoon Scout leaders will meet in a conference with Lord Baden-Powell and Guide leaders with Lady Baden-Powell.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB HEARS CLERIC GUEST

Contributions of the English people to the world formed the basis of an address given by Rev. G. G. Reynolds, guest speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Cosmopolitan club held Tuesday noon in the Corona hotel. The meeting, which was a celebration of St. George's Day, was held under the chairmanship of Russell Speers, president.

The contributions, stated the speaker, were threefold and came under the general heading of confidence, character and stability. The high esteem in which the English were held by other nations had been evinced when, with the entry of troops into the Saar, the only regiments to receive the plaudits of the inhabitants had been two English regiments.

Speaking of the coming celebration of the King's Silver Jubilee, Mr. Reynolds stated that it was not being put forward with a view to stressing the importance of the British Empire but rather to increase understanding and good will.

TEACHERS HEAR W. J. TAMBLYN

Vocational or technical education is the coming type of training for boys and girls and is now looked upon as the co-equal of the academic or older type, W. J. Tamblyn, B.A., P.Paed., Toronto, told members of the Edmonton Association of Practical Teachers, at a luncheon meeting in the Hudsonia, Tuesday.

W. J. Kidd was in the chair and other guests were Dr. W. G. Carpenter, director of technical education for Alberta, Dr. W. Morrish, chairman of the Edmonton Public School Board, Supt. G. A. McKee and Assistant Supt. L. B. Yule. A. P. Tingley introduced the speaker, calling attention to the outstanding position held by Mr. Tamblyn as a Canadian educator.

Speaking of his work with handicapped children in the Jarvis Street school Toronto, of which he was formerly head, he said that close personal contact and careful study of the individual child by the teaching staff was needed. Guidance, he said, is the responsibility of the teaching staff of the school.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

On age, Will Rogers says in "Life Begins at 40," that "when you get to be forty, your mind sort of begins to chew its cud. You stop going off half cocked and learn moderation. That's when you begin to live."

The humorist adds: "At twenty, we don't care what the world thinks of us. At thirty, we worry about what it thinks of us. At forty, we're sure it doesn't think of us."

With these words in mind the Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter fired the question, "Do you think life begins at 40," at an unsuspecting Edmonton public.

MAYOR J. A. CLARKE: "If you ask me anything I think life begins at 65."

C. J. DURKINS, retired: "Look at his salary, then ask Baby LeRoy."

* * *

DR. R. C. WALLACE, president of the University of Alberta: "Have you ever read the book by this title? It is an excellent work and answers the question in a fine way. To me it seems there is a different quality in life after one has reached the age of 40. Before that period has been reached a person has enthusiasm and idealism—a desire to find new things. On the other side of the picture we have maturity and experience. That is what life is after all. I feel it is extraordinarily unwise for a person to suggest that life is over at 40."

A. R. GROFF, oldtimer and newspaperman: "It just depends. But I am convinced that life is not finished by any means at 40. To some people life really begins at 60 and I hope I am not done yet at the age of 77."

* * *

MRS. A. H. MOYES, business woman: "I think that probably the theory is right and that the richer part of one's life does begin at 40. It is then that one has a better understanding of life's meaning."

* * *

GEO. H. VAN ALLEN, K.C., barrister: "All I can say is why wait until 40?"

* * *

CHIEF OF POLICE ANTHONY G. SHUTE: "I agree with what the great American humorist says. A man is either a success or failure at 40. By this I mean that he has established the habits of thinking and living that make for success at that age. This is particularly true in business but is true in a lesser degree to all occupations. A man has either formed habits that will last through the rest of life to his benefit or he has formed the habits, both physical and mental, that will prevent him becoming successful. Yes, I would say life begins at 40."

* * *

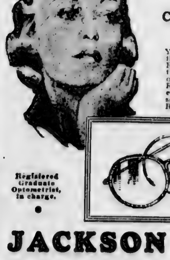

FIRE CHIEF ALBERT DUTTON: Life certainly does begin at 40. Look at me. Lots of spinach, boy, that's the answer. Builds body and brain power. I think a man only begins to enjoy living after he has reached that dignified age. And that's a fact."

MINISTER OF TRADE VISITS CITY FRIDAY

Hon. R. B. Hanson to Address Meeting in McDougall Church

Hon. R. B. Hanson, successor to Hon. H. H. Stevens, whose sensational resignation from the Bennett cabinet almost cracked the Conservative government wide open last fall, will pay his initial visit to the west since taking his place as minister of trade and commerce and will arrive in Edmonton Friday.

Not wasting a single moment of his time, Hon. Mr. Hanson will address his first public gathering here in the McDougall Church, Friday, at 8 p.m.

The new minister of trade and commerce got his start in 1918 when he was elected mayor of Fredericton, N.B. From this humble beginning he was voted into the House of Commons in 1921. In recent years he has been associated with a number of parliamentary committees.

Accompanying Hon. Mr. Hanson on his tour of the west are W. G. Ernst, K.C., M.P., and J. T. Hackett, K.C., M.P., who will also speak here. Mr. Ernst is the member for Queens-Lunenburg, N.S., and was elected to parliament in 1926 at the age of 28. He is a former Rhodes scholar and served overseas with the 85th Infantry.

Court Dismisses Action Against Owner Of Bull

If a dog is entitled to one bite how many tosses is a bull entitled to before being considered vicious?

Mr. Justice W. C. Ives settled this riddle in Supreme Court Tuesday afternoon when he gave a decision against Warren Catton in his action to recover $700 general and $300 special damages for injuries received when tossed by "Butter Boy," a bull owned by B. G. Hosford, Edmonton district farmer. Although there was evidence that "Butter Boy" had knocked down a man on two occasions Mr. Justice Ives decided there was not sufficient evidence to show that the owner of the bull had knowledge it was a vicious animal. It is expected the Appeal Court will be asked to have a try for another solution of this problem.

According to Catton he was knocked down by the bull and suffered a broken collar bone. Evidence was read of two previous attacks on a man called Morrison, it being submitted by Max H. Wershof that these attacks should be sufficient proof the animal was vicious.

WEDNESDAY IS WARMEST DAY

Warmest day this year, with the temperature registering 60 in the shade at noon. Wednesday saw the mercury reach over the 60 line for the first time since October 18 last year, when the day's highest was 61.

With a rising barometer, at 27.76, the forecast is for fair weather with temperature about the same or a little warmer.

Yesterday's highest was 52 degrees, lowest today 32 at 4 a.m., followed by a steady rise to 60 at noon.

With the days rapidly lengthening, Thursday's sunrise is at 5:11 a.m., sunset at 7:54 p.m.

Central Council Heatedly Debates Cooperation Plea

Workers' Ills Best Solved By Tenets of Own Platform, is Attitude of the Leaders.

At a meeting marked by long discussion that became heated at times, central council of the Canadian Labor Party, Tuesday turned thumbs down on a proposal for a confab with representatives of the Communist party in this city at which co-operative action on certain principles would be discussed.

The meeting, in a standing vote, supported the action of the Alberta Federation of Labor at the recent convention, when the provincial body endorsed a committee report setting out that the platform of the Canadian Labor Party contains more adequate measures to remedy the troubles of the workers than any other party.

REJECT PARLEY

In supporting the provincial organization the meeting automatically rejected a motion calling for a joint meeting between three delegates from the central council and a like number from the Communist group at which co-operative measures would be discussed.

Delegate Carl Berg led the forces in opposition to ... with the Communists.

"If the Communists are taken into this organization that I have been associated with for more than 20 years, and entertain the idea they will control the many affiliated bodies of workers, I tell them right now they will get only an empty shell."

Mr. Berg then stated that the political entity, represented by the Labor party was what the Communists desired to gain control of. The political section did not mean that the economic bodies, represented by the trade unions would ever fall behind such a union.

Mr. Berg was certain, on the other hand, that the support of the trade unions would immediately be withdrawn.

"A political body is only a shadow of the real body," Mr. Berg declared.

Alfred Farmilo also opposed a meeting with the Communists.

"We don't bother them. Why should they bother us?" Mr. Farmilo asked.

The speaker said that the platform of the Labor party was much more advanced than that offered by the Soviets.

"We're advocating true Socialism. They haven't got that far yet in Russia," he stated.

WINNIPEG IS NERVOUS WHEN CHICAGO SHUT

WINNIPEG, April 24—Closure of the Chicago Board of Trade created extreme nervousness among traders on the Winnipeg grain exchange today, and after one of the most excited sessions in weeks wheat prices closed 7/8-3/4 cent lower.

Futures see-sawed rapidly as strong support periodically entered the pit to partially offset the heavy selling. May closed at 87 3/8 and July 88 3/4 cents.

The market was called upon to absorb huge quantities of wheat, liquidated hastily by holders at the opening. The selling let up only occasionally during the day, with buying from an undetermined source bringing temporary recovery.

Coupled with this support was export of 500,000 bushels of wheat.

BASE METALS PUSH HIGHER AT TORONTO

TORONTO, April 24—The gold issues displayed mild weakness while silvers and base metals pushed higher today on the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange. The factor behind the advance was the sharp gain in the price of silver metal.

New highs for the year were registered by Eldorado and Castle, the former advancing about 23 cents and the latter about 15. Last hour profit-taking caused a shading of the day's tops. Bear exploration added 5 cents. Premier and Nipissing closed a few cents higher each.

The BANK of NOVA SCOTIA

OVER A CENTURY OF BANKING SERVICE

FROM A STAFF OF SEVEN TO SIX THOUSAND STRONG

From less than a corporal's guard to the equivalent of six regiments — this graphically illustrates the growth of the Bank of Montreal's staff in 117 years.

On the 23rd of August, 1817, the first four employees of the Bank of Montreal were appointed. They were the cashier, an accountant, a paying teller and a second teller. Shortly afterward a discount clerk, a second bookkeeper and a porter were added.

These seven constituted the original staff when the modest establishment on St. Paul Street in Montreal opened its doors on Monday, November 3rd — an establishment which was destined to play a conspicuous and beneficial part in the development of Canada's resources.

Throughout the many decades that have followed, the Bank of Montreal has made increasing effort to provide a banking service always adequate to meet the requirements of Canada's development.

The original staff of seven has grown to 6,300, loyally serving the public through 500 branches extending from sea to sea — and overseas.

D'ATS and PANS by —BILL LEWIS

Probably the greatest defenceman in hockey's history—Eddie Shore—came back home yesterday . . Eddie, the starriest of all artists of the ice, has enjoyed one of the best winters he has ever spent in the National hockey league . . He won, for the second time, the Hart Trophy, which is the emblem given the player who proves the most valuable to his team throughout the season . . . He earned the all-star recognition of 32 out of 34 sports writers who were selected to choose the mythical "best team" in the N H L . . He was awarded one of the medals Charles F. Adams, president of Boston Bruins, conferred upon his four best players . . All of which ,when you think it over, seems to indicate he has spent a wonderful winter in the "big time" of professional hockey.

Eddie Shore

Eddie will lose no time in getting down to business on his farm at Daugh, which is located north of the city . . He will also do considerable golfing as soon as conditions permit.

Marsh Hodgins, the man who directs the composing room of this paper, and Eddie Kramer, boss of the press room "gang" of the rival sheet, were satisfied no little with themselves last night . . The two of them won the bowling championship of the city and did it very convincingly . . Both Kramer and Hodgins really know their stuff when it comes to bowling and deserve the plaudits of ten-pin enthusiasts for their triumph in the tournament to decide the city winners.

Commercial Grads go into the third game of their Canadian championship series with Windsor-Walkerville Alumnae in the East tonight with two wins already tucked away . . If they can whip the Easterners this evening, they'll have another Dominion title in the bag.

Basketball fans around the city were elated yesterday with the fine victory of Grads in the second contest . . They were a little doubtful about the probable outcome of the series when the Page machine only won by a 34-30 margin in the opener last Saturday but Monday's triumph satisfied them that the Grads had the stuff to take the team Easterners rate the best that has yet been assembled to go against the Edmontonians.

Work has been started to get the grounds in shape at Renfrew Baseball Park and it won't be long before the clubs will be able to swing into training . . The groundsmen are busy getting the infield and outfield all prepared and the squads that figure on operating will soon be calling their charges out to practices.

ONTARIO BOYS STAR

LONDON—The best playmaker in European hockey last season, according to many observers, was "Red" Stapleford, former Windsor, Ont., star whose home is at Watford, Ont. George Snaw of Stratford, Ont., and Stapleford teamed together for Streatham, European League champions, and scored more than 100 goals between them during the campaign

LONDON—A horse, Situs, took fright at a hare on Sandown Park racecourse when on his way to the starting gate He bolted jumped a fence and threw his rider . The horse was caught by a policeman, and remounted and took part in the race but at the fifth fence he blundered and threw his jockey again.

BELANGER IS OUT OF GAME AT WINDSOR

Grads to Miss Spark Plug Of Attack In Third Clash Tonight

WINDSOR, April 24.—The third game of the best three-out-of-five basketball series to determine the Canadian Senior Women's Championship will take place here tonight between the Edmonton Grads, present holders of the title, and the Windsor-Walkerville Alumnae, the eastern finalists.

With two victories already tucked away to their credit, the Grads are odds-on favorites to retain their title. Nonetheless, there is just a chance that the Grads will be materially weakened by the loss of one of their star forwards, Babe Belanger, who suffered a sprained ankle in Monday's game.

Should the Edmonton "Spark Plug" be unable to take her place on the floor tonight, there is a general feeling that the Alumnae will register their first win and thus prolong the series until Friday at least.

All other players on both teams are reported to be in fine shape.

SANDLOT SAY SO —

Practices and meetings starts baseball gossip around Edmonton's sand lots this week. . . . Preparations for coming campaigns by the junior, big five and girls' leagues will start within the next two days or so with the juniors leading the parade.

JUNIORS MEET HERE THURSDAY

The Junior League heads the parade with a meeting on Thursday night at Williamson and Mills store. The meeting will start at 8:00 o'clock and the election of officers and other important items of business will be dealt with. . . . The juniors have in the past two years had successful seasons, and there is every promise that it will again be "tops." Safeway, who last year won the junior title, have been the first out on the diamond practicing last night and will be at it again this evening at Boyle street.

Vic Horner's peppery young band of Arrow Busses will be the second club in training, starting their activities on Sunday morning. . . . Again John "Lefty" Ducey will be out in the pep drill

BIG FIVE MEETS ON FRIDAY NIGHT

The Big Five league will hold its meeting on Friday night at the York hotel, starting at 8:00 o'clock. . . . All of last year's team managers, executive members and any other persons interested in playing are asked to be on hand. . . . The election of officers will take place at the confab.

Last year's teams were York Hotel, Gibbons, Empire Hotel, National Home Furnishers and North Edmonton.

GIRLS TO MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

The third league, although it has previously met, will make its plans more definite after Friday evening when the Girls' League meets at the Civic block in the council chambers The girls have already held their semi-annual meeting and after this evening they will have their plans more definite. Two or three teams have been practicing Orange Crush girls a new team to the league who last year were named Safeways, drilled at Boyle street, and Coach Bert Tonsi has a big pre-season training in line for them

GILROY SAYS NEW PENALTY RULE NEEDED

Amateur Ice President Returns From Allan Cup Finals

WINNIPEG, April 24.—"If they did nothing else, the final playdown games in the Allan cup series firmly convinced me that the amateur hockey rules are weakened by not adopting a delayed penalty rule. So impressed am I by the value of the delayed penalty rule to both the public and the teams that I will introduce a covering notice of motion for a change at the next meeting," declared E. A. Gilroy, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, who returned Wednesday from the east over Canadian National lines.

"I hold no brief for either team in the Royals-Wolverines semi-final, but as a result of referee rulings during one of the games the Royals were playing three men against Halifax five. The Halifax team ganged up on their opponents and ran in two goals.

MAKES POOR GAME

"The effect of having two or three men in the penalty box because of rule infractions is demoralizing to a team and certainly is not appreciated by the hockey public. Fans do not pay good money to see a team play three men against five or six, just because there happens to be a couple of minor fouls by one team It makes a poor game and I am absolutely convinced of the value of the delayed penalty system whereby no team could play with less than four or five, as decided upon by the C. A. H. A., it was clearly demonstrated at Halifax that the delayed penalty rule should be in the amateur hockey code.

"Insofar as the residence rule question is concerned, we clarified it in the book and fair warning is issued that no transgressing will be allowed. The rule will be absolutely lived up to and enforced. Players who left their branches last year too late to participate in the season just closed will be O.K. to play in their new branch next winter providing they have continued to reside in that new branch and not again changed their residence. But we give fair warning to all that the residence rule is in the book and will be rigidly enforced," emphatically declared Mr. Gilroy.

Blue Ribbons Win By Score Of 47-22 In One-Sided Game

Art Chapman Is Star Of Coast Team's Triumph With 23 Points

VICTORIA, April 24—Victoria's fast-stepping Blue Ribbons banged out a 47-22 victory over Assumption College of Windsor, Ont., here last night as they opened their three-out-of-five game series for the Men's Canadian Senior Basketball championship.

Lead by Art Chapman, rangy Victoria centre who scored 23, almost half of his team's total points, the Ribbons eased through a fairly even first quarter, then cut loose with a volley of shots that sent them far into the lead at the halfway mark with a 20-9 margin. They increased the pace in the last two quarers to bang in another 27 points while Windsor were held to 13.

HAD HARD LUCK

The score, however, was far from indicative of the merits of the two teams. More successful in working in close the Assumptionites saw shot after shot rim the basket, then topple back.

It was a packed arena that saw one of the finest exhibitions of the hoop game since the Windsor team lost to the Ribbons in 1933, the first

GORDON WALLACE RETAINS TITLE

VANCOUVER, April 24.—Gordon Wallace, of Vancouver, last night successfully defended his recently acquired Canadian welterweight boxing crown when the referee called his 12-round bout with Sonny Jones, also of Vancouver, a draw after the two judges had disagreed.

It was the two Vancouver fighters' second meeting. Wallace was awarded a close decision over his dusky opponent several months ago before he won the crown in a title bout with Tommy Bland of Toronto.

Softball League To Meet Tonight

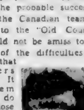

This is the last call for softball managers and players who want to have a say in this season's activities in the Y.M.C.A. Softball Association. Tonight at 8:00 o'clock is the hour set for the annual meeting and elections. The Civic Block is the place, in the office of the school board. Any person interested in men's softball is welcome, according to Pres. Walter Hunter, who will open the meeting as chairman.

Handicaps Facing Canadian Golfers Over In England

Somerville States Team May Not Play Finest In Tournament; Value of Experience Good.

By ROSS "SANDY" SOMERVILLE
Captain-Elect of the Canadian Amateur Golf Team which will Tour England this Summer

So many people have approached me about the probable success or failure of the Canadian team on their visit to the "Old Country" that it would not be amiss to discuss some of the difficulties and problems that the players will meet. It would seem only fair to do this for those individuals and clubs whose contributions have made the trip possible that they might have some understanding of the conditions which may be met and some of the factors which will contribute to the success or failure of the adventure.

C. Ross Somerville

PRACTICE NEEDED

The fact cannot be overlooked that some of the players will suffer from lack of practice and play. Most of them have not touched a club throughout the winter and are only currently playing and practising under conditions that they would not normally accept.

What is more important, however, for the above may correct itself through the time permitted in England before any matches are played is that most of the players have had no competitive or tournament experience since last summer. All players require competition in two three or more tournaments, depending on the individual, before it may be said that any player has reached his top form. The matches and the invitation tournaments that the team expect to find arranged for them in England may do this conditioning and rounding into form. It may not be enough, however.

VOYAGE MAY HAMPER

The sea voyage is another factor. On a trip some individuals never feel comfortable until they return home again. The weather, change of air, change in method of living etc., are all conditions that may influence the play of the individuals.

"Old country" courses and links also are quite different from our own or any courses that most of our players have ever seen. They require, to some extent, other types of shots than those we are generally accustomed to.

WEATHER ABNORMAL

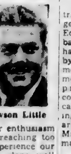

The weather conditions, to say the least, may be abnormal and can be overcome only by a certain amount of experience and play under similar sort of weather, certainly not to be found to any extent in this country and far removed from our usual experience of hot sun and shirt sleeves.

All these things will contribute to upset the play of our golfers. On how easily and how soon they adapt themselves to the new conditions and how little the other factors are not disturbing to their normal game depends the results that we may hope to see.

EXPERIENCE VALUABLE

The experience of American golfers in their visits abroad show these difficulties. Until the last year or two when Lawson Little and Densmore Shute upset precedent and respectively won the British Amateur and Open Championships on their initial visits, all these golfers, for one or more trips, played only reasonably well and in quite a few instances quite poorly, certainly not as well as their individual positions in the world of golf indicated or would expect from them.

Bobby Jones, in one of his early visits, playing in the St. George Vase tournament at Sandwich, posted two scores well up in the eighties. The weather, it is admitted, was bad with plenty of wind and rain. The winner however, under the same conditions, broke 150 for the two rounds. Surely, then, let us curb our enthusiasm and expectations from reaching too lofty a height The experience our players will receive is alone well worth while and, further, only through such channels and methods will our players achieve success in international golf and national championships.

Lawson Little

We hope for the best of luck in our initial effort in British golf but let us not be unreasonable in our expectations.

Community Girls' Softball Meeting

This Thursday, April 25th at 8 o'clock in Room 731 Tegler Block, each community contemplating entering a girls' softball team in the league will be asked to have a representative at the meeting scheduled to discuss plans and rules for its operation.

Early indications point to much enthusiasm in this year's activities. Those interested are asked to be "sure" to attend or delegate someone in their behalf, or phone 83164.

PORT OF SPAIN, April 24.—Racing in South Trinidad isn't as dead as it seemed to be only a few weeks ago. The newly-organized Southern Turf Club has acquired a racing plant and will arrange for a meet to start on June 3.

OWENS FASTEST OVER 100 YARDS

COLUMBUS, April 24. — Ohio State University's 'Ebony Antelope', Jesse Owens, took a flying start and flashed his spikes through 100 yards Tuesday in eight and fourtenths seconds.

He started 20 yards behind the first marker and was hitting his full stride as he went into the measured distance. Three watches caught him in :08.4, a full second under the world mark from a crouching start.

Junior Soccer Entries Must Be Made By April 25

All teams are reminded that entries for the Junior, Juvenile, Midget and Bantam Sections of the Edmonton City and District Football Association must be in the hands of the secretary, F. Green, by Thursday night, April 25th A meeting will be held in the Memorial Hall, Thursday next at 7:30 p.m. sharp to discuss the proposed constitution and arrange the allocation of teams. All teams entering are allowed two delegates who are requested to be present. Phone Mr. Green at 31942 for any information required.

NEW YORK.—It didn't get much notice in the papers but the fact that not a single bottle of pop was sold at the opening baseball game of the season here on April 16 was regarded as unique. It was so cold the customers stuck rigidly to a diet of hot dogs and coffee.

Massive Carnera Big Clumsy Clout States Joe Louis

Trip to New York Will Be Great Adventure For Sensational Negro

By HARRY GRAYSON

CHICAGO, April 14—Joe Louis' trip to New York next month will be a great adventure for the young Detroit negro.

Louis has never seen Primo Carnera in person.

His acquaintance with New York is limited to a few minutes' stop there en route to the national amateur championships in Boston two years ago.

ONLY SAW PICTURES

Joe Louis

Naturally, in being knocked down 11 times, Carnera didn't make much of an impression on the Alabama born Midnight Express.

"Carnera is just a big clumsy cluck," says Louis, very seriously.

"Judging from what I saw in that picture, I believe I can beat him. He's dead easy to hit, and I'm a puncher."

LOUIS CONFIDENT

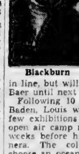

Louis confidently expects to knock out Carnera inside of six rounds. That is the opinion of his veteran trainer, Jack Blackburn, and the famous old lightweight's thoughts are Louis'.

Louis has seen and chatted with Baer.

"Baer appeared on the Detroit card on which I beat Patsy Perroni," explains the new Black Menace. "He boxed four rounds with Babe Hunt, but clowned so much that I couldn't get much of a line on him."

STRAIGHT PUNCHING

Louis speaks sensibly on how he plans to beat Baer in June, 1936.

Blackburn

He presents the old and logical argument of the straight hitter and the swinger — the shortest distance between two points being a straight line, etc.

It is the start against Carnera toward which Louis is being pointed now however. After that Louis will go right on taking the next best man in line, but will be steered clear of Baer until next year.

Following 10 days' rest at West Baden, Louis will participate in a few exhibitions before pitching an open air camp near New York six weeks before his battle with Carnera. The colored clouter will choose an ocean site, probably Asbury Park, and rowing will play a major part in his conditioning. Blackburn is concentrating on the development of his charge's back and shoulder muscles.

CARNERA LOOKED BAD

Carnera did not look at all good in stopping the comparative novice, Ray Impellittiere at Madison Square Garden last month. Many schooled observers suspect that the large Italian is shot, as the trade says when a warrior is on the downgrade. Certainly, the lacing that Carnera took from Baer did him no good.

Nevertheless, Louis, not yet 21, is pretty young and inexperienced to be sent against the huge Carnera, and many keen judges are wondering if Blackburn, who approves the youngster's matches and outlines his battles, isn't under-estimating the capabilities of the Sequals Steer.

Scandinavian Sport Club To Have Tourney

The Scandinavian Sports Club will hold a splendid boxing and wrestling tournament at their gym within the next week or so, and upon the card there has been chosen many fine artists of the squared circle. There has been no set date as to when the tournament will get underway, but it should be made definite within the next day or so.

The club has made splendid progress during the past winter months with both wrestling and boxing, and promises much success following the tourney.

The following wrestlers and boxers will compete on the card, while some not mentioned are expected from Leduc, Beverly and other points:

Wrestlers: Buzoviske; J. Jacobson, G. Garry, J. Garry, B. Vollan, G. Wilky, J. Hanson, F. Parks, D. Johnson, W. Carmichael H. Taylor, N. Neister, I. Svanson.

Boxers: B. McCarthy, P. Chapman, Sam Gibbons, O. Shanks, Ray Cuttler, F. Ferguson, G. Boue, Sam Chapman, Jim Chapman.

An Allison Day At Pinehurst, N.C.

PINEHURST, N.C., April 24.—This was Wilmer Allison's day when he came here for the North and South Tennis Championships; 18 holes of golf in the morning, "just for fun," two scheduled tournament matches in the afternoon, one of them a three-set affair; a dance at night. They say Wilmer sleeps when he hasn't anything more exciting to do.

GOLF FACTS

NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

There are two kinds of people. One class makes every effort to learn the rules and abide by them. The others don't care about rules because they figure they are just to be broken.

I saw a beginner teeing up his ball in the rough. He even kicked it out of sand traps onto the fairway. When I told him he was breaking the rules he sneered at me and pointed to other players who were doing the same thing.

Such people never can become real golfers. Rules and etiquette are half the game of golf. Without a knowledge of them and adherence to them you can't catch the true spirit of the game.

If you abide by them I'm sure you'll find that, like traffic regulations, they are for your benefit in almost every case.

RED DEER IS HEAVY WINNER AT MIT MEET

Alberta Interscholastic Boxing Championships Successful

RED DEER, April 24—Red Deer boys boxed themselves into the lion's share of the titles, winning six out of nine championships at the first Alberta Interscholastic boxing championships which were wound up at Red Deer on Tuesday night after a two-day session. The bouts were staged under auspices of the Red Deer A.A.A. and the Red Deer Inspectorate Interscholastic A.A.A., under sanction of the Alberta branch A.A.U. of Canada.

80-lbs. Manley Thompson, Red Deer.
90-lbs. Adolph Rinn, Trochu.
100-lbs. Neil Bell, Red Deer.
106-lbs. Jack Dillon, Red Deer.
118-lbs. George Hamilton, Red Deer.
126-lbs. Johnnie Campbell, Red Deer.
135-lbs. Darcy Scott, Calgary.
147-lbs. Thomas Arnott, Huxley.
160-lbs. David Larratt, Red Deer.

Sixteen bouts were run off on Tuesday night, two of which were exhibitions, thirteen events were completed on Monday. A notable feature on both nights was the speed with which the committee kept the bouts moving. There was no unnecessary delay and everything went along smoothly.

PLENTY OF ACTION

Tuesday night's fights brought out fine boxing and in almost every number there was plenty of action for the fans. Most of the boys showed a willingness to mix it and dealt out punishment freely. The high light of the evening for heavy punching was the 147-pound final between Arnott, Huxley and Herb Snowden, Calgary, Arnott got the decision.

Johnnie Campbell, Red Deer, and Jack Orton, High River, put on a rousing bout in the 126-lb. final, the local boy getting in some deadly work with his left to win the decision.

There were three technical knockout during the evening. In the 80-lb. semi-final, Thompson, Red Deer, was too much for the wild, rushing attack of Evans, Trochu, and the local lad had his man in trouble before the end of the first round.

The three judges, Harold Dancocks, Red Deer; W. J. Findlay, Rocky Mountain House; and E. H. Kelly, Great Bend, had no easy task in selecting winners in most fights.

2-ROUND EXHIBITION

Dickie Krause and Billy Holmes, Red Deer, 40-lbs., put on a 2-round exhibition bout to open the show and later in the evening George Dancock and Jackie Krause at 50-lb. also staged a two-round exhibition. The little fellows put lots of action into it.

Results of bouts:—

80-lb. Semi-Final: Ronnie Shirra, 79 lbs., Calgary, beat Hugh McLevin, 7878 lbs., Red Deer; Manley Thompson, Red Deer, beat Ronnie Shirra, Calgary.

118-lb Final: George Hamilton, 118, Red Deer, beat Wm. Brooks, 114, Lacombe.

126-lb. Final: Johnnie Campbell, 126, Red Deer, beat Jack Orton, 125, High River.

135-lb. Final: D'Arcy Scott, 134, Calgary, beat Frank Scott, 131, High River.

147-lb. Final: Thomas Arnott, 147 Huxley, beat Herb Snowden, Calgary.

A. H. Sachse, of Edmonton, refereed all the bouts and was a very capable and pleasing official. R. B. Welliver was chairman and D. J. W. Oke, secretary of the committee in charge of arrangements; other members, including Dr. F. E. Dodds, A. B. Mitchell, E. T. Hacking, Dr. G. M. Little, J. G. Lafrance.

B. W. Bellamy, Wetaskiwin, secretary of the Alberta branch A.A.U. of Canada, presented certificates to the winners and congratulated the local authorities on their excellent management of the first interscholastic championships.

VICTORIA FIVE TAKES OPENER OVER WINDSOR

Where Ribbons showed superiority over the visitors was in long distance sniping, ringing in about 10 of their 21 baskets from near the centre floor section, while Windsor was held to a total of nine field goals.

EDGE FREE THROWS

Windsor had the edge in the free-throw department, scoring on four of their seven free throws while Ribbons clicked on five out of 11.

The teams meet here in the second game of the series on Thursday night.

FIRST QUARTER

Windsor took the ball from the tipoff and Regin worked in but missed. Art Chapman, Ribbons' rangy centre, opened the scoring with a basket on a fast break and Red Martin followed with another field goal for Victoria on a rebound.

Toots Meretsky counted the first points for Windsor on a long centre shot and Rogin added another point on a free throw. Art Chapman sank a short side shot and banged in another when he picked off Brother Chuck's rebound on a free throw.

The Windsor defence tightened up and Ribbons, forced to shoot from near mid floor, missed five times in a row. Aitchison broke away near the Assumption basket and bodded through the whole Victoria team but his shot from under the basket rimmed the hoop and bounced back. Just before the quarter ended the Windsor forward missed a long shot from the side.

SECOND QUARTER

Doug. Peden lanky Ribbon guard, opened the second quarter with a basket from the corner. Both teams were shipping the ball around and breaking fast. Assumption worked down to the Victoria defence but Chuck Chapman broke up the attack. Two free throws were awarded Art Chapman when he was fouled by Rogin. The Victoria centre missed the first but made the second good to give the Ribbons an 11-3 lead. Peden added another point on a free throw in the next minute and Porky Andrews followed with a field goal. Sherman sniped a basket from the corner and then tossed in a long one to cut down Ribbons lead. Aitchison and Meretsky combined with Aitchison taking the pass to add two more points to the Windsor total. Chuck Chapman banged in a basket for Ribbons from mid-floor. Windsor missed three shots on a return rush, the ball just rimming the hoop each time. Chuck scored again on a pass from Red Martin and Martin dropped in the last basket of the quarter on Art Chapman's rebound, 27 seconds from the whistle to give Victoria a 20-9 lead at half-time.

THIRD QUARTER

Just after the tipoff opening the third quarter, Aitchison and Sherman sped down the floor and Aitchison netted on the pass. Art Chapman banged in a rebound for Victoria. Sherman slipped through the Victoria defence but his shot was wild when he was fouled by Andrews. The Windsor guard made one of the two free throws good. The visitors were trailing the Ribbons who had a 22-12 lead. Meretsky picked off a Victoria pass under his own basket and raced down the floor alone to drop in a beautiful shot. Two more Windsor shots rimmed the hoop. Peden counted a free throw for Ribbons and Byrne duplicated for Windsor. Ribbons took the time out and when play resumed Windsor rimmed the hoop three times again. Martin slipped through for a basket to give Ribbons a 25-15 lead as the third quarter ended.

FOURTH QUARTER

Meretsky bowled Peden over under the Windsor basket and the Victoria guard was awarded two free throws. He counted on the second and Art Chapman added two more points when he banged in the rebound. Art bagged another basket a minute later and Rogin went in for Meretsky and Harrison took Desjarlais place on the Windsor lineup. Rogin counted on a free throw. Art Chapman broke through and counted two baskets in a row, the last on a pass from Andrews. Harrison dumped in a field goal for Windsor and Sherman added another from a side shot but with seven minutes to go the Ribbons speeded up. Martin counted on Art Chapman's rebound and Andrews followed with a free throw. Martin clicked again on a pass from Chuck Chapman and the pair reversed the order in the next minute to give Ribbons a 41-20 lead with three minutes to go. Peden tossed in a rebound and Art Chapman added another pair of points on a long one-handed shot from near mid-floor. Aitchison dumped in a side shot just before Peden counted again on a corner shot for the last score of the game and a 47-22 victory for the Blue Ribbons.

CANUCK GOLF TEAM LEAVES ON BIG TOUR

Toronto Banquets Team As They Leave For New York City

TORONTO, April 24.—Hailed as emissaries of goodwill, setting out on an epoch-making pilgrimage, the Canadian amateur golf team selected to tour the British Isles this summer was given a rousing "Bon Voyage" send-off at a banquet staged by the Royal Canadian Golf Association at the Lambton Golf Club here last night.

The team composed of Ross "Sandy" Somerville, London, Ont., F. G. Hoblitzel and Phil Farley, Toronto; Gordon Taylor and Eddie Innes, Montreal, "Bud" Donovan, Winnipeg, Ken Black and Dick Moore, Vancouver, will leave for New York today, sailing for England on Thursday. All but Innes met in Toronto for the first get-together of the team. The Montreal player decided to join the squad in New York.

Although not officially selected as a member of the team, Jack Nash, of London, Ont., will make the overseas trip with the party and participate in the program of matches with the tourists. Special matches have already been arranged against selected Old Country teams at Woking, Sandwich, Hoylake and St. Andrews. The Canadians will also compete in the British Amateur tournament and the St. George's Vase tourney.

THEIR FIRST TRIP

Except for Somerville and Nash, members of the team will be making their first trip abroad for competitive play, but all have already established themselves in the forefront of amateur golf in the provincial and dominion field.

Although they were without the benefit of serious practice, the tourists gave a good account of themselves over Lambton's exacting layout. Donovan, Winnipeg's 21-year-old sensation, showed the way to the rest of the field, by turning in a sound 72, one over par, and up to the 17th hole the westerner was breezing along one under perfect figures. Somerville and Farley also were in fine fettle with 75's, while Moore was in with a 76 Taylor, Black and Hoblitzel toured the course in 77's.

MASTER STROKE

Robert Jacob of Winnipeg, vice-president of the R.C.G.A., who will accompany the team, declared the decision of the association in sending a team to the United Kingdom was a "master stroke of enterprise." He believed the mission would be the first of such annual goodwill matches which would tend to tighten the bonds of friendship between Canada and the Mother Country.

Today the team will be presented with blazers, bearing the Canadian Maple Leaf. The players will return to Canada on June 8 and participate in the amateur championship at Hamilton on June 17.

Butterfly Strokes Banned in Swim

LONDON, April 24.—The British Amateur Swimming Association has put a ban on the "butterfly" method of breast-stroke swimming, although Olympic rules permit the above-water recovery. It is believed unlikely that many English swimmers will concentrate on the breast stroke for the 1936 Olympics as a result of the new ruling.

EVERY BRANCH OF EDUCATION DEBATED HERE

Delegates to Teachers' Convention Hear Variety Of Talks

Dividing into five sections, delegates at the Wednesday morning session of the annual convention of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance were able to hear addresses that covered virtually every branch of educational work.

Under the chairmanship of Miss Pearl Ebert, the public school section heard an address on a new course in primary language by Dr. Donalda J. Dickie, followed by a description of the Hadow scheme at work in the English schools by Miss Ruth Cherry

PUBLIC SCHOOL SECTION

With the chair taken by H. T. Robertson, the last period of the public school section was devoted to addresses on problem-solving efficiency in arithmetic by M. E. Lazerte, Ph.D., "The 'Better English' Project," C. Sansom, Ph.D., and "The Determination of Minimum Essentials in the Language Work of the Elementary School Grades," by the same speaker.

At the high school section held under the chairmanship of H. G. Beacom, delegates heard a debate on "Administration of Secondary Education in Alberta," by G. F. McNally, B.A., superintendent of schools; Dr. C. Sansom and Dr. H. C. Newland and an address "Practical Reading Techniques for the Secondary Schools," by Dr. Dickie.

Held under the chairmanship of Oliver McKee, C.A., the commercial section heard addresses on "Charts and Records," by P. E. Rose; "Commercial Training in Town and Village High Schools," by S. T. J. Ellerton and "The Course in Business," by C. A. L. Maberley.

TECHNICAL SECTION

The delegates attending the technical section, which was a combined meeting of the technical, manual arts and household economic subsections, heard addresses on "The Changing Economic Position of the Homemaker" by Miss Hazel McIntyre and "A World Survey of Technical Education at the Secondary School Level" by M. J. Hilton.

The music section, held under the chairmanship of J. N. Eagleson, Mus. Bac., supervisor of music, Edmonton Public Schools was devoted to addresses on "What can be done in Music Appreciation in our schools?" by Mrs. F. B. Smith, L.I.S.M.; "The Co-operative Scheme for Music Supervision in the towns of the Rocky Mountain Pass" by W. G. Moffatt, Blairmore, and "The Difficulties and Problems in Music with which the Majority of Normal School Students have to contend" by Madame Ellis Browne, L.R.A.M., director of Music, Provincial Normal School, Calgary.

The music section, which was the first of its kind to be held during an Easter convention, was devoted to discussion in addition to the address, and afforded the delegates an excellent opportunity for an exchange of views and a unified action towards a general betterment of progress in music education in the schools of the province.

SIR F. FLOUD WILL ADDRESS AGRICS HERE

Recently Appointed British Minister to Canada is Coming Soon

Recently appointed British Minister to Canada, Sir Francis Floud will be the main speaker at the annual convention of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists, to be held in this city for the first time in 10 years from June 24 to 28, according to information received from the committee in charge of arranging the convention. His address will be on the subject of "International Marketing Relationships." At one time, Sir Francis was associated with the British ministry of agriculture.

Another speaker of prominence will be Dr. Swain of the Canadian Research Council, who will speak of his efforts along the line of coordinating agricultural research work in Canada.

MANY TO ATTEND

From all sections of the Dominion technical agriculturists will come for the convention. Included will be many officials of the Dominion and other provincial agricultural departments.

The convention will be held immediately following the annual convention of the Canadian Seed Growers Association, which will be held here during the previous week and which is expected to have a large attendance of seed growers from all parts of the country.

Outstanding among the topics for discussion at the Technical Agriculturists convention will be the problem of soil drifting and drought problems in general. One entire sitting of the convention will be given over to these matters and leading speakers will participate.

MANY FEATURES

The subject will be introduced by Hon. Gordon Taggart, Saskatchewan minister of agriculture while the various phases of the problems will be dealt with by several Dominion and provincial activities.

Entertainment features for both conventions will include a trip to Jasper Park and a tour of the southern part of the province to include Turner Valley, the irrigation districts and Banff and Waterton Parks.

EJECT THREE FROM RELIEF SOUP KITCHEN

Action taken by City police Wednesday morning in ejecting from the provincial soup kitchen three men who comprise the grievance committee for the unemployed single men fed in the kitchen led to a protest interview with Mayor J. A. Clarke at city hall later in the morning.

NO JUSTIFICATION

Representing the jobless, H. Johnson, L. Rodman, E. Rogers and J. Nicholson claimed there was no justification for the steps taken by the police since the men had been orderly.

It was explained there are six persons on the grievance committee, three of whom sit with the single jobless when they are fed in the kitchen in the morning and the other three being present when the second meal is served in the afternoon.

Between 1,400 and 1,500 men are fed in the kitchen. The committee hears complaints by the unemployed at meal times.

POLICE INSTRUCTED

Mayor Clarke told the protest delegation that the police were under instructions to protect the property and that he did not plan to hinder them if they were carrying out their official duties.

The delegation claimed that after the committee was ejected order in the kitchen was only maintained by speakers leaping to the tables and urging the men to remain quiet.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE By Ahern

The DARK BLOND

By Carleton Kendrake

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MILLICENT GRAVES agrees to work overtime when her employer, GEORGE DRIMGOLD, tells her he wants to dictate a confession that for years he has protected a murderer.

Millicent goes out to dinner, promising to return. Drimgold tells her to watch for a woman in a black ermine coat. Millicent sees such a woman. Later she discovers that someone has taken her purse, substituting one exactly like it. She goes back to the tearoom, on the way meeting a distinguished-looking man of middle age. No one in the tearoom knows anything about Millicent's purse.

She returns to Drimgold's office, finds him dead. In panic she rushes from the building, registers at a hotel under an assumed name. Next morning, walking along the street, she realizes someone is following her. A moment later a man touches her shoulder, says, "Just a moment, please."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Millicent hesitated a moment but the silent insistence of his eyes and his outstretched hand was compelling. She handed the purse to him.

CHAPTER III

To her surprise, she found she was staring into the features of the tall, slender man who had guided the elevator down from the 17th floor the night before.

"Good morning," he said. "I thought I recognized you when you came out of the department store, but you were walking so rapidly I almost had to run to catch up. What's the hurry?"

She tried to compose her features along lines of frigid formality and say, after the most approved manner, "Sir, I don't know you."

The attempt was a lamentable failure. She knew it as soon as she heard the quavering tone of her own voice.

The man laughed.

"Come, come," he said, "this is no time for you and me to be formal with each other. After all, you know, I'm entitled to an explanation."

"An explanation of what?" she asked.

"An explanation," he said, "of how it happened that you were in such a hurry to leave the building—the 17th floor, I think it was that you rang from, wasn't it?"

"I'm sure," she said, "I haven't the faintest idea of what you're talking about."

"And the picture," he said, "in the newspapers is a fair likeness. It doesn't do you justice, particularly now that your eyes are so bright, but, to a person who has once seen you, the resemblance is readily apparent."

"Who are you?" she asked.

"That's better," he told her. "My name is Happ—Jarvis C. Happ."

"Have you been following me?" she asked.

He laughed again, tucked her arm into his and said, "Come, you're all wrought up. Let's stop into a restaurant where we can talk. Have you had breakfast?"

She hesitated for a moment, then said slowly, "I could use a cup of coffee."

"That's fine," he remarked. "After all, you know, I'm entitled to an explanation."

He deftly guided her around the corner, into an imposing restaurant which, she knew, made a specialty of breakfasts as well as formal dinners.

She could feel her pulse pounding in her ears but, despite her nervousness, she was quick to recognize his magnetic manner, the smooth assurance of one who is accustomed to command.

Despite herself, in some subtle manner she found herself relaxing her vigilance. There was something so strong and restful about this man that he seemed, by a mere touch of his hand upon her arm, to raise a defensive barrier between her and the outer world. The feminine part of her nature gave instant response.

She realized only too well that this was the natural result of his strong character, of his calm poise, of the instantaneous deference which was shown him by the head waiter. She knew that this man intended to question her. She sensed that his underlying motive might well be to trap her into some sort of betrayal, and she tried frantically to guard against this feeling.

Seated at the table, she noticed once more his keen eyes, the inherent power and dignity of his manner.

"Two pots of coffee right away," he said to the waiter, "and then we'll give you the balance of our order."

He smiled reassuringly at Millicent.

"After all," he said, "I won't bite."

She started to say something, then felt that he was trying to draw her out and decided she wouldn't give him the satisfaction of trapping her by indirection. She resolved to wait for direct questions against which she could raise a proper guard.

* * *

The waiter returned with the coffee. The steaming aroma made her realize that she was really very hungry. Her companion, seeming to sense her needs, said, "They have some very fine German pancakes with apple here. You can have a side order of grilled bacon."

She nodded her head.

"I'll have nothing but coffee," he told the waiter. Millicent added cream and sugar to her coffee, looked up to meet the man's searching eyes.

"Well?" she asked.

"Understand," he told her, "I believe in you. A young woman who is as attractive as you are could, under no circumstances, have anything to do with a murder. But there are certain circumstances that should be explained."

"Yes?" she asked, with a rising inflection, stirring her coffee slowly.

She caught the flicker of a frown about his eyes, a tightening of the corners of his mouth.

"Yes," he told her. "Your purse, for instance."

"That could have been stolen, couldn't it?" she said.

"Do you think it was stolen?"

"I didn't say so."

"That," he said, "is precisely the point I want to make. You had better tell me the truth."

"Why should I tell you the truth? You are a total stranger to me."

"Oh, no, I'm not," he objected.

"I met you just once, under rather informal circumstances."

"Under very deadly circumstances," he reminded her.

There could be no mistaking the cold menace of his eyes now.

"I mean," he said, "that I am perhaps the most important witness that the prosecution could have. I can put you at the exact scene of the crime at the exact time it was committed."

She gasped as the full significance of what he was saying dawned upon her.

"I think," he told her, his gaze softening somewhat, "that there's some sort of a penalty attached, in the event I don't call in the police at once. I know there's a very grave responsibility. I think I'm an accessory after the fact, or something of the sort. However, I'm willing to meet you half way."

The waiter arrived with her order. She knew that she was hungry, and yet it was necessary for her to almost force the food into her mouth, which suddenly felt dry.

"What is it you want?" she asked.

"I want to know your story," he told her, "in detail."

"Why?"

"Because I think I may help you."

"What assurance have I of that?"

"The best assurance you can possibly have," he said, "is the fact that I am helping you. It is only necessary for me to step to the door, to call the policeman from the corner and have you placed under arrest."

She recognized the logic of his words.

"Go on," he said. "Finish your food and then we'll talk."

* * *

She wanted desperately to think, but there was something in the timber of his voice, something in the assurance of his manner which swept her completely off her feet. More than anything, she wanted someone in whom she could confide.

The knife and fork dropped to the edges of her plate. She raised her eyes and started to talk. She talked without reservation, pouring forth the entire story.

"That," she said, "is my story," and suddenly realized her appetite had returned. She picked up her knife and fork and attacked the excellent breakfast ravenously.

He sipped coffee and watched her wordlessly.

When she had finished, he said slowly, "I believe you. I am going to help you. You can appreciate something of the problem before you. In a way, you've burnt your bridges. You should have told your story to the police at the time, if you wanted to be believed. Now the police will think any story you may tell has been concocted for you by some clever attorney."

She nodded her head, realizing only too well the force of what he said.

"There's only one thing for us to do now," he said. "That's to find the person who switched the purses."

"For us to do?" she repeated, puzzled.

"Certainly," he told her. "I'm going to help you."

"Why?"

"That," he said, "is one of the things I can't tell you right now. I've had to take you on faith, and you've got to take me on faith."

She stared at him, realizing that he had told her absolutely nothing concerning himself or his motives, but that she was trusting him implicitly.

"One of the first things," he observed, "that you'll have to do is to change your appearance. You'll have to darken your skin somewhat and get a transformation that will give you dark hair. You'll have to get some sort of position where you won't be at all conspicuous, some place where you can keep under cover if you have to."

"But," she objected, "that isn't finding the person who substituted purses."

He nodded slowly.

"It's going to be a long chase," he said. "The person that you're dealing with is clever. It's probably a woman. She observed every detail about your purse. She switched purses with you, first, to get your keys, secondly, so that she could leave incriminating evidence at the scene of the crime. She planned a murder cold-bloodedly and deliberately."

Millicent nodded.

"Come," said her companion picking up the checks from the table and leaving a tip for the waiter, "we've got to get busy."

* * *

He guided her to the door, summoned a cab, gave the cab driver an address which she didn't hear.

"You're going to require some money," he said. "Have you any?"

"None," she told him, "except the money that was in the substituted purse."

"That's the one you are carrying?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Give it to me," he said. "It may give me a clew."

She hesitated a moment, but the silent insistence of his eyes and his outstretched hand were compelling. She passed the purse over to him.

He took bills from a well-filled wallet and handed them to her.

"One of the things you've got to have," he said, "if you're going to avoid the law successfully, is money—plenty of money. Keep this with you."

He turned casually to look behind him and then suddenly stiffened. When he spoke, his voice was strained.

"I don't think," he said, "they've seen you yet. Flatten down on the floor. After I leave you, wait until you're certain you're not observed. Then go to 228 Mill street. The name of the place is the Acme beauty parlor. Ask for Miss Hanson."

His arm circled her shoulders, pushing her down toward the floor of the taxicab. He called to the driver, "Okay, buddy, pull in close to the curb and stop. Let me out. Then drive straight down the street and turn at the corner. Don't look back."

"What is it?" Millicent asked in a thin, frightened voice, from her cramped position on the floor of the taxicab.

"Two detectives," he said, "following in a police car."

She heard the crisp rustle of a bill, heard him say something in a whisper to the cab driver, then the sound of a slamming door. The cab lurched once more into motion. She felt it swing at the corner.

Abruptly, she realized that she had surrendered the only bit of evidence she possessed to a man who was not only a stranger but who had been in the vicinity of the murder at the very time it was committed.

LABOR SPURNS PROPOSAL FOR CO-OPERATION

with several others could see no harm, however, in the proposed conference.

MISS CRANG WILLING

Miss Crang said that the situation in Germany should be a grave warning to the workers of Canada. There, she claimed, the battles between Social Democrats and Communists had resulted in the rise of Hitler and the destruction of trade unionism.

Mr. Brodgen said he doubted if the Labor party could ever agree with the Communists on general principles but he did not think this sufficient reason for not holding a conference.

Another delegate likened the attitude of Mr. Berg to many modern preachers, who gave the people in church severe castigation while the outsiders were left to sin as they pleased. If other groups of workers' organizations could be brought into the movement, the strength would be that much greater.

CONVENTION CALL

Others pointed to the fact that the Communists had already nominated candidates for the elections and as a result it would be impossible for Labor to make any feasible working agreement with the party.

A general call to affiliated organizations, asking that candidates be named for the West Edmonton federal nominating convention to be held May 28, was issued. Owing to the defeat of the White bill, aimed at removal of the ban on candidates from University staffs, Dr. William Alexander will not contest the riding for the Labor party.

A report of the recent convention of the Alberta Federation of Labor was given by Walter Mentz. It was announced that delegate Dan Powers had resigned from the executive of the federation.

MISS CRANG ELECTED

Miss Crang also reviewed the work done by the city council since January 1 last and suggested that the C.L.P. appoint a member to sit in at all council meetings so that the organizations would be with full information of civic affairs at all times.

Ald. James Findlay, president of the central council, was in the chair.

THIS WAR-MAD WORLD: Gas Protection For Mothers, Babies

The major powers are speeding formidable programs to protect their civilian populations against what they fear would be another great war's greatest menace — poison gas. At least three countries—Germany, France and England—have instituted plans that will teach every man, woman and child the use of anti-gas and anti-bomb devices. Every German home must display a placard pledging its occupants to study latest protective methods. New apartment houses in Paris are equipped with gas-proof cellars. Many buildings in England have similar chambers. Germany is a step ahead of other nations, for she is training domestic animals to wear gas masks, so they may be of service to the Reich in time of dire need.

EVEN DOGS MUST BE PREPARED—Germany's campaign against possible poison gas attack is the most gigantic of any nation. It includes the civilian population of every age. Recently the reich military authorities turned their attention to training the animals that would be of most service to the nation during times of crisis. Horses and dogs are being accustomed to wearing gas masks. Carrier pigeons have been pressed into service to carry messages where radio or wireless might be intercepted. In this picture poor Fido is being led through heavy fumes, to teach him how to wear a gas mask

SOME CHILDREN CAN BE SAVED—France is manufacturing a new-style suitcase that will protect a child from gas fumes. Invented by Henri Le Witta, Paris engineer, the device has windows through which an anxious mother, presumably wearing a gas mask, can watch her innocent baby. A similar gas-protection shelter for adults is a stretcher designed for transportation of wounded French civilians during gas attack. As soon as the door of the aluminum hull is closed, an apparatus begins to work automatically, keeping poison gas from the interior and supplying oxygen to the occupant

THE JOB MUST GO ON—Evidently fearing that an aerial gas attack would be sudden and unexpected, various nations are training workers to do their everyday work while wearing gas masks. Nothing is left to chance by military experts. These Japanese switchboard operators in a Tokio department store get their numbers—masks and all. If enemy aeroplanes ever zoom over Nippon, her people will be prepared

RUSH TO THE CELLARS—Not only are modern buildings in Paris, France, equipped with bomb-proof cellars. Similar protective structures have been built under many of the city's streets, and would be available to pedestrians if shells came too close for comfort, as they did in the great war. Photo shows the iron door of the turret-like entrance of one of these cellars, invented by a Colonel 'Brieze. The subterranean shelters are equipped with apparatus for regulating the air within, while pressure valves prevent poison gas from seeping in from outside. Great blocks of apartment houses in Paris have an added sales talk when they can advertise the added facilities of these grim tokens of national fear

AERIAL WAR OF TO-MORROW—This graphic conception of the effects of a modern war, reproduced from a drawing by a German artist, is intended as the reich's warning against armed combat. It represents a section of London, England, during an air raid. Buildings and humans alike are crushed to the ground. The ravages of deadly bombs and poison gas have no respect for man and beast. Thoughts of scenes like these have led England to prepare for any eventuality

FARTHING MAKES STRONG PLEA FOR SIGHTLESS FOLK

Unanimous endorsation was given by the legislature on Tuesday, to a resolution, moved by Hugh C. Farthing, Conservative, Calgary, that "provision should be made for pensions for blind people over 40 years of age and that the government be requested to collaborate with the government of Canada to attain this object."

In support of this motion, Mr. Farthing declared that there were 1,455 blind persons in Canada today. Some were able to earn and some were not. He said that $2,000 was the highest amount the blind were able to earn, with certain notable exceptions and the annual earnings of others were scaled down to $5. He said that if the provision of the Old Age Pensions Act was extended to as to include blind persons of more than 40 years, the pensioners under the act would be increased by 2,614.

The total increase in payments would be less than $600,000 a year for the entire Dominion.

He said there were 66 known blind persons in Alberta over 70 years of age and 89 between 40 and 70. One half of the total blind population of the Dominion were over 60.

Mr. Farthing outlined help given the blind in other countries and urged that action be taken here.

INTIMATE GLIMPSES AND INSIDE STUFF ON THE MOVIE COLONY

By DAN THOMAS

GAMBLING, Hollywood's favorite pastime, also is responsible in a large measure for the tremendous growth and success of the film industry.

There can be no doubt about the movie moguls will bet a millions on almost anything. For years stories have trickled back from Agua Caliente about the thousands of dollars won and lost by film celebrities. Several local gambling spots have been practically supported by the celluloid gang. Huge sums are bet every year on the outcome of football games.

Hundreds of screen notables daily shoved money through the betting windows at the Santa Anita race track during the season which just closed. In fact, you can get a bet on almost anything around the film colony.

And that same spirit has been carried right into the studios. While more staid business men wait to see what trend affairs will take, moviee moguls will bet a million dollars that the public will like a certain picture or a new star. Nor are the men who sit behind big mahogany desks the only filmlanders willing to take a gamble. Directors and stars are equally as willing. Sometimes they lose, but more often they win.

Every time a new personality or new type of picture is brought to the screen, somebody has taken a gamble.

VACATION HALFWAY

Cutting short her proposed trip to the Orient, Ann Harding now is en route back from Honolulu to take the top spot in "The Flame Within."

Charles Laughton's entry into the films was a gamble. He was not satisfied with his own work. "I'll never become established if this keeps up," he told his wife across the dinner table almost nightly.

But it did keep up and he did become established—not as a personality but as an actor who could do any sort of a role, one of his best being the mad Louis XIV in "Madam DuBarry," and now he's playing the cruel, calculating heavy in "Call of the Wild."

"Since coming into pictures I've played almost every conceivable character except Reginald Owen," the actor told me in his modest Hollywood home. "And I've been mighty successful doing it. But I would like to be myself once, just for the novelty."

PREPAREDNESS

Richard Dix and his wife are spending all of their spare time these days visiting their friends who have nurseries, to get ideas for the nursery they are building in their own home. The occupant of the room is expected about May 1.

OTTAWA, April 24—Hon. J. L. Ralston, former Liberal minister of national defence, was non-committal last night on reports he would not be a candidate in the forthcoming general elections.

U.S. AERIAL CHIEF GIVES INFORMATION

"Things We Doing Ten Years Ago They Doing Now," is Report

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Admiral William H. Standley, United States chief of naval operations, was quoted in house committee testimony made public yesterday as saying Great Britain was displeased with her naval air system.

Records of an appropriations subcommittee quote Standley as replying to a committee question asking whether Britain had a consolidated air ministry:

"Yes sir, she has, and she is so displeased with her navy that she has practically no air force in the navy. I was just over there and I know. (The testimony was taken in February, this year.)

ELEMENTARY TYPE

"The operations from her carriers are so elementary in type and character that some things that we were doing 10 years ago they are doing now."

Reporters who sought to question Standley concerning the quote "displeased with her navy" were informed that the Admiral would say nothing about the record. His office, however, represented him as misquoted in that portion and that he actually meant Great Britain was displeased with the consolidated air ministry.

Sharply Disputed By Admiral

LONDON, April 24. — Admiral William H. Standley's contention the British naval air arm is 10 years behind that of the United States was sharply disputed by Admiral Mark Kerr, retired British naval officer and one-time commander of the Greek navy.

"Standley has got hold of the wrong end of the stick," said Admiral Kerr. "By the end of this year Britain will possess a naval air arm more efficient in power and performance than any other country in the world."

"WE ARE BEHIND"

However, Commander Arthur Marsden of the Royal Navy, retired, who commanded H.M.S. Ardent at the battle of Jutland in 1916, said "We ought to have a much stronger fleet air arm. In all these respects we are behind the United States."

TRUE CANUCKS ORGANIZE INTO ANTI-BOLSHIES

MUNDARE, April 24.—Organizing to combat the undermining doctrines of Communism, a Mundare local of the Association of Loyal Canadians, Ukrainian Section, was formed at a well attended meeting Saturday.

In a three-hour address before a large crowd, Vladimir Kupchenko, organizer for the association, flayed the "pernicious doctrines of Communism and Bolshevik activities in Canada." He urged his listeners to organize to combat this menace and, at the close of the meeting, practically every person present signed a card pledging loyalty to Canada and her traditions.

President of the local association is Nick Charuk; vice-president, William N. Cherniawski, and secretary-treasurer, J. T. Worbets.

DAILY TRUE STORY

WHAT NORA THOUGHT

By Dwight Sargent

"You look grand, Jim," Nora Carroll said as she met James Burns coming up the subway stairs. They had come down town on the same train but in different cars.

"I'm supposed to be a depositor, and at my wages that's a yell," Jim said, rather dourly.

"I know — but it's a job and a good steady one and you've been in luck to be promoted from messenger boy to—"

"Psst," Jim warned, "no one's supposed to know, and it's not to be spoken. I'll be over tonight. You go ahead, I'm supposed to be a business man going to the bank on banking business."

Nora understood and went ahead while Jim stopped to look in a tobacco store window until she was some distance away.

Jim Burns was fortunate in that he didn't look at all like a bank guard. He looked more like a prosperous young business man just from college. When Nora remarked that he looked grand it was because he was better dressed than ever before. The Corner National Bank had staked him to a large wardrobe that would have cost him half a year's wages to buy. Nora knew about the new job because she and Jim told each other everything — especially how much they loved each other and how difficult it was to save enough money to afford to be married—but that morning was the first time she had seen him "disguised as a gentleman" as Jim put it.

PHONY CHEQUES

Jim saw her enter the side doorway of the bank buiding. She worked for an advertising agency over the bank sitting all day long by the window at a drawing board, making little drawings of clothes used to illustrate department store advertising.

Then Jim went into the bank with a business-like air. He even had a briefcase with him. He had been drilled as to what to do. He went in and out of the bank, wrote out phoney cheques at the desk and acted as best he could as any honest citizens would, on going to a bank on business.

There had been an epidemic of holding up banks, especially the branches of banks in the less policed districts away from the financial center. There were the customary guards in gray uniforms, but Jim was put on as an extra precaution. This was because Jim was intelligent, big and strong, and, as mentioned looked like a young business man.

That evening Jim walked the three blocks over from his married sister's apartment, where he roomed, to the Carroll apartment, where Nora lived with her people. They went out to a neighborhood picture house as they often did.

"How did the first day go, Jim?" Nora asked.

"O.K. The big boss told me I was doin' fine. Gee, I wish I could get some action, nab some guy tryin' to held up one of th' tellers and get a boost in pay. Then we could make th' grade and lease a little apartment and get spliced."

Nora sighed.

She agreed with him perfectly in that wish.

"I was thinkin' today," Jim said, "how there was you up over the bank workin' hard and me down below with my dogs gettin' tired by the minute, and all that money between us and only a handful of hundreds would make us happy."

"We'll be saving, Jim," said Nora.

NOT FUNNY

The weeks passed and Jim still held his peculiar job. He never wore the same suit two days in succession and he had briefcases some days, little black bags other days or none at all. Only the unusually observing ones would note that the same young man was in and out of the bank every day.

One night when Jim was with Nora she told him that he hadn't ought to complain too much. "There's a poor man been in that little cheap apartment over the tobacco store across the street all the week, sitting by the window, playing solitaire. He just sits and stares out and sometimes he even hasn't enough interest or ambition to look at the cards as he turns them."

"Jobs," Jim said, "never come to men while they sit and play solitaire."

"I suppose he is discouraged."

The next night Jim went over to see Nora. It wasn't his usual night. He said he was just out taking a walk and dropped in.

"Is that guy still playin' solitaire and expectin' a job to come in and grab him?" Jim asked, with a laugh.

"Yes, but it isn't funny, it's pathetic," Nora declared.

"What happened, Jim?" she asked.

"Nothing at all. I got a few minutes off and thought I'd rest my dogs and watch how you work," and he sat down beside her.

"There's that poor soul, playing solitaire," Nora told him.

"Yes, that's so, he must be dumb. I'd go nuts doin' that all day. How long has he been there?"

"Since Monday."

"Saturday's a half day. I wonder will he knock off playin' that game at noon?"

"I don't see anything funny about it, Jim Burns!"

"Nor I, my dear," Jim agreed and said he had to be back on the job.

"It looks to me as though he was waiting for somebody. He has a watch beside him, and he's always picking it up or looking at it or handling it."

"Forget it," Jim advised.

At noon Mr. Weldon, manager of the branch bank, was getting ready to go out for some golf when Jim came to him.

"Could I talk for a minute, Mr. Weldon?" he asked.

"If it's a raise you want to talk about—no. If it's anything else, Jim, half a minute."

"They have little things something like a watch they call counters, don't they, Mr. Weldon?"

"Yes, counters; you press something and a new number is registered. Why?" Mr. Weldon was annoyed.

"If a man set by a window for a whole week, pretending to play solitaire but not really playing it, and if he watched the door of a bank and used one of them counters, wouldn't it maybe be because he wanted to find what day and what time of that day the fewest people were in and around the bank?"

"Of course, do you mean—"

"Yes, sir, in front of this bank. My girl who works upstairs told me about the poor man without a job playin' solitaire and I went up and took a look at him. Solitaire my eye, he didn't look at th' cards. He looked right at our front doors and he kept punching that thing that looks like a watch. He's been there a week and I think you ought to put on a few more guards and be ready."

The following Tuesday happened to be the dullest day at the bank, as was learned when this man was rounded up right after the attempted hold-up. The car drove up as usual and watchers put out and four men went into the bank. Guards outside nabbed the watchers and got the driver before he could step on it.

Jim's hands seemed to go up when he was ordered to stick 'em up but they didn't go all the way up and there was a gun in each hand. He floored two with shots in the legs before a bullet got him in the shoulder, but it was his left shoulder and he had both men stunned with the butt of his gun. The other guards got the other two.

Nora was terribly distressed about it, but Jim wasn't hurt much although he couldn't work as a guard at the bank for a month on account of his shoulder. The day that he went back to work he disturbed the quiet of Nora's work room by dashing up to her at noon.

"Hand in your resignation," he said, "and give 'em a week. Saturday we'll go hunting a little apartment, what do you think?"

"I think you're goofey, Jim Burns!"

"The bank give me five thousand because I doped out that solitaire playin' gag, now what do you think?"

"I think you're wonderful, Jim! I'll tell you more tonight," she said.
